

Youngsters Plan Circus For May 18

An amateur circus presented by 50 Klamath Falls youngsters and about 15 adults will be held at the Klamath Auditorium, May 18, starting at 3 p.m. Adult tickets will cost 50 cents and children 25 cents and all proceeds will be donated to the Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital Fund.

Mrs. Violet Schumman, 3331 Crest Street, is the project manager.

The Normadean Dance Studio will contribute dance acts and the YMCA will sponsor a trampoline act. Juanita Stevens, a student at KU, will perform with her professional baton.

Other acts will include clown, archery, skating and magician performances.

South Africa's most valuable exports are gold, wool and uranium, in that order.

Anti-Gambling Bill Okayed

SALEM (UPI) — The House voted 38-21 Thursday to outlaw pinball machines and similar devices "used for gambling."

The Oregon constitution prohibits gambling except for racing. The bill went to the Senate.

Rep. Philip Lane, D-Portland, said the pinball machine issue centered on questions of crime and morality.

"The pinball machine of today is nothing more than a gambling device," he said, "in that it allows the player to build up games, and then there is an under-the-counter or over-the-counter payoff."

He said the machines have a reflex unit to assure no player can beat them over the long haul.

Lang said the 1957 Portland vice probe centered around the groups controlling such devices.

"The criminal element supports much of its operation by this kind of device," he said. He said a well placed pinball machine collected $300 to $400 a week.

Rep. Eugene Hulett, D-Eugene, expressed fear the bill also would outlaw machines "purely for pleasure," such as miniature bowling alleys. He said he saw nothing wrong with these.

"You can gamble on anything," he said. "This will simply drive them into back rooms."

Lang and Hulett both once were law enforcement officers.

Rep. Richard Eymann, D-Marcola, said Oregon gets $360,000 a biennium from a tax on amusement devices.

"I don't believe we can put a price on morality," Lang replied.

Hulett said the state can control gambling by enforcing present laws.

Inventory Tax Relief Pleas Heard By Senate

SALEM (UPI) — Pleas for inventory tax relief through a tax on net business income, and requests for property tax exemptions for labor temples and Chambers of Commerce property were heard Wednesday by the Senate Tax Committee.

The Senate group took no action on these measures, but did approve a bill exempting pension, retirement and Social Security benefits from taxation.

Urging passage of the House-approved inventory tax relief measure were Doug Heider, Associated Oregon Industries; Roger Martin, an equipment wholesaler, and Lew Norris, Oregon Farm Bureau Federation.

All claimed inventory taxes were inequitable, hindered business expansion, and that the House bill was "a step in the right direction."

The House measure would levy a one per cent tax on net business income to pay for a 25 per cent reduction in inventory tax.

Sen. Walter Pearson, D-Portland, attacked the proposal, and accused businessmen of wanting businesses which do not now pay inventory tax, such as professional firms, to share in the inventory tax load.

Pearson said a sales tax should be enacted, and that inventory taxes should be eliminated.

Walter Logren and Tom Scanlon of the AFL-CIO said they wanted labor temples, exempted from property taxes in the interests of "fairness and equity."

Lodges, legion halls, granges and other fraternal groups now are exempted from property taxes.

In a unique display of candor, the labor spokesmen said they did not feel any property should be exempted from property taxes, but as long as some were exempted, they wanted to share in the benefits.

Representatives of the Portland and Salem Chambers of Commerce said the House-approved bill which would grant the tax relief to labor temples should be amended to include property owned by Chambers of Commerce.
