

35 Nations Talk Trade In Geneva

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Trade ministers from 35 nations gathered in Geneva starting May 16 to discuss plans for giving free world trade its biggest boost since the Marshall Plan which saved Europe in the 1940s.

But the boost could turn out to be a bust if mutual accusations of "protectionism" by the United States and the Common Market are carried to the conference table.

Nobody can predict accurately the outcome as ministers from the United States, Britain, Latin America, Asia and Africa converge on the lakeside Swiss conference center.

The center of the stage will be occupied by the United States and that giant economic newcomer—the Common Market.

On Equal Terms
The six Common Market countries, combining 170 million industrialized people, are now the greatest single trading bloc outside Russia and the United States.

Since they got together under the Treaty of Rome in 1958, France, Germany, Italy and the three Benelux countries (Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg) can talk on equal economic terms with anybody in the world.

The United States may find this out at Geneva where, for the first time since the war, America is in the position of having to ask as much as she is giving because of her deficit in balance of payments.

Sparks New Talks

What is bringing all these nations together is the American Trade Expansion Act signed by President Kennedy on Oct. 11, 1962. It was drawn up in the belief Britain would have become by now a member of the Common Market. But it is still valid despite the French veto of British membership in January this year.

In approving the act Congress authorized the President to cut tariffs on a reciprocal basis up to 50 per cent on all industrial and agricultural goods.

Kennedy also is authorized to eliminate tariffs on goods of which more than 80 per cent are imported by one trading bloc. He also can abolish tariffs of five per cent or less. Exceptions — one is petroleum — amount only to six-tenths of one per cent of U.S. imports.

Situation Different

What the United States may run up against in Geneva is a European feeling that Americans need the tariff cuts more than the Common Market does. The Europeans have been in a booming economic period since 1958. Some member countries, especially France, also feel the Common Market should first consolidate itself before it starts negotiating with "outside" powers.

As the British found out, if France says "non" then "non" it is, because under the Treaty of Rome the six must have common external tariffs by the end of 1964. France has said she will not discuss anything until the Common Market's own farm policy is decided — probably not before 1964. The United States says agricultural products must be included in the tariff cuts or there's nothing doing.

This international poker game has been going on since President Kennedy's special representative for overseas trade, Christian A. Herter, first contacted Common Market authorities here last January. It will go on until officials actually sit down next spring and start the real bargaining for the tariff cuts which will come into operation only in 1965.

Demos Praise Anti-Revisers

PORTLAND (UPI) — Nine Democratic state senators who say they will oppose the revised state constitution unless the apportionment plan is changed were praised Sunday night by the Young Democrats of Greater Portland.

President Richard Lehne announced the group's executive board had passed a resolution calling for substitution of an apportionment plan proposed by Sens. Don Willner, D-Portland, and Glen Stadler, D-Eugene.

Both plans are based on population and both would increase the size of the Senate and House, but the present apportionment plan would have an immediate effect of benefiting Eastern Oregon.

NOT GENTLEMEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gentlemen may prefer blondes but a grand jury has indicted three men here on charges they preferred blondes, brunettes and red heads.

An indictment Monday accused the three men of grand larceny for the theft of the three shades of wigs from a high fashion shop which valued the hair pieces at $64 each.
