Player Wins Tough Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
What would you do with the South hand after East opens with one club? Bobby Wolff of San Antonio decided to jump right to four hearts. This was an all-purpose bid. If his partner had anything, Bobby would have a play for four hearts. If his partner didn't, Bobby could not be hurt and probably East and West would have a game.

Actually East and West can make four spades, but it is doubtful if they would get there in any event.

East cashed three club tricks and continued the suit. Most players would discard a diamond and hope that East would hold the ten of hearts.

Most of you readers won't see any other play for the contract, but Bobby did. He felt certain that East would hold both missing kings for his vulnerable opening bid and in that case Bobby could make the hand by means of that rare play called the criss-cross squeeze.

So he ruffed high and ran out all his trumps discarding down to the blank ace of diamonds in dummy.

East had to go down to three cards also. That meant he couldn't guard both his kings and all Bobby had to do was to decide which king was unguarded. Then he played the appropriate ace and crossed back with the other ace to make the last trick with the right queen.

Solons Clear Obscenity Law

SALEM (UPI) — Extension of Oregon's obscenity law to take in movies cleared the legislature Tuesday and went to the governor.

The bill arose from a court ruling that Oregon's present law could not be used as a basis for banning the film, "The Lovers," because it did not apply to films.
