Power Preference Foes Attempt To Kill Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House opponents of a Senate bill giving the Pacific Northwest preference of power produced from Columbia River dams appeared set today to employ delaying tactics in an effort to kill the measure. Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., for example, succeeded Wednesday in delaying completion by the House reclamation subcommittee on the administration bill which would pave the way for construction of transmission lines to carry power from the Pacific Northwest to Los Angeles. He failed, however, in an effort to turn the hearing into a wide-range probe of Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall's power policies. An effort by Hosmer to question Udall on nuclear power plants was thwarted by objections from Rep. Jack Westland, R-Wash., one of the sponsors of the bill to guarantee the Pacific Northwest first call on power generated at federal dams in the area. Hosmer, who questioned Udall for about an hour, succeeded in prolonging the hearing beyond the time the committee could sit. Committee Chairman Walter Rogers, D-Tex., said he would seek unanimous consent for the committee to sit while the House was in session, but Hosmer and Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., indicated they would object. Hosmer repeated charges that Udall was seeking to gain control of the entire national power network. After Hosmer had questioned Udall for about an hour, Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., asked

Road Signs For Tours Assured, Callison Informs Chamber Meet

The establishment of road signs to direct tourists along the chamber of commerce "Loop Tours" in Klamath County was virtually assured today as the result of a conversation between Forest Cooper, state highway engineer, and representatives of the chamber, George Callison reported during the weekly meeting of the chamber Wednesday. The announcement came as somewhat of a surprise in view of the opposition that the highway department expressed toward the same plan last year, Callison stated. Discussion of the Loop Tour signing developed early this week during a meeting in Salem between Cooper, Callison and Keith Cobo, director of the Tourist and Convention Committee. Callison reported that he believed the reversal in policy of the highway department was due principally to a program initiated at the state government level to develop an interstate tourist program. The chamber manager recommended that the directional signs be constructed along three of the chamber's four tours and estimated that the signing project would cost approximately $1,200, including materials and labor. The entire project could be completed in about 30 days, he said further. Action on the matter was deferred by the board of directors until some means is found to finance the project. Three of the four tours to be "signed" would include Tour One, a trip around the circumference of Klamath Lake originating and ending at Klamath Falls. (This tour was the subject of an article appearing in the feature section of the Herald and News, Sunday, May 12). Tour Two, consisting of a drive east of Klamath Falls through the Sprague River

Court Convicts Five Of Bilking Kenny Fund

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—A federal court jury convicted a former mayor and four men Wednesday night of bilking the famed Sister Kenny Foundation out of millions of dollars. The verdict came after a 10-week mail fraud trial in which the government charged the defendants with concealing about $7 million in collected donations. Convicted were Marvin L. Kline, 58, former Minneapolis mayor and one of the founders of the institute; George Zimmerman, St. Paul, former Kenny bookkeeper; and Philip Koolish, 71, his son, David, 43, and John Carnell, 50, officers of three Chicago fund-raising firms. All five were found guilty of conspiracy and mail fraud. Attorneys for the defendants immediately filed for a new trial. Judge Edward Devitt gave them 30 days to file written notice of the motion. The judge also left the defendants in custody of their attorneys and set next Wednesday for posting appeal bonds. Each man could get a maximum of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine on each count of mail fraud, and five years and $10,000 for conspiracy. Fred Fadell, former Minneapolis publicity man, pleaded guilty to one count of mail fraud and awaits sentencing. The seventh defendant, Philip G. Rettig, 51, Chicago, became ill during the trial and his case was severed from the others. The government charged Kline assured the Chicagoans of a contract to handle Kenny solicitations, and, through Zimmerman, concealed the actual amounts from the Kenny board of directors. Kline already is under a 10-year prison sentence for grand larceny. He was convicted in 1961 for raising his foundation salary from $25,000 to $48,000 without authority.

Bills Sent To Governor

SALEM (UPI) — Bills revising Oregon bank taxes and broadening the state's program of medical assistance to the aged went to the governor's desk today. The House voted to accept Senate amendments to both measures. The bank tax bill is a compromise of a dispute that has been the subject of litigation in the courts. It sets the corporation excise tax on banks at 8 per cent. The banks agreed to accept the figure, drop their court protest, and forego any possible rebate. The legislature in 1957 put the bank tax at 9 per cent. Other corporations pay 6 per cent, but they also pay other taxes that banks do not pay. The banks protested they were being discriminated against in violation of the law. They have accepted the 8 per cent figure on grounds it more nearly compares to the total taxes paid by other corporations. If the legislature had left the 9 per cent rate, the State Tax Commission said the banks probably would have won their case, costing the state $9 to $35 million in refunds. Penkovsky was condemned to death and executed and a British businessman, Greville Wynne, was given an eight-year prison sentence earlier this month for their activities in an Anglo-American spy ring said to have been operating here. Varentsov was not directly involved in the alleged Anglo-American ring, but was a personal friend and protector of Penkovsky, who exploited the friendship to secure military data for espionage purposes, the sources said. Varentsov was condemned to death and executed and a British businessman, Greville Wynne, was given an eight-year prison sentence earlier this month for their activities in an Anglo-American spy ring said to have been operating here.
