

Pre-Schoolers Get Preview Of Fall Fare

SOCIETY

By Helen Dechen
Herald and News
Sunday, June 2, 1963

Next fall's first graders were guests this month at their respective schools for a morning visitation. They met the teachers, listened to stories, drew pictures and ended up with treats. Don Kettler visited two schools to get today's page of pictures showing pre-schoolers with their friendly first grade hosts.

Above left, Tommy Alvarez with his mother, Mrs. Tom Alvarez, shows mixed emotions as he pauses before entering Orson Stearns School.

Above right, Cindy Steele, left, pre-schooler, shares a drawing desk with Catherine Sweek, an old-timer at Stearns School.

— Photos by Kettler

Above, Ronnie Hartsfield, first grader, at left, shows Martin Krieger some of the things he will learn about when he enters first grade at Stearns School next fall.

Getting acquainted in the picture above are two future classmates at Altamont School, Kathy Hatfield and Chris Rookstool.

Treat time at Altamont visitation day, left, is shared by Debbie McNabb, left, and Betty Hoover, both pre-schoolers.

Mrs. Leo Andrews, below, demonstrates a reading lesson to an interested group of visitors at Altamont School.

Martha Tubach, Altamont teacher, takes a minute to draw a picture for Billy Glidewell, who will travel from Rocky Point next fall to enter first grade. Interested onlooker at right is Joan Baker, pre-schooler.

