

Four Young People Dead In Accident

By United Press International
A spectacular two-car collision near the Portland Zoo about midnight Friday took the lives of four young people and raised the state's Memorial holiday weekend death toll to 12.

The deaths brought to seven the number of traffic fatalities in Portland within 24 hours.

Killed in the Friday night crash on SW Canyon Rd. were Richard LeRoy Belanger, 17, Lake Grove; Kenneth Terry Barney, 18, Lake Oswego; Mary Frances Smith, 16, and Bernice Ashford, 17, both Portland.

The boys were scheduled to be graduated from Lake Oswego High School next week.

Police said the four were in a car which apparently became caught in the center depression of the highway, struck another vehicle and slammed into a utility pole.

Driver of the second car involved, Clarence LaFond, Beaverton, was not hurt.

A one-car accident early Friday took three lives. The victims were Mrs. Helen Skankard, 35; Albert C. Tweedy, 51, and Mrs. Maxine Hogo, 37, all of Portland.

Walter Fred Pflughaupt, 58 of Powers, was killed in a one-car crash near Myrtle Point Friday.

Three other persons died in separate crashes in the state since the long holiday weekend began at 6 p.m. Wednesday. In addition, an Oregon man died in a California accident and a Portland man drowned near Cannon Beach.

KILLED SELLING POPPIES

BREMEN, Ga. (UPI) — Eight-year-old Mona Shadrux stood by the railroad track Friday asking passersby to buy her poppies. She wanted to help disabled veterans. Mona was selling the poppies just a few feet from the restaurant where her mother works. A switch engine was moving forward when Mona took a step or two backward. The engine rolled over the child, killing her instantly.

Rep. Walter Dies Friday Of Leukemia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., one of the most powerful and controversial members of the House, died of leukemia Friday.

Walter, 69, died at 6 p.m. EDT after being in a coma most of the day at Georgetown University Hospital. He had been hospitalized for about four months.

He was chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, the judiciary subcommittee on immigration, and co-authored the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act. Adding to his power, he was chairman of the Democratic Patronage Committee, which dispenses Capitol jobs.

Since 1961, he had been chairman of the House Democratic caucus, a prestige position.

President Kennedy, who visited Walter recently, said "when I saw him on my recent visit... he was facing the future with the same faith and courage he had shown throughout his life. He will be greatly missed in the House of Representatives and all of his friends mourn his passing."

Funeral arrangements for Walter were incomplete. He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Considered an expert parliamentarian, Walter often presided when the House debated its most intricate bills. He was a trusted confidant of the late Speaker Sam Rayburn, who told a friend 10 years ago that he wanted Walter to succeed him.

Many members considered Walter a moderate Democrat of valued judgment. Others said he sometimes seemed obsessed with internal security and defending his Committee on Un-American Activities, which he once wanted to abolish.

"He was a devil to the liberals and a hero to the conservatives and they were both wrong," said a liberal colleague of Walter.

Walter was born in 1900 in Pennsylvania. He served in the U.S. Army during World War I and was a member of the House from 1947 to 1969.

He was married to Mrs. Frances E. Walter and had three children: Francis, Jr., and two daughters.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Ignace Church in Washington, D.C.

Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

California Water Expert Seeks Additional Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Southern California water official has told Congress that legislation to give the Pacific Northwest first call on power produced in the area was "short-sighted" and "basically unsound."

The comments were made to the House Reclamation Subcommittee Friday by Warren W. Butler, vice chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

Butler, who immediately ran afoul of Pacific Northwest congressmen on the committee, said the legislation would be a threat to the MWD's hope of getting more cheap power to pump water from Northern California and the Colorado River.

Butler testified in opposition to an administration-backed measure to limit the export of electricity generated at Columbia River dams to power not needed by Northwestern industry. The legislation is intended to pave the way for construction of high-voltage transmission lines to allow the Bonneville Power Administration to sell surplus power in California.

The MWD official expressed fear it would lead to similar demands by other regions and deprive the district of needed cheap power.

"Similar barriers could shut off from us power from Hoover and Parker Dams on the Colorado and from Glen Canyon Dam and others still to be built on that river," he said.

Among Butler's objections to the legislation was a provision that power delivered outside the BPA system could be recalled on short notice if needed in the Pacific Northwest.

But Rep. Harold T. Johnson, a Democrat from Northern California, said that under California law the MWD itself could pull back water deliveries to San Diego and other areas if the water were needed in Los Angeles County.

"I personally can't imagine a judge upholding it," Butler said, contending that such deliveries should not be withdrawn from communities which had grown up and were dependent on the water supplies.

Johnson and Rep. Robert B. Duncan, D-Ore., suggested that areas which had become dependent on power sources also had an equal right to keep such power. That, they said, was the purpose of the legislation.

The legislation before the committee would create an exception from federal laws which would give public agencies such as the MWD first call on federal power over any private utility or industry.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

Public Support Portland Civil Defense Action

PORTLAND (UPI) — Letters have been pouring into the City Council from all points of the globe since the body took action to abolish the Civil Defense Agency, a spokesman said Friday.

The letters are addressed to the City Council and to individual councilmen. They run about four to one approving the council action, the same proportion as the vote May 21 that killed the local CD appropriation.

Portland attracted national attention as the first major city to take such action against Civil Defense.

Area youths Saturday walked off with the honors at the first FFA individual trophies went to:

First, Bob Street, Malin; second, Richard Stein, Enterprise; third, Jim Powell, The Dalles; fourth, Steve Wolfe, Walla Walla; fifth, Mike Wagonblast, The Dalles.

In team judging, trophies went to these FFA teams:

First, Pioneer Beef Club, Keno. Team members were Carolyn Kerr, Lee Holliday, Jim Kerns, and Karl Kerns.

Second, Malin. Team members were Carl Conroy, Steven Paygr, Tom Tofell, and David Clark.

Third, Olene Buckaroos. Team members were Lila Ritter, Terry High, Janet Lyons, and Barbara Marshall.
