Try Three-Suit Double Squeeze

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Victor Mitchell of New York is one of our most resourceful dummy players which may explain why his partner sitting North took him all the way to six no-trump after Vic responded two no-trump to North's spade opening.

Still the contract is not too bad as there are eleven easy tricks for declarer to gather in and if diamonds break, the twelfth is there also.

Vic won the first spade with dummy's jack and led a diamond to his king. He returned a diamond and if he had been looking at all the cards he could have made the hand by simply playing low from dummy, but Vic went up with the jack. East won and led back the queen of hearts. Vic won in dummy and ran off the rest of the spade suit. The discards from his hand were a diamond, heart and club while East dropped two hearts and a club.

West simply discarded a heart. Vic led a heart to his king and west had to throw a club to hand on to two diamonds. Now Vic played a club back to dummy's ace and cashed the queen of diamonds.

East had to throw another club. Vic let go his last heart and made the last two tricks with the king and nine of clubs.

Simple for Vic or for anyone else who knows how to manipulate a three-suit double squeeze.

Although Charles Goudy finally won the legal claim to his discoveries relating to rubber in the famous India Rubber case, in which Daniel Webster was his attorney, he died in debt.
