

Robert Kennedy-Hoffa Feud Heads For Courts

CHICAGO (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has intensified his efforts to get a conviction of Teamsters president James R. Hoffa.

A federal grand jury in Chicago indicted Hoffa and seven other persons Tuesday on charges alleging they fraudulently obtained $20 million in loans from a Teamster pension fund and used more than $1 million of it for themselves.

It was the seventh time since Kennedy and Hoffa first tangled while Kennedy was chief counsel for the Senate Rackets Committee that Hoffa has had court actions filed against him.

The action Tuesday came after two years of investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Justice Department. It came in the form of a 28-count, 55-page indictment.

Cases Combined
As the indictment was handed down, a 16-count mail and wire fraud indictment against Hoffa was dismissed on motion of Kennedy's department in Tampa, Fla. U.S. Dist. Judge Joseph P. Lieb dismissed the indictment involving Hoffa's connections with a Florida real estate firm, Sun Valley Inc., so the case could be coupled with the Chicago prosecution.

The Chicago indictment accused Hoffa of deceiving fellow trustees of the Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund, headquartered in Chicago, to obtain loans for favored companies in six states. Most of the companies are in the Miami, Fla., area.

The indictment cited loans for financing of companies for construction of hotels, motels, shopping centers and other projects in Florida, Louisiana, Alabama, Missouri, New Jersey and California.

Says Money Diverted
Pension fund trustees once were told, the grand jury said, that $2 million in loan funds was used to build a North Miami hospital whereas a "substantial portion" of the money was diverted to other uses.

The indictment said Hoffa used "fraud, deceit, misrepresentation" to obtain approval of the loans by the seven other union and eight management representatives who run the pension fund.

Others named in the indictment were:

Benjamin Dranow, 56, former owner of the John W. Thomas Department Store, Minneapolis, Minn., now in prison for mail fraud and income tax evasion; Abe T. Weinblatt, 67, retired Miami Beach, Fla., businessman and former associate of Dranow; S. George Burris, 65, New York City accountant who was a stockholder in Sun Valley Inc.; his son, Herbert G. Burris, 41, New York City attorney; Samuel Human, 69, Miami Beach, a real estate operator who refurbished two large old Key West hotels; Calvin Kovens, 39, Miami Beach builder who was convicted of a housing loan fraud last year; and Zachary A. Strate Jr., 43, New Orleans builder and real estate man.

Simple Replies To Child's Sex Queries

By W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Sex education can be destructive rather than constructive. It is not just a father-to-son or mother-to-daughter lecture, nor a pamphlet on coming of age presented with the approach of puberty. It is not just an anatomy lesson, nor a discourse on the physiology of reproduction.

Primarily, sex education is the transmitting to a child of attitudes regarding sex. If by word or deed you give your child the impression that sex is something dirty, he will go through life with an emotional scar that will prevent his achievement of life's greatest joys — happy marriage and parenthood.

It is only the abuse of sex that is dirty or that has grim consequences.

Proper sex education not only prevents a serious emotional handicap, it is also our most powerful weapon against venereal disease. It is essential, therefore, that all of a child's early questions about sex be answered simply, truthfully and without embarrassment.

Unfortunately indeed is the parent who finds it impossible to do this, for between such a parent and his or her child a lack of understanding will create an ever-widening gap.

The preschool child need not be given a long, technical answer but should be told enough to satisfy his curiosity, and what he is told must be the truth.

One mother, when asked by her 5-year-old son where he came from, told him, "Before you were born I carried you right under my heart." No more information was needed. The boy appeared to be well pleased with this thought, and went outside to play. I think this mother handled the situation very well, and I have no fears that she will not add to this knowledge by bits and pieces gradually as her son grows older.

Sex education is a function that can best be shared by home, school, and church. But the attitudes learned in the home outweigh all others. A parent who objects to the proper presentation of certain phases of this subject in the school his child attends may be obstructing not only the normal development of his own child, but that of his neighbor's children.

If his own child has already received his information, hearing it again in wholesome surroundings will not hurt him. If he has not already learned about sex at home he is going to learn about it willy-nilly. So anything that can be done to present the subject in a proper light can only be a force for good.

The ideal solution, but one not likely to be achieved soon, is for all parents to be enlightened not only about the spiritual meaning of sex but also about how properly to present their knowledge to their children.
