

Annual Vacation Church Schools Planned By Basin Denominations

As the end of the school year approaches, churches in the area are making preparations for their annual vacation church schools. Usually conducted during the morning hours, the week-day sessions offer a variety of activities including Bible study, crafts, and recreation geared to individual age groups.

Each summer, scores of children across the country take advantage of the learning experiences and fellowship provided by the vacation church schools, making them a tradition on the American church scene.

A picnic will be held on Thursday, June 20, and the school will formally conclude with an achievement program at 7:30 p.m. June 21. The public is invited to attend and view the projects completed by the students.
