

Pressure Focused On Governor's Office To Reject Or Approve Measures

SALEM (UPI) — Pressure to approve or reject measures approved by the 1963 legislature is now focused on the governor's office.

The governor's staff is buried under an avalanche of telegrams, telephone calls, letters and personal visits.

Jaycees Plan July Parade

The annual Junior Chamber of Commerce Fourth of July parade will be held again this year on the holiday, Virgil Bigby, Klamath Falls Jaycee parade director, announced.

The Jaycees will sponsor the parade alone this year. In previous years the parade was a cooperative effort between the Jaycees and the Downtown Merchants Association.

Race Riot Injures 5

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (UPI) — A night of shotgun and rifle blasts, fires, Molotov cocktails, flying bricks and racial hate here left five men injured, three stores damaged by flames and fears of renewed violence.

An uneasy calm prevailed this morning as state police prepared to move quickly against any new outbreaks of violence or integration demonstrations.

Scattered rioting broke out Tuesday night as chanting, singing and praying Negroes marched through this Eastern Shore town in protest against a total breakdown of racial negotiations.

No arrests were made. A state trooper said later, "We didn't have time to make arrests. We just kept breaking things up before they got big or anyone else got hurt."

Three white men were hit by a shotgun blast as they sat in a car near a burning auto body shop owned by one of them. State police said the shop's owner, Jerome Shenton, was hit in the nose by shotgun pellets. Insurance adjuster George Todd and William Casick, who were with Shenton in the car, also were struck by the blast.

Shenton was listed in fair condition at Cambridge Memorial Hospital. Todd was treated and released and Casick did not require treatment.

A state trooper, one of about 40 called in to aid city police, and a volunteer fireman were injured by flying rocks and bricks.

Firemen were pelted by rocks and bricks as they battled the flames.

By mid-Wednesday he had signed 485 measures.

He still had about 163 on which to act.

Hatfield has three choices. He can veto a bill, he can sign it, or he can file it without signature with the secretary of state.

There is no "pocket veto" in Oregon. The governor has to veto a measure or file it with the secretary of state without signature, it becomes law.

Bills without the emergency clause or a special effective date become law on Sept. 2, the 90th day after the legislature's adjournment.

Warne Nunn, Hatfield's executive assistant; Travis Cross, the governor's press secretary, and legal counsel Loren Hicks wade through the bill.

Nunn and Cross keep track of the phone calls, letters and telegrams, and attempt to schedule appointments for those who want to talk to the governor.

Hicks makes a last legal review and complete summary of the bills. He prepares a statement for and against each measure before it is sent on to the governor's desk for final consideration.

It's a slow process. The legislature adjourned 10 days ago, but some 77 bills still hadn't been sent up to the governor's office.

They were being printed, or were waiting signature by Senate President Ben Musa, or House speaker Clarence Barton.

While the legislature was in session, the individual lawmakers took the brunt of lobbying for and against various proposals.

When the session ended the entire focus of attention shifted to the governor's office.

The pressure won't be off until June 26, the legal deadline for action.
