Hope Grows For Agreement Between Steel Firms, Union

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials were pleased today over reports that the nation's biggest steel firms might be nearing agreement with the United Steelworkers union on contract changes.

Usually well-informed sources said it appeared virtually certain that the revisions—including an extended vacation plan—would be presented for approval to the union's Executive Board and Wage Policy Committee next week.

If so, this would allow the current agreement due to expire July 1, 1964, to be modified without a formal re-opening that would raise the threat of a strike.

Officials who deal with labor-management relations said that an accord in the steel industry was doubly important this year.

For one thing, they said, it would remove the possibility of a crippling shutdown of steel plants this year that could upset the economic advance.

And there is a good chance that a new agreement would extend the contract for one or possibly two years. That would mean a long strike-free period in the troubled steel industry running through mid-1965 or 1966.

Local Man Wins Award

Dr. Will E. Mason, professor of economics at the Pennsylvania State University, who was born in Klamath Falls, received the Louis H. Bell Memorial Award for his book, "Clarification of the Monetary Standard."

The award, consisting of a certificate and a check for $1,000, was presented by President Eric A. Walker at commencement exercises June 9.

To clarify the vast confusion that has crept into the terminology of monetary theory and practice in the last century, Dr. Mason in his book after reviewing the classical and neoclassical theories, carefully distinguishes between monetary standard, policies, and objectives and presents a workable concept of a monetary standard for the 1960s.

Published last month, the book is considered valuable to specialists and general readers alike.

Dr. Mason, 51, was named to the Penn State faculty in 1956 after teaching at Washington and Jefferson College, the University of Buffalo, Princeton University, the University of Washington, Multnomah College in Portland, Ore., and from 1935 to 1937 in Ontario High School, Ontario, Ore.

He received his bachelor of arts degree in English from Pacific University; his master of arts in economics from the University of Washington; and his doctor of philosophy degree, also with a major in economics, from Princeton University, where he held a Wyman Fellowship.

Lumber Association Heated Over Senate Non-Action On Import Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Lumber Manufacturers Association said today it was "indignant" about a senate committee's pigeonholing a proposal to require lumber imports from Canada to be marked as to country of origin.

The trade association said it understood the proposal was sidetracked for fear of ruffling U.S.-Canadian relations.

The measure, a keystone in the drive to reduce Canada's $230 million a year softwood lumber sales in the United States, had been offered as an amendment to a House-passed bill dealing with marking other imported articles.

The Senate Finance Committee Wednesday ordered the bill reported to the Senate floor without the amendment.

"We're indignant," an NLMA spokesman said. "We're rather distressed at those members of Congress who continue to see the problem of American lumbermen through Canadian glasses."

Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, who sponsored the amendment, said the proposal was not dead because it was embodied in other legislation before Congress. He said the lumber-marking requirement might actually fare better on its own than as a rider to the bill that was reported Wednesday.

The NLMA said it was "still committed to the principle of restricting Canadian imports to a reasonable percentage of U.S. consumption."

"We feel that the finance committee has done us to continue to ignore the desperate plight of American lumbermen in favor of some future advantage which they think our government might be able to get in future trade negotiations with the Canadians," the spokesman said.

The marking requirement would have made it easier to enforce "buy American" policies in lumber purchases. It also was a foundation for proposals to require U.S. lumber to be used in any construction financed with loans guaranteed under federal programs.

The administration had opposed the requirements in finance committee hearings.

Among other lumber measures before Congress is a bill that would restrict imported softwood lumber to 6 per cent of U.S. consumption.

Imported soft wood, almost entirely from Canada, accounted for 15 per cent of U.S. consumption last year, according to the Commerce Department. U.S. industry spokesmen have said the share has climbed to above 17 per cent this year.
