

GIANT PUFF-BALL FOUND — This unusual puff-ball, a member of the mushroom family, was found this week by George Andriou on his ranch seven miles east of Warden. The mushroom was two feet in diameter and weighed about 25 pounds. Andriou said the mushroom is edible when found in this state. Later the giant ball decomposes and is no longer of any value. Andriou said he has seen many large ones, but none even close to this tremendous size.

THE DOCTOR SAYS
Staph Germ — Villain in Picnic Sickness

By W. G. BRANDSTADT, M.D., Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Picnics are fun for human beings and animals. The fun of the human beings can be spoiled, however, if food poisoning rears its ugly head. One of the commonest types of food poisoning is that caused by the staphylococcus. The presence of this ordinary pus germ in food does no harm unless the food has been allowed to stand around in the warm air for several hours before it is eaten.

This often happens when, for instance, potato salad is made in the morning and not eaten until late afternoon, or when the egg salad sandwiches left over from the picnic lunch prove tempting to appetites renewed by an afternoon of fun.

The germs themselves are not the cause of the trouble. It is the poison they produce in their spare time. This poison does not alter the appearance, the taste, or the smell of the food in any way, so you won't know what hit you until two to four hours later. Then you may get a very sudden attack of vomiting and diarrhea.

It is rarely fatal, but for a few hours it may make you wish you were dead. It was formerly believed that the staphylococcus was always introduced into the food by a bee or other stinging insect on the hand of the person preparing the food.

That is indeed a convenient way to do it, but we now know that the germs usually come from the nose. Even in a healthy person the nose may be a vast reservoir of these germs.

Thus, if the cook has a cold and his or her hands become contaminated from the nose, the conditions for contaminating the food are ideal.

Even without a cold, a sudden draft may cause the person preparing the food to sneeze, and that is more natural than to cover the sneeze with the hand.

If, under such circumstances, you must sneeze, be sure to wash your hands thoroughly with soap and water after this or any other contact with your nose before preparing any food.

The poison from staphylococcus is destroyed by boiling, but when ever boiled a potato salad or an egg salad? Beware also of custards and cream-filled pastries.

A good plan is to carry some sort of refrigerating device with you to the picnic. Keep the sandwiches cold and well covered until time to eat them. Then make the sandwiches on the spot.

Potato chips are safer than potato salad and wieners are safer than chicken salad. Barbecued hoods eaten right off the grill are safest of all.

Good habits of cleanliness and proper care of food during preparation are the best safeguards, and will go a long way toward keeping picnics fun.

The annual Father and Son Banquet at Klamath Falls Lodge, No. 1247 BPOE, will be held Saturday night, June 15. There will be a special show at 6 p.m. followed by a fried chicken dinner. There will be free pep for the small fry.

Some of all ages will be welcome. The committee says, "If you don't have a son, borrow one, or come anyway! Accommodations are planned for 400. Reservations should be made early. There will be plenty of prizes for the boys."

A flag day service is planned for June 14 at the lodge, initiation and a Dutch lunch on June 20 and "An Evening Parade," for the entire family is scheduled for June 23. Those attending wear summation and Hawaiian h 1 r t s. Prizes for the best costumes.

The annual big Elks picnic for old and young will be held in the past at Malin Park.

Refrigerator Raiders Need Eating Training
By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: Ten days ago my husband wrote his annual, breezy, full-of-hot-air letter to his sister in Phoenix. He casually mentioned that he would like to set a snack time midway between lunch and supper and tell the boys they may help themselves. To allow children to be continuously and ruin their appetites for a balanced meal does not make for a happy childhood, nor a healthy one either.

Dear Ann Landers: A short-while-ago I moved to this city several months ago. I wanted to befriend her so I gave her the names of my sister, my landlady, my day lady, an upholsterer, a carpet cleaner, a seamstress, a yard man and so on.

I guess there is such a thing as being too good a friend because now when I want the services of these people they are busy. She also has spoiled them by paying more than I did, which was a tricky trick. What do you think of this sort of "friendship"?

Dear S.G.K.: Lincoln freed the slaves. You can't expect the people you and expect them to work for you unless you hire them full time.

The only solution is to hire several weeks in advance and pay the going rate.

Confidential to Please Repeat It: O.K. Here it is: Brilliant people talk about ideas. Average people talk about things. Small people talk about other people.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has two sons by a former marriage. He gets the kids every summer for eight weeks. Please settle something for us in advance.

The boys are 9 and 11 years old. They are high-spirited and full of vitality, but they are also out and I enjoy them thoroughly. The only point on which my husband I disagree involves the refrigerator. The boys are in an all-day day, helping themselves to cold drinks, fruit, snacks, whatever they see. At mealtime they pick at their food because they are not hungry.

I've told my husband I am opposed to this, but he says it is part of a happy childhood. His mother was very stingy about food and he and his brothers were punished if they were caught in the kitchen. He made up his mind this would never happen to his children.

I suppose he does have a point.

And furthermore, the amazing new Croton "Aquadatic" is self-winding, waterproof (as long as case, crystal and crown are intact), shock-resistant, and handsome case is all-steel, 17 jewel precision movement with balance staff and mainspring that are unbreakable.
