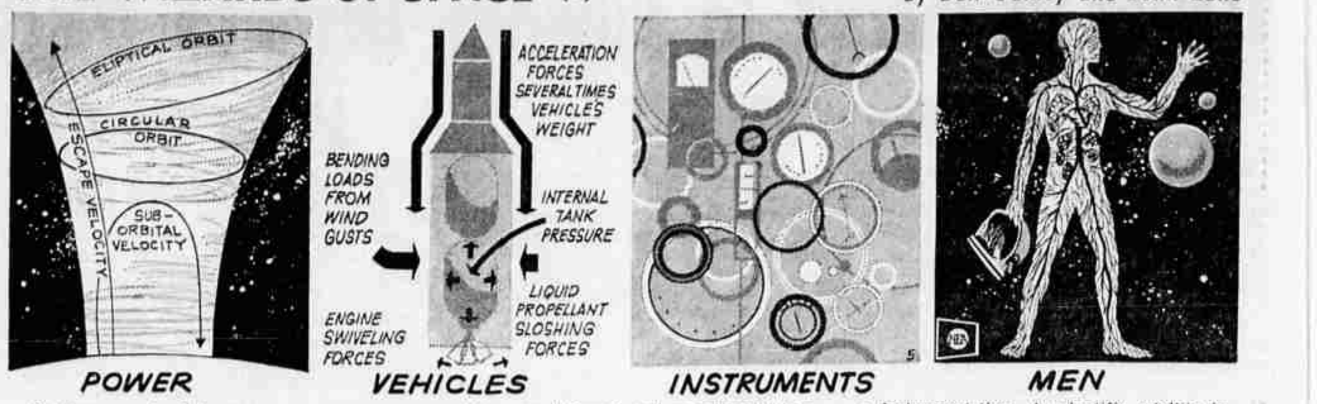
THE WIZARDS OF SPACE (5)

By Don Oakley and John Lane



Put America ahead in space.

This, basically, was the assignment handed National Aeronautics and Space Administration on its founding in 1958. The job is not an easy one.

There are a number of fundamental needs which must be met before man, or his instruments, can travel in space. As with any kind of travel, there has to be a vehicle, a driver, propulsion for the vehicle and means to control it in relation to its environment. For space travel, there must be:

• Power. Gravity, which holds everything to the earth and which makes life possible by holding the atmosphere around the earth and the earth around the sun, is also the greatest obstacle to space travel. Gravity may be likened to a great funnel, and an astronaut to a motorcycle rider attempting to climb it. To escape entirely, great speed (about 25,000 m.p.h.) is required. At lower speeds (about 17,500 m.p.h.), the cyclist can ride around the sides of the funnel (or an astronaut can orbit). At any lower speed, he merely climbs the wall part way and falls back again.

Space travel meant the discovery of new and more powerful means of propulsion.

• Vehicles. Besides supporting its own weight, a rocket must be able to withstand a number of destructive forces. Its nozzle must not melt under thousands of degrees of searing rocket blast.

Space travel meant new advances in metallurgy and fabrication.

• Instrumentation. A scientific satellite is useless if it cannot be tracked in orbit, cannot collect data or relay it to earth.

Space travel meant great strides in electronics.

• Men. The end goal of all space research is to give man the ability to travel freely in space. This enormously complicates the job, since man must take a chunk of his environment with him. All his physical and biological needs must be met. He must be protected from certain hazards of space, such as prolonged weightlessness and radiation.

Space travel meant the founding of a new science: bioastronautics.

Air Accident Brief Given To Visitors

Representatives of police, fire, news and forest service departments in Southern Oregon and Northern California were advised of Air Force policies concerning aircraft accidents during a briefing session at Kingsley Field.

Approximately 35 of the visitors were welcomed by Col. Phillip A. Rand, 322d Fighter-Interceptor Squadron commander, and then conducted on a tour of the fighter squadron operations.

The group was shown a film, and the unclassified facts concerning nuclear weapons were explained by base members of armament and electronics and explosive disposal teams.

The briefing is arranged and conducted semi-annually by the 408th Fighter Group Office of Information. The program concluded with refreshments in the Officers Club.

Attending the function were B. K. Cooperrider, Modoc National Forest; Dick Briggs, Herald and News; Joe Sawyer, Municipal Airport; M. G. Gordon, Suburban Fire Department; Raymond LaMarche, Suburban Fire Department; Don Peters, Deschutes National Forest; L. A. Rheinhardt, California Highway Patrol; Virgel Winkleman, California Highway Patrol; C. J. McAllister, California Highway Patrol.

UO Students Make Study

Archaeological research teams from the University of Oregon will be in the field this summer continuing survey and excavation work in Oregon and Alaska, according to Dr. L. S. Cressman, head of the anthropology department.

A group of 18 or 19 students under the direction of David L. Cole, curator of the University Museum of Natural History, will leave later in the month to continue the university's 10-year excavation project along the Columbia River from the John Day upstream to McNary Dam.

They will be working under a $23,000 grant from the National Park Service, which is responsible for the salvage of a reasonable sample of archaeological material from areas to be inundated by dams built under federal license.

This year the group will complete a project on the Oregon side of the river in Wildcat Canyon near Quinton and begin work in a new area on Blalock Island near Boardman. The project is in its sixth year.

In another salvage operation, a university team will be working for the third and last year in the Salt Caves Dam area on the Klamath River near the Oregon-California border.

The Copco Division of the Pacific Power and Light Company, which is building the dam, is supporting the project with an $8,000 grant.

Intelligence Agency Takes Extreme Measures Trying To Keep Security

The Lighter Side
By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Central Intelligence Agency maintains a security system that is so tight it would appear at times to be self-defeating.

The purpose of the system is to keep the CIA out of the public eye, and vice versa. The need for that is understandable.

But in its quest for anonymity the agency on occasions has gone to such extremes the effect has been to call attention to itself.

Some of these incidents have produced comic overtones, as in the old silent movies where the guy who is tippytoeing around steps on a piece of fly paper.

Most recently, the CIA made itself surreptitiously conspicuous by foiling a Senate page who was trying to deliver a letter from Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, to the agency director.

Long Interrogation

Although the Senator's office had apprised the agency of the page's mission, he was upon arrival interrogated at length and sent away with the letter undelivered.

I am not informed as to what the guards told the lad. "There ain't nobody here but us penguins and we're invisible" probably.

The things that I find most intriguing about the CIA's security system is the way its operating expenses are handled. Funds for the agency are concealed somewhere in the massive federal budget, so that only a few persons know how much money it is spending.

I enjoy going through the budget and picking out items that I think might be used to mask a few bucks for the CIA. For instance, there is the Abaca fiber program.

According to the budget for fiscal 1964, this program is taking nothing out of the Treasury and is putting $99,000 back in. That certainly looks suspicious. In fact, it's downright unbureaucratic.

No Such Thing

My hunch is that there's really no such thing as Abaca fiber and that the money actually is going to the CIA.

On page 822 of the budget, $408,000 is earmarked for payment of annuities to the widows of lighthouse keepers. That also looks fishy.

Are there really that many widows of lighthouse keepers still around? Or are some of the CIA agents in disguise?

A $680,000 item for the U.S. Naval Academy's laundry service likewise would be a logical place to conceal a CIA appropriation. You can conceal almost anything in a Navy laundry bag.

Other budgetary items that caught my eye ostensibly covered such activities as "brush disposal" and the preservation of ancient Nubian monuments.

Offhand, $9 million seems like an awful lot of money for the government to be spending to get rid of brushes. And, an ancient Nubian monument sounds to me like a perfect hangout for spies.

Veteran Actors Returning For Shakespeare Festival

ASHLAND — Casting lists for the 1963 Oregon Shakespearean Festival have been posted by Angus L. Bowmer, producing director.

After three days of taxing audition routines, the season's 123 speaking roles in four plays were balanced among the 38-member acting company. Blocking rehearsals were launched immediately and the 6½-week preparation period is underway.

Several veteran performers have returned to assume key assignements in the plays. Charles Taylor's fourth year finds him as Page in "Merry Wives of Windsor," the Apothecary in "Romeo and Juliet," Sir Nathaniel in "Love's Labour's Lost," and Pistol in "Henry the Fifth." Shirley Patton, in her sixth year, will be the Princess in "Love's Labour's." Elizabeth Huddle (third season) will be seen as the Nurse in "Romeo," Mrs. Ford in "Merry Wives," Rosaline in "Love's Labour's," and the Queen in "Henry."

After four years' absence for work in New York, longtime festival favorite Richard Graham will be back to notch his 12th Ashland season. Well remembered here for such roles as Lear, Othello, and Henry VIII, Graham has been assigned Capulet in "Romeo," Ford in "Merry Wives," and the Chorus in "Henry."

Returning from last year for top roles will be Stacy Keach as Mercutio in "Romeo," Berowne in "Love's Labour's," and the title role in "Henry V." Jon Cranney has been cast as Montague in "Romeo," Shallow in "Merry Wives," and Exeter in "Henry." Daniel Hoppe will play Paris in "Romeo," Dr. Caius in "Merry Wives," and the King of France in "Henry." Kirk Mee will take Balthazar in "Romeo," Slender in "Merry Wives," Costard in "Love's Labour's," and McMorris in "Henry." Marian Hailey has drawn Juliet, Mistress Quickly in "Merry Wives," and Jaquenetta in "Love's Labour's." Tom Vail will be Boyet in "Love's Labour's" and Orleans in "Henry." Rod Alexander is to be Prince Escalus in "Romeo." Edward Brubaker has drawn Bardolph in "Henry," and Hugh Evans will play the role of the same name in "Merry Wives."

Several of the Ashland newcomers will launch their festival careers with prominent casting. Robert Benson will portray Falstaff in "Merry Wives," Holofernes in "Love's Labour's," and Sir Thomas Erpingham in "Henry." Suzanne d'Autremont will be seen as Katherine in "Henry." Earl Boen is to play Tybalt in "Romeo," Don Armado in "Love's Labour's," and the Dauphin in "Henry." Susan Dorlen has been cast as Lady Capulet in "Romeo" and Mrs. Page in "Merry Wives." William Gamble will be seen as Gregory in "Romeo," and Moth in "Love's Labour's."

John Gethood will be Friar Laurence in "Romeo" and Fluellen in "Henry." James Smith will enact the Chorus in "Romeo," Pistol in "Merry Wives," Longaville in "Love's Labour's," and Canterbury in "Henry." Richard Stern will appear as Romeo, Mercade in "Love's Labours," and Westmoreland in "Henry."

Directors for 1963 are Edward Brubaker, "Merry Wives"; Robert Loper, "Romeo"; Rod Alexander, "Love's Labour's"; and Jerry Turner, "Henry." The expanded 46-night season opens July 24 and plays nightly through Sept. 7.

Timber Bugs Fight Set

PORTLAND (UPI) — Herman J. Heikkenen, assistant professor of forest entomology at the University of Washington, has been hired by the Bureau of Land Management in an effort to beat the bugs to timber downed in Western Oregon during the Columbus Day windstorm last year.

Heikkenen of Seattle, will design and conduct a survey for BLM to evaluate trends in the population of the Douglas fir bark beetle.

Russell E. Getty, BLM director for Washington and Oregon, said dead and down timber provides excellent breeding grounds for the insect "to use as a springboard to epidemic proportions."

For this reason," Getty continued, "the BLM timber salvage program...has been geared to beat the bug."

About 1.5 billion board feet of timber was knocked down or damaged on BLM's 2.5 million acres of commercial timberlands in Western Oregon.

Excess Sugar Stock Ends

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"Excessive" stockpiling of sugar has set in, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The agency said that during the week ended June 8, the primary distributors—refiners, processors, and importers of refined sugar—sold only 134,571 tons. This was the lowest sale in a single week since February, and compared to 176,526 tons in the previous week and 211,869 tons in the corresponding week last year.

The sharp rise in the price of sugar during April and May was attributed primarily to the excessive buying which took place in anticipation of higher prices, the department said. The price of raw sugar has dropped substantially since reaching its peak on May 23.

Fraud Report

Of this amount $51,374 was collected for child support, and $3,502 in welfare fraud.
