No Candidate Receives Two-Thirds Majority

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Sacred College of Cardinals failed to elect a successor to Pope John XXIII this morning in their secret conclave.

A stream of black smoke from a chimney atop the Sistine Chapel, followed by an announcement by Vatican radio, told the world that no candidate had received the required two-thirds majority of the 80 cardinals participating in the election.

Vatican radio said the two morning ballots were unsuccessful.

Another round of voting was scheduled for the afternoon. Traditionally the cardinals vote four times a day until a candidate receives the necessary majority and is proclaimed the new leader of the Roman Catholic Church.

The 80 princes of the church—the largest group ever to participate in a papal election—were called to mass at 12:56 a.m. PDT prior to the voting.

Although in theory any Roman Catholic man of reasonable age can be elected, tradition of the last four centuries pointed to an Italian cardinal getting the nod. Informed speculation favored Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, 65, the archbishop of Milan who is a leader of the "liberal" faction of the sacred college. Montini was a close friend of Pope John and supported the late pontiff's revolutionary moves for church reform and Christian unity.

The balloting frequently deviates from advance predictions, however, and any one of a dozen other likely candidates could receive the honor.

One of the first tasks of the new pope will be to decide whether to carry on with the Ecumenical Council called by Pope John to promote his aims. The council was suspended automatically when John died June 3.

The conclave area was sealed off Wednesday night after the cardinals entered following a mass in St. Peter's in which inspiration was asked of the Holy Ghost.

The two empty thrones in the Sistine Chapel were for Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, 71, the Hungarian primate who has been in the U.S. Legation in Budapest since the Hungarian revolt was crushed in 1956, and Carlos Maria Cardinal de la Torre, of Quito, Ecuador, who is ill.

In addition to Cardinal Montini, the other leading candidates are:

Gregory Peter Cardinal Agagianian, 67, the Armenian who heads the church's missionary services; Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro, 71, the archbishop of Bologna; Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, 75, archbishop of Palermo; Giovanni Cardinal Urbani, 63, patriarch of Venice, and Carlo Cardinal Confaloniere, 69, a curia member.

Fight Looms Over Civil Rights Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's tough new civil rights program touched off in Congress today what promised to be one of the bitterest legislative battles in decades.

Not even the staunchest backers of the President's long-pronged approach to the boiling race crisis believed Congress would buy it anywhere near intact.

At first glance, some of the proposals he sent the House and Senate Wednesday appeared likely to be passed after only perfunctory polishing. Others, including some of the key items, looked as if they would be chewed to pieces.

As Congress dug in for the legislative battle, the White House announced that the President had invited 20 Negro and white "civil rights leaders" to meet with him Saturday. Included were the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., and Roy Wilkins, head of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

The Saturday session was seen as an effort by Kennedy to urge moderation on integrationist leaders while Congress considers his legislation. In his message Wednesday the President urged the Negro community to halt demonstrations that lead to violence.

Kennedy conferred at the White House Wednesday with 250 leading educators. He asked them to set up a committee that would work at the grass roots level to provide better schooling without racial barriers. Participants said there seemed to be general agreement to his request.

In Congress the initial reaction to the President's proposals was predictably strong. Southerners and some conservatives accused the President of giving in to mob rule and pledged to fight his program with every means at their disposal.

Southerners were so angry they threatened not only a filibuster but use of their long-held committee chairmanships to bottle up the rest of Kennedy's legislative program.

'Hot Line' Links U.S. With Soviet

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia signed an agreement today for the establishment of a "hot line" communications link between Washington and Moscow to reduce the risk of war by accident.

The historic accord was signed by U.S. Ambassador Charles Stille and Soviet Ambassador Semyon K. Tsarapkin, their nations' chief representatives at the 17-nation disarmament conference.

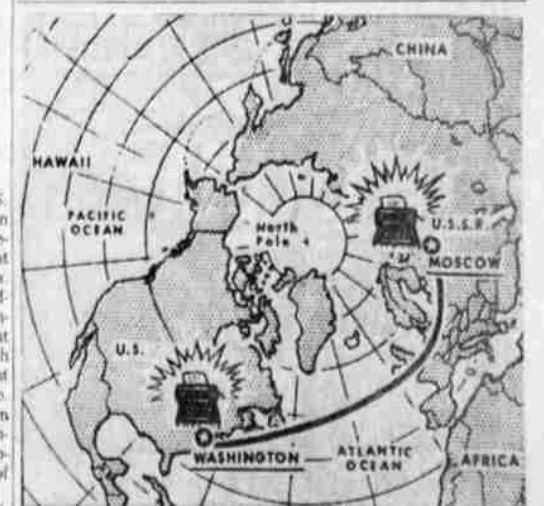

The arrangement calls for a "hot line" teletype link—meaning it will be open and operating 24 hours a day every day of the week—which will permit President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to confer immediately at any time.

Stille and Tsarapkin affixed their signatures to the agreement at the European headquarters of the United Nations, climaxing about two months of secret American-Soviet negotiations.

It was the first concrete accomplishment of the disarmament conference, which has been paralyzed since it began in March, 1962, by sharply-opposed Western and Communist aims.

The "hot line" will connect the Kremlin with the Pentagon and probably the White House by way of Helsinki, Stockholm and London.

Messages between Kennedy and Khrushchev will be simultaneously translated and coded under procedures worked out by technical experts from both sides.

HOT LINE ACTIVATED — The U.S. has announced signing of a "hot-line" accord with Moscow. This will activate a Washington-Moscow teletype link which will link President Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev. Washington hailed the accord as a step toward preventing accidental war. —UPI Telephoto

Commandos Reported Landing For War In Cuba

Pentagon Claims No Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said today that a check has produced "no confirmation" of reports that commandos of the Cuban Revolutionary Council have landed in Cuba in a war of liberation. The Pentagon also had no knowledge of the landings.

The announcement did not say how many men landed or whether they arrived by plane or boat. The date of their landing also was not specified.

But the council said: "The first reports received by radio from our forces state that the landings were carried out without difficulty and had the cooperation of all people in the area."

The council announcement added: "These commandos are adequately armed. They have penetrated Cuban territory."

"Tomorrow, at 1 p.m. EST, the military command of this force will make a broadcast on the 40-meter band on 7018 kilocycles reporting to Cuban exiles."

"The council announces that the war of liberation has begun and that its forces are prepared to carry the fight to the enemy."

The announcement was termed "war communique number one." It was signed by Jose Fernandez Badue, council member and commissioner of the information department.

Premier Fidel Castro, in a speech Tuesday, said that 14 counter-revolutionary bands have been smashed in recent weeks in Matanzas Province. There was no indication whether these alleged bands were affiliated with the Miami Revolutionary Council.

The council, which recently split with the Kennedy administration due to its crackdown on anti-Castro raider groups and apparent lack of a detailed policy to free Cuba from Communist control, was the overt sponsor of the ill-fated, American-conceived Pigs Bay invasion of April 17, 1961.

The president of the council, Antonio Maceo, could not be reached immediately.

But informed sources said the landings were carried out from a boat before dawn today. They said the basic objective of the debarcation was to "reinforce" rebels in Cuba.

"A large quantity of arms was put ashore and many of the men are experts in guerrilla warfare," one source said.

The expeditionary force came from "a point in the Caribbean," the source said.

Hope Seen Following Lumber Strike Meet

PORTLAND (UPI) — Exploratory meetings between the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (LSU) and various lumber firms continued here today after an announcement that the union will resume meetings with the 196-member Timber Operators Council Monday.

The LSW was to hold wage talks with Georgia Pacific Corp. today.

The union met Wednesday with Simpson Timber Co. A statement later called it a "brief exploratory meeting" and said further sessions are subject to call by either side.

"We feel that the meeting was useful and that progress was made," commented J. W. Farmer, Simpson labor relations administrator. He said the talks covered several points in addition to wages, but would not elaborate.

Officials of the other large Northwest lumber union, the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), sat in on the session. The IWA met with Simpson last week and has another session scheduled Tuesday.

Talks between both unions and representatives of the Timber Operators Council were discontinued June 4. That organization represents mills in the Douglas Fir belt from Northern California to southeastern Alaska.

Strikes by the two unions against St. Regis Paper Co. and U. S. Plywood Corp. and a retaliatory shutdown by Weyerhaeuser, International Paper, Rayonier and Crown Zellerbach have idled 19,000 workers in Oregon and Washington.

There was no indication that further talks are imminent between those groups. A hearing was scheduled today in Montana on a temporary injunction preventing the LSW from striking St. Regis subsidiary plants in Libby and Troy, Mont.

Most other firms in the Northwest are continuing to work under extensions of contracts which expired June 1.

Jean McNair, 15, rides a bay mare named Py-waket, which means in the Indian language, "No-good-mare," but really, Jean doesn't mean it, except perhaps when Py-waket misses a trick in barrel racing competition.

She will compete this year for queen of the Klamath Basin Junior Rodeo on July 20-21 with a ranch family background at Modoc Point where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McNair Jr., raise horses.

Jean will be a sophomore when September comes at Chillicothe High School, she swims in the chilly waters of Diamond Lake, is a member of the 4-H Wranglers, a horse group, loves horseback riding, baseball and bowling.

She is no novice at handling livestock, helps haul feed by truck, has a driver's permit and a dog named Tony. She is a member of the Girls' Athletic Association in high school, has three sisters and three brothers, has deep brown eyes, and short, dark hair.

Responsible for foods contests, Mrs. Hugh Whipple, Mrs. Wayne Yancy, Mrs. Porter Willis and Mrs. Arthur Rice, Mrs. Ralph Stearns Jr., and Mrs. Dorothy Fairfield will chairmen the various knitting events.

Under the direction of Mrs. Robert Kennedy and Mrs. Harold Campbell, members of the Henley Bakers Foods Club decorated for the fair. In charge of demonstrations are Mrs. Victor Hartell, Mrs. Bob Williams and Mrs. Robert Swafford. Exhibit watchers for the evening events are Mrs. Charles Burt and Mrs. Gray Brannan.

The talent show is chairmanned by Alvin Claydon.

In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

Russia's cosmonauts land safely—the gentleman on his 82nd orbit of the earth and the lady on her 49th. They stayed up longer than all the rest of the world's astronauts put together. Apparently they parachuted out of their space vehicles and came down safely on land.

The only mishap seems to have been a bruised nose on the lady's part.

These Russians! Meaning, of course, the common, everyday Russians and NOT their communist overlords. They work hard, they seem to have good minds—and, so far as is known, they pay their way as they go and put nothing on the cuff.

It might be just as well for us to keep an intelligently observant eye on them. Their communist system, of course, is too bunglesome and TOP-HEAVY to worry us much. But, in time, they might have the simple common sense to revolt and overthrow it and adopt the free enterprise way of life.

If they should— Well, in that event, keep an eye on them.

Poor old Britain. She's getting her lumps.

As if she didn't have troubles enough already. Prince Charlie, the 14-year-old heir to the British throne, faces a possible C.A.N.J.N.G because he nipped a cherry brandy in a Scottish pub.

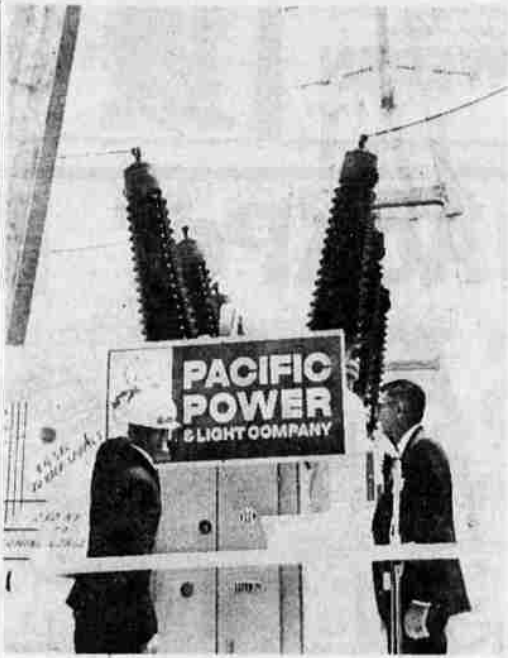

It happened like this: Gordonstoun, the strict and correct English school that Prince Charles attends, sent its private yacht, the Pinta, on a short cruise that included the Outer Hebrides Islands, which are Scottish.

The Pinta stopped at the island town of Stornoway, and the Prince and three companions went ashore, with the school bodyguard, to have dinner. The Prince eluded the stern-eyed bodyguard and went into the bar where he took a seat and ordered, and was served, a cherry brandy. At that awkward moment the bodyguard entered the bar and read to Prince Charlie what the reporters describe as "a very restrained riot act"—for heirs to the British throne are not supposed to do things like that.

The Prince pushed away from the bar and left for a steak and potatoes dinner in the hotel dining room.

What's to be done about it? Well, the school's headmaster, who arrived from the yacht about that time, says the Gordonstoun

NEW SUBSTATION DEDICATED — A new power transmission line of the Pacific Power and Light Company, providing an electrical link between the Rocky Mountain Power Pool and the Pacific Northwest Power Pool, was dedicated Tuesday at Rock Springs, Wyo. Here, Gov. Clifford P. Hansen of Wyoming, left, receives instructions on how to throw the switch from Russ Loefer, chief engineer for the Wyoming Division of PPL and a former resident of Klamath Falls for 38 years.

Former KF Residents Aid PPL Dedication

By FLOYD L. WYNNE

East met West amid the rocky plains of Wyoming Tuesday and Klamath Falls held the center of the stage for a time.

The occasion was the dedication of a 230,000 kilowatt power substation just outside the Wyoming town of Rock Springs. The facility of the Pacific Power and Light Company represents a significant link in the industrial development of the state of Wyoming.

Dedication services climaxed a four-day tour of the state of Wyoming by a group of newspaper, television and radio representatives from such East Coast points as New York and West Coast cities like San Francisco. Present also were representatives from Oregon.

Klamath Falls occupied the center of the stage by proxy. Robert Gordon, Wyoming Division chief for PPL, handled the dedication services at the substation and later at a luncheon. Gordon is a former Klamath Falls resident, and was a Copco official here.

Russ Loefer, chief engineer for PPL's Wyoming division, explained the workings of the new sub-station. Loefer spent 38 years in Klamath Falls and began working here with Copco, forerunner of the PPL group.

Gov. Clifford P. Hansen of Wyoming pushed the switch that energized this newest PPL facility, hailing it as an important step

NONA KATHRYN BREED

Contestant Good Artist

By RUTH KING

Beauty of a landscape, clouds floating, ocean spray against the rocks, and the shadow of a fern leaf on the waters of a brook, are caught with crayon and brush by blonde Nona Kathryn Breed, 16, who also aspires to be queen of the 1963 Klamath Falls Roundup.

Nona, with changeable blue-gray eyes and "music in her make-up," will ride Stockings, 15-year-old sorrel mare in competition for the senior rodeo queen for the queen tryouts at the fairgrounds Sunday afternoon, June 23.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Breed, is a high school senior, plays in the percussion section of the Klamath Union High School Band, clips a "mean runner" on smooth ice roller skates as well, is taking fourth-year Spanish.

Blonde Nona not only rides horses, she has three in 4-H, a Thoroughbred Lilly and two Arabians, a mare and filly she keeps records on the 4-H projects.

There are seven boys and girls in her family which means that every boy and girl has a job to do and does it.

A sister, Wanda, is a candidate for Junior Rodeo queen.

Research To Start In Forests

SALEM (UPI) — Heyden Newport Chemical Corp. will begin an 18-month research project in mid-July in the Deschutes, Winema and Fremont national forests.

Gov. Mark Hatfield announced today.

The corporation bought 2-million tons of pine stumps from the U.S. Forest Service earlier this year. The research and market application development activities will cost about $300,000.

"In conference with Harold E. Rose, executive vice president of Heyden Newport, I am convinced of the scientific approach the corporation is taking toward the complete utilization of the stump," Hatfield said. Crews will extract samples to run pilot programs in the laboratories. "Thorough research and analysis will be made before full scale operations are undertaken," the governor said.

The contract with the Forest Service calls for Heyden Newport to begin building a plant by the end of 1966.

"If the research proves satisfactory this project can mean a significant breakthrough in the economy of Oregon," Hatfield said.

"We are fortunate that preliminary steps are being taken to assure a solid base for productivity rather than proceeding without sufficient data and evidence. We welcome the corporation's presence in Oregon," the governor said.

The expeditionary force came from "a point in the Caribbean," the source said.

FUTURE 4-H CLUB MEMBER? — Barbara Breezeale, almost 2 years old, wondered about all the fuss out at the Klamath County Fairgrounds when preparations were made for opening of the annual 4-H Club Spring Fair Thursday. Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Breezeale, Route 1, Box 926D. Piggy banks were made by John Atchley, Sprague River, from discarded plastic bottles used for bleach, ammonia and other liquids.
