Lose Sure Ones Soon

By OSWALD JACOBY

The loser-on-loser play keeps cropping up in bridge games. The general theory of the play is that if you have a sure loser, lose it early rather than late. South was tempted to go to six clubs after North jumped to five, but South remembered that he had opened and jumped with only 13 high card points. Thus, discretion was the better part of his valor.

One look at dummy showed South that he could make six if diamonds broke and if East held the ace of hearts. A second look disclosed that South had better forget six and concentrate on winning the game and rubber. South ruffed the first spade high. He could afford this since all his trumps were equal. Then he entered dummy with the ten of trumps, ruffed a second spade, returned to dummy with the nine of trumps, ruffed the last spade and started on the diamond suit.

When East showed out on the third diamond South was ready for the loser-on-loser play. He led dummy's deuce of diamonds and discarded a low heart. He had to lose that heart eventually.

This put West in the lead and West could do nothing. A fourth spade lead would allow South to ruff in dummy and discard another heart, a heart lead would establish South's king.

Q—The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 N.T.	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

You, South, hold:
♠ A Q 8 5 ♥ K 10 3 ♦ A Q 2 ♣ A 6 5

What do you do?
A—Pass. You have the same 19 points you have shown and in addition your king of hearts is likely to be facing a singleton.

TODAY'S QUESTION

See top cowboys from every point in the nation; famous clowns and other acts plus many city-wide attractions during the big 3-day event. It's a family affair so put it in your list right now!

See bull riding, one of the round-up's most injury laden events. Here a cowboy heads for a crash landing after losing his grip on the braided rope nosed behind the bull's shoulders, the only hold he has to weather the stormy action.

IN KLAMATH FALLS
BUFFALO SCRAMBLE

Here's an event said to be worth the price of the entire show alone. Just imagine! All chutes open at one time with a mean Buffalo springing out of each one with a cowboy on his back. One of the most dangerous features of the show as any downed rider is apt to find almost a ton of meat-on-the-hoof on his back at any moment. Get set for this one.
