

Shrine Circus To Stage Acts For Young And Old

The Shrine Circus is coming to town. The Klamath Falls Shrine Club will present the 15th annual Shrine Circus Aug. 2-3 at the Klamath County Fairgrounds with two performances daily.

As in the past, underprivileged children in the Klamath Basin will be guests of the Shrine Club, business and professional people.

There will be acts for everyone who loves a circus, those who go for thrills and chills, or to laugh at the silly clowns, those who enjoy animal acts and those who admire the beautiful women performers. They will all be found in the sensational new 1963 Polack Brothers Circus.

Pat Anthony's lions and tigers, generally acknowledged to be the largest mixed group of wild animals now appearing in any circus are handled by the intrepid Pat who has his hands full at every performance. Among the more spectacular thrills is a lion and a tiger doing a lightning-fast series of roll-overs.

Aerial stars lured to America from top European circuses, include the lovely Maryse Begay from France; Miss Ma Ho Pin, Chinese beauty from Germany, and the international duo, the Clamars.

Watkins chimpanzees, the "charming" Besalou elephants, Cristian's Doberman Pinschers and Cline's Russian Wolfhounds and Pomeranians are among other stellar animal attractions that will be on the program.

The Cycling Therons, returning triumphantly to America, will thrill all ages. The Dorchester,

KF Man Back From Alaska

TULELAKE—A Klamath Falls man, Norman Parker, affiliated with Oregon Agricultural Chemicals of Tulelake, recently returned from an extended trip to Alaska where the company works actively with utility firms, railroads and other business groups in the control of weeds, bugs and plant diseases.

During his June trip north, he trained the Alaska Railroad crew in control, worked with the Chugach and Matanuska Electric companies spraying rights-of-way to destroy brush and was in the Matanuska Valley to advise on control of aquatic weeds in lakes; with the Department of Aviation (national defense) in Anchorage which maintains the early warning lines, worked with the Alaska Fish and Game Commission and the U.S. Fish and Game Commission and Forestry Service and other groups. OAC is supplying chemicals on contract this year for GSA.

His itinerary included Anchorage, Seward, Fairbanks, Juneau, Ketchikan and rural communities. He made the trip by air and railway.

Parker is the son of Mrs. Marguerite Parker, Klamath Falls. He found Alaskans concerned this year more than usual about budgets and taxes, that unemployment in the 50th state seems on the increase but that progress is being made in development of the country. Natural gas has been discovered on the Kenai Peninsula and the oil fields near Seward are developing income. Anchorage, Parker reported, is expanding rapidly, now approaches 100,000 population without the military personnel. Juneau, the capital, is growing more slowly and Ketchikan and Fairbanks are static in comparison with other cities.

Club Names Delegate

CHILOQUIN — Micki Wolff, a senior at Chilquin High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wolff, has been named as the Horizon Club delegate from the Klamath Council of Camp Fire Girls to the triennial conference to be held in November in San Francisco.

Some 200 teen-age girls from across the nation will meet at the conference, which will be held simultaneously with a national board meeting and conference for adults in Camp Fire, Delbra Kennedy and Elizabeth Ough of Klamath Falls were named as first and second alternates.

Mrs. Wolff will attend the conference as the regional representative from Klamath Council, the Camp Fire Girls adult board, and as a member of the national council, a position to which she was elected a year ago last spring in Spokane and again this spring at a five-state conference in Richland, Wash.

At the last triennial conference, the Golden Jubilee Convention held in November, 1960, in New York City, Micki's older sister, Cherry Wolff, was the delegate from the county.
