

Truck Owners Given Heavy Fines

One logger was charged an excessive fine for operating an overloaded logging truck during the period from May 16 to June 24, when a new schedule of fines covering such violations went into effect unknown to most district court judges throughout the state, the Herald and News learned Wednesday.

District Judge Robert B. Kerr said that a number of truckers had been fined for overloads during the period but only one of them was fined at a rate higher than specified on the new schedule.

The old fine list became void May 16 when it was superseded by House Bill 1292. The new law cuts fines for log overloads about half in most cases, except for those at the upper limits of the new schedule which are greater than the old penalties.

In the instance cited by Judge Kerr, the teamster was fined $25 when under the new schedule the penalty should have been $10. The $15 overcharge is being refunded to the party who paid the fine, the judge said.

The local district court and most similar courts throughout the state had been using the old schedule since May 16, due to an oversight at the state government level. On that date the bill became law when it was signed by Gov. Mark Hatfield, but no one bothered to inform the district judges throughout the state. The bill contained an emergency clause which put it into immediate effect when signed by the governor.
