Court Sets Trial Date For 2 Men

Wilbur Hixon, 42, and Perry Chocktoot, 30, each serving six and one-half year prison terms in the state penitentiary for acting in complicity in the theft of two horses, have been returned from the state penitentiary to the Klamath County Jail to appear at a hearing for a new trial set for July 1 in circuit court.

Earlier this year, Hixon and Chocktoot were indicted by the grand jury for the larceny of two horses belonging to a Beatty rancher. They were convicted by a circuit court jury June 9 and June 12 were sentenced to the prison terms at the penitentiary.

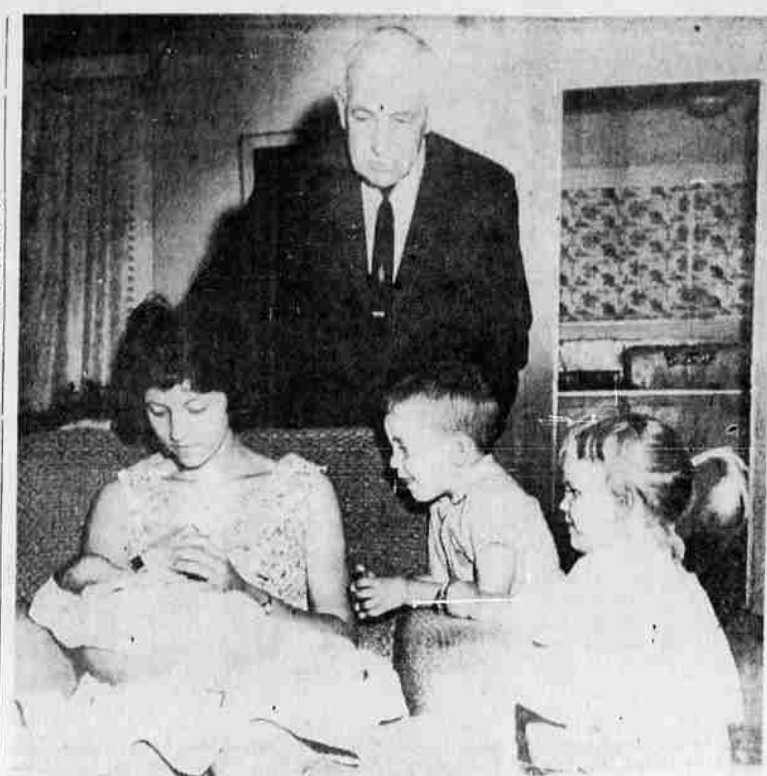

The attorney for the two men states four reasons why his clients should be allowed a new trial. First, he charges that the district attorney improperly made mention of the criminal records of the two defendants.

Second, the district attorney improperly argued to the jury concerning the failure of the co-defendant, Chocktoot, to allow his wife to testify, which right is guaranteed by the laws of this state, the motion states.

The request states further that the district attorney improperly referred to a statement given by a witness, Robert Huitt, and marked for identification an exhibit for the state that was not admitted into evidence.

Finally, the district attorney improperly made reference to the "failure of the state's witness, Robert Huitt, to testify by his seeking immunity under the provisions of the fifth amendment."

As a further reason for the granting of a new trial, the motion states that Judge David Vandenberg "failed to give certain instructions" to the jury, as requested by the defense attorney. The failure to do so affected the rights of the defendants to a fair trial, it declared further.

MOTHER'S HELPER — Donna Graham, 17, has summer employment in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Allen, where a new daughter joined two brothers and a sister on June 7. Donna, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Graham of 1760 Summers Lane, registered at the Oregon State Employment Office for work and was placed one day later. Donna is holding infant Rollene, watched by brother Richard, 3, sister Renee, 2, and rear, Julius Guintoni, employment interviewer. A fourth child in the family, Robert, 1, was asleep. Allen, a lumber company employee, heads the committee of representative groups, which is assisting in coordinating employers and young people in need of work.

State Defense Fund Shaky

SALEM (UPI) — Federal funds state agency would be denied federal funds also said funds had been approved for five counties "subject to the submission and approval of a revised state program."

One requirement that must be stated in the resubmission is the state's intent to administer the approved county programs," Ralls said.

Sandstrom said the final decision on whether the state would supervise the county programs would be made by Hatfield "sometime next week."

He said he would call the five counties "to determine what it means to them if we do not administer the program for them."

Matching funds were approved for Benton, Linn, Umatilla, Polk and Washington counties, with the condition that the state provide supervision.

In addition, Polk and Washington counties were told "if their performance... is not improved" before the next year, they would be denied further federal aid.

Sandstrom said he talked to Benton County authorities, and was told loss of federal matching funds would amount to about $2,900.

No mention was made in Ralls' report of any funds for Multnomah County, or the city of Portland. They are dropping civil defense July 1.

Sandstrom said some counties would not make a decision on whether to drop civil defense until today, the last business day of the current fiscal year. He said in addition to Portland and Multnomah County, Klamath, Lincoln, Deschutes and Lane counties have already decided to drop or reduce civil defense budgets.

State Supreme Court Declares Forest Fire Tax Constitutional

The one cent per acre forest fire protection tax levied against some lands in Eastern Oregon has been declared constitutional by the State Supreme Court.

The tax is assessed on grazing land and does not include forest lands which has a higher tax levy, the Klamath Forest Protective Association at Klamath Falls reported Friday.

The validity of the tax was tested in an appeal by Robert Sproul and J. F. Walton both of Grant County; they argued that it was unconstitutional because assessments were not made on the basis of true cash value, as required by the constitution.

But the court ruled that the tax came under the state's police power of protecting public health, welfare and safety, and not its taxing power.

The court said, "The constitutional provision requiring uniformity of taxation does not restrict the state in its exercise of the police power as distinguished from its taxing power."

"The primary purpose is not to raise revenue but to directly promote the public welfare. The one cent per acre levy was solely for fire protection," it said further.

The court said that the state can serve to benefit the public welfare either by regulation or by applying its taxing power to all of the people and property of the state.

The constitutional limitation of equal application of taxes must be observed, the court cited. But it concluded that if the state decides to use regulation to protect the public welfare, the costs of such regulation may be assessed on the people and property affected by the regulation.

4 Officers Charged

"youth was in jail." If Gallagher was in jail, the district attorney said he had no knowledge of why the youth was there.

The lawsuit states specifically how each of the four defendants allegedly contributed to Gallagher's being detained in jail "without any legal right."

The complaint states that Webster "had Gallagher transferred to the Klamath County Jail by Youngblood" and reports further that sometime later he interviewed the plaintiff in jail and reported his detention to the district attorney. Therefore, the suit charges, Webster and Crabtree "knew or should have known that this plaintiff was detained in complete absence of his right and was falsely imprisoned."

It charges further that Sheriff Britton knew "at all times that the plaintiff was held and knew or should have known that he was held without any legal process or rights being afforded to him."

It resumes: The sheriff continued "to hold the plaintiff in complete absence of his legal rights."

The complaint also cites that Youngblood "knew he transferred and lodged Gallagher in the county jail without making any arrest or charge and that by virtue of his knowledge the sheriff also knew that the youth was being held without being arrested or charged."
