Blank Suit Complicates

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You should never use Blackwood when you are void in a suit. But what do you do when your partner uses Blackwood and you are void somewhere?

The approved procedure is to jump right to six in the suit that shows the exact number of aces you hold unless you are afraid that your void suit is one in which your partner is strong. In that case you merely show how many aces you hold.

North's jump to six hearts showed two aces and a void suit. South assumed that the void suit would be clubs. It did not seem likely that it would be diamonds and obviously it wasn't spades.

A conservative South would probably have settled for the small slam on the theory that if East held the club ace there would be no real play for seven, but this particular South was an optimist. He believed that aces were always where they should be in this best of all possible worlds so South went right to seven hearts.

He did not like it when the king of diamonds was opened, but everything worked out nicely.

South took dummy's ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond high, led a heart to dummy's eight, ruffed another diamond high, led the king of clubs to see if the ace would cover and ruffed with the deuce of trumps after West played low, ruffed dummy's last diamond high, led his last trump overtaking in dummy, cashed dummy's last trump and paused while East considered a discard.

At this point East was in a squeeze. He was down to six cards and had to jettison a spade in order to hang on to the ace of clubs. This made all dummy's spades good and gave South his slam.

British Lord Faces Trial In Scandal

LONDON (UPI)—Lord William Waldorf (Bill) Astor, named in the prostitution trial of Stephen Ward, is the head of one of Britain's most influential families, descended from a millionaire New York property owner.

His uncle, Col. John Jacob Astor, First Baron of Hever, is chief proprietor of the London Times and his brother, the Honorable David, is editor of the Sunday Observer.

The 55-year-old "Bill" Astor is the son of the second viscount and his dynamic wife, Lady Nancy Astor, who was born in an American stately home of Mirador at Greenwood, Va., is daughter of the late Chiswell Dabney Langborne.

Lady Astor became the first woman member of Parliament ever to sit in the British House of Commons. Despite the fact she divorced her first husband, American Robert Shaw in 1903, she campaigned fiercely against divorce in the British Parliament.

"Bill" Astor himself, educated at Eton and Oxford, has been married three times. The first marriage in 1945 was dissolved in 1953 and the second marriage in 1955 was dissolved in 1960.

The current Lady Astor, whom Lord "Bill" married in 1960 is young and beautiful former top model Bronwen Pugh, daughter of Judge Sir Alan Pugh.

The Astor who installed the family in England before World War One was Lord "Bill's" grandfather, William Waldorf Astor.

He inherited a fortune from John Jacob Astor, a butcher's son from Walldorf, Germany, who emigrated to America. John Jacob made his start by trading furs among the Indians.

Doctor Gives Approval To Regulation Of Drugs

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dr. Frances O. Kelsey, the government drug expert credited with averting a thalidomide tragedy in the United States, said today that stiffer drug regulations passed this year by Congress have not stifled research.

Dr. Kelsey, in a speech prepared for delivery to a drug conference sponsored by the Commission on Drug Safety, said suggestions that the new regulations provide an "unsurmountable barrier to those engaged in pure research" come from a misunderstanding or misinterpretation of the laws.

"When a well-qualified investigator with adequate research facilities wishes to perform an experiment, all that we need is a simple statement of what he wants to do with information showing that the experiment is safe in his hands," the chief of the Food and Drug Administration's investigational drug branch said.

She said that only two investigational drugs have been recalled.

Dr. Miller E. Cooper, Klamath Falls dentist, has returned from San Francisco where he had major back surgery on June 11. He was taken to and from San Francisco by Peace Ambulance, Felix Peace was accompanied by Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Peace.

Dr. Cooper was in Hillside Hospital for treatment for a month and at home for two weeks before making the trip south. He will be confined to bed here for some time but will welcome visitors.

by her department since the new regulations went into effect.

Boisjoulit Jones, special assistant to the secretary of health, education and welfare, said Thursday night the safety regulations would be modified if they become a "bottleneck to the development of new drugs beneficial to mankind."

Jones acknowledged there was some scientific concern that the regulations would impose undue restrictions on the freedom of investigators.

"No drug administered by a physician or otherwise available to an individual is without some risk," he said. The new regulations, he said, maintain a "proper balance between risk and benefit in the development of drugs."

"Even though the new regulations will not necessarily assure against another thalidomide incident, they will at least minimize the possibilities and will guard against loose practices in the investigation of new drugs involving humans," he said.
