

Increase Noted In Visits To Lava Monument

Superintendent Irvin Kerr reported that despite wetter than normal spring weather, total visits to the Lava Beds National Monument during the first six months of 1963 were 15 per cent greater than during the same period in 1962.

Kerr said that 22,928 people in

Crosby Wife Gets Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Sandra Jo Crosby, 25, obtained an uncontested divorce Tuesday from Phillip Lang Crosby, 29, son of crooner Bing Crosby.

Only four minutes testimony was taken.

Under terms of a property settlement agreement, Crosby—twice of Dennis—must pay $1,000 monthly alimony for five years, $300 a month support for the couple's two children, Dixie Lee, 4, and Brian Patrick, 3, and 10 per cent of his personal earnings over $15,000 a year.

Mrs. Crosby, a former Las Vegas show girl, told the court her husband stayed away from the family home for three and four days at a time.

The couple was married at Las Vegas in September of 1958 and separated last December.

TOURIST SEASON — Luxury liners, tied in at Manhattan piers, emphasize that the peak of the mid-summer European tourist season is here. Passenger steamship line executives are ecstatic over what they term a new record for profitable trans-Atlantic sailings at capacity.

Girl Scout Camp Registration Open

Juniper Council Girl Scouts and other girls who are interested in the scouting program are eligible to register for Camp Esther Apple.

The camp program will include swimming, with an opportunity to earn a Red Cross achievement card; boating, with emphasis on the basic oaring; the camp session, scheduled July 24-Aug. 4 inclusive, and shouldcraft, teaching fire building and the use and care of campcraft equipment.

Nature study, in which the girls will learn to identify trees, flowers, and edible woodland foods, will be another feature of the camp program. Special activities will be horseback riding and a hayride. At the handcraft sessions, the campers will learn to make name tags, lanyards, shepherds pipes, and numerous items from nature materials.

For further information contact the Girl Scout Office.

Age-Old Indian Ceremonies To Be Presented

The age-old ceremonies, dances, sports and stories of the heritage of the American Indian will be again presented in new ways during the All-American Indian Days, Aug. 2, 3 and 4, at Sheridan, Wyo.

Miss Indian America Ramona Edith Soto of Klamath Falls, whose spectacular reign will close with the crowning of a new Miss Indian America during the festivities, will crown the new ruler of all Indian tribes. Indian girls from some 70 tribes are expected to compete for the honor.

The girls are judged not only on their beauty, but poise, character, Indian characteristics, education and dedication to their own people. Ramona returned to Klamath Falls from a speaking tour in the East, South and Midwest to ride in the Fourth of July parade. She leaves July 10 for Sheridan to prepare for the All-American Indian Days spectacle.

Blood Donor Appeal Out

MOUNT SHASTA — William Smith, administrator for the Mount Shasta Community Hospital, has sent out an appeal for blood donors.

He said all demands for unexpected blood transfusions are directed here, as Mount Shasta has the only hospital facilities between Redding and Yreka.

The blood bank makes a local stop the third Tuesday of each month for pick-ups. On July 16, the bank will be open from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. to receive donations.

inspect the Indian Village and the teepees and to visit with the Indian people.

On the program will be the impressive Pageant of the Plains, an age-old ceremonial, and the traditional Sunday morning, interracial, interdenominational religious observance. Indian and white choirs, Indian soloists and Indian and white clergymen will participate.

Past audiences have filled the 5,000 seats in the grandstand. Those who have attended the service in past years have pronounced it an unforgettable experience. There is no admission charge.

Two Firms In Merger

PORTLAND (UPI) — Northwest Industries, Inc., of Albany Tuesday announced purchase of Product Engineering Co. of Portland in a move that combines two of the Northwest's major producers of industrial components.

No purchase price was announced.

Northwest Industries specializes in fabrication of corrosive-resistant, refractory and reactive metals for use in the chemical, aerospace and pulp and paper industries. Product Engineering is the largest die casting firm in the Northwest.

President Charles W. McCormack of Northwest Industries said the Portland firm will be operated as a subsidiary and will be expanded in the fields of custom die casting, plastic molding and die making.

HORSES

Wild horses roamed America at least 15,000 years ago, but they became extinct. Spanish conquistadors re-introduced the animal to the continent.

UNDAUNTED

After amputation of her leg in 1915, Sarah Bernhardt learned to walk on an artificial limb and continued her stage career until shortly before her death in 1923.

We've bottled the Short Beer.

How does it measure up?

Our new "short beer in a bottle" is pretty small. Stands only a little over 5 inches tall, even with its cap on.

Contains only 7 ounces, not a drop more. Barely enough to fill a glass—head and all.

You'll probably chuckle the first time you see it, but when you stop to consider, this small size is pretty handy to have around the house.

It chases things.

Back in the old days of the West, a lot of men felt that the only decent chaser was the "short beer."

There are still a lot of Westerners who feel this way. And smooth, light Rainier is the ideal beer to carry on this fine old tradition.

Something for the girls.

A few gals have been overheard referring to our new 7-ounce bottle as "cute."

Although we do not condone such language, we do feel that this is a very practical size for women-folk.

Some gals like an occasional beer, but not too much. With our new size, no waste.

And because there's less to drink, there's less chance for the last few ounces to warm up.

Quenches small thirsts.

There are times when a man doesn't have time to drink a full 11 or 16 ounces.

There are times when he wants a small glass of beer—and that's all he wants.

In both cases, the new 7-ounce bottle fills the bill.

Not six, but eight.

Our new size is too small for a 6-pack, so we put it up in 8-packs.

Why not try a pack soon?

After you've finished it, we think you'll agree that we've put a lot in that small package.

In the no-deposit, no-return bottle: Rainier Beer
