THE WORLD IN FOCUS

COOL SUMMER—Cropped sleeveless camisole top will keep the summer full of breeze for this young girl in New York. Dress is of linen-look rayon.

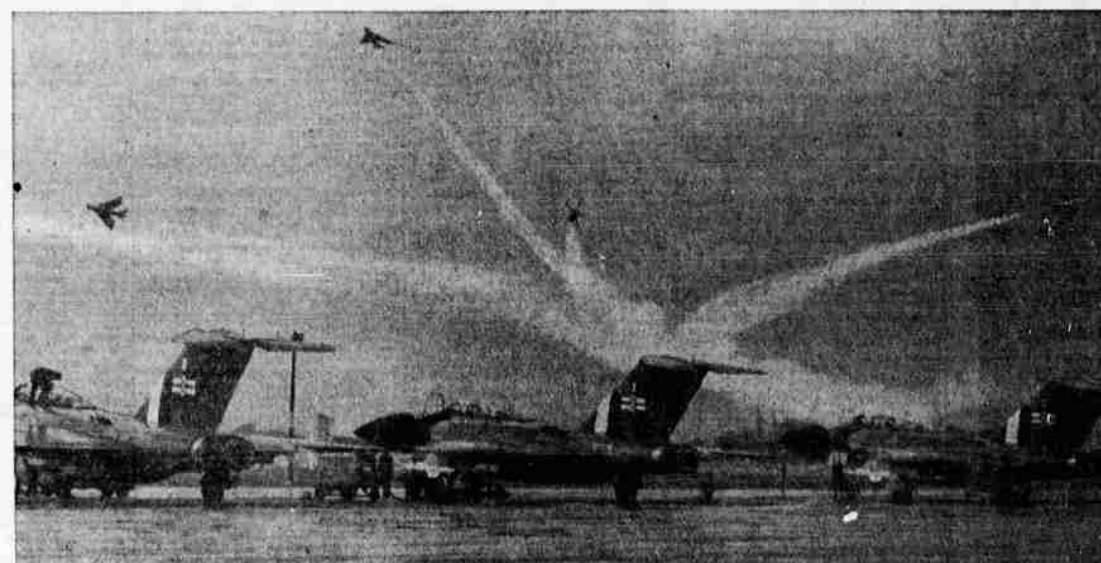

CAVALRY COLORS—Queen Elizabeth II, center, looks serious as she was pictured during the Horse Guards Parade ceremony in London when she presented new colors to the household cavalry—the Life Guards and the Royal Horse Guards.

NO PLACE TO HIDE—It would seem that Dick Grinnell, of Rochester, N.Y., is playing the ostrich, but he's just checking his tuba for possible obstructions.

IN THE SWIM—Before taking a dip at Florida's Silver Springs, Libby Baker, a junior at Florida U. in Gainesville, poses with a high carriage wheel.

JET BURST—Forming an impressive bursting pattern over an air field in Ipswich, England, five British jet fighters practice an "aerobatic" routine. They'll soon be thrilling spectators with their daredevil flying.

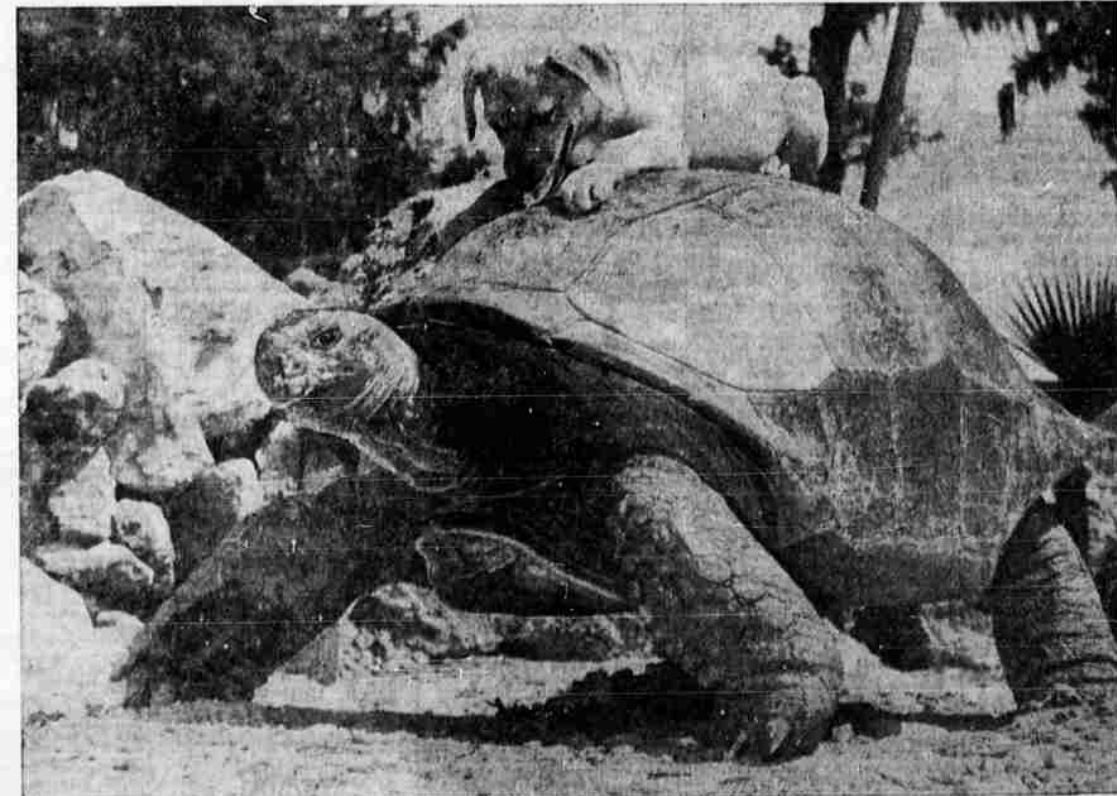

HITCH SWITCH—This strange arrangement of transportation was managed by Noel White when he needed a hitch for his race car. He bought the old ambulance, fitted his car neatly in place and traveled from his home in Hyattsville, Md., to various East Coast races. To unload, he just backs the race car out.

SWISS MISS—These sheep seem undisturbed as an unexpected guest drops in on them in Switzerland.

LIGHT HEAT—The world's most powerful continuous beam of light burns through a steel frying pan held by Pittsburgh, Pa., research engineer L. S. Front. The powerful beam will be used to simulate re-entry from space.

LEAVE THE DRIVING TO HIM—Borrowing the large shell of his big friend, Jo Jo the pup hitchhikes a ride along the sandy grounds at Florida's Reptile Institute. The turtle doesn't seem to mind the company.
