Picture Taking One Of Top Motivations

By DICK WEST

BIRD-IN-HAND, Pa. (UPI) — Picture taking has come to be regarded as one of mankind's four fundamental motivations, ranking just behind eating, sleeping and sex.

In some precincts, it has forged ahead of sex.

The snapshot urge shows up most strongly in the American tourist, who can be instantly identified by the camera that dangles from a strap around his neck.

The camera is his badge, his escutcheon, his caste mark, his elk's tooth, his security symbol. He feels it is a part of him, and eventually it will be.

It is only a question of time until the process of evaluation incorporates this function into the bodily mechanism and each person will be born with a camera growing out of his chest.

Cultivated Interest

I cultivated an interest in the anthropological aspects of amateur photography during many years of observing tourists in Washington, D.C., where I work.

The tourists there are fond of standing in the middle of the street to snap pictures of monuments and such. In driving to the capital each morning, I usually arrived with at least one tourist draped over a front fender. The bag limit is four.

It was my interest in the subject that brought me to Bird-in-Hand. This village in the heart of the Pennsylvania Dutch country is the scene of an interesting conflict between the tourist and the Amish.

The Amish are one of the groups of "Plain People" that inhabit Lancaster County. For religious reasons they still use the horse-and-buggy, wear old-fashioned clothes, shun telephones and electricity, and otherwise try to keep their homes insulated from the outside world.

Prime Tourist Attraction

All of this naturally has made them a prime tourist attraction.

Being gentle, passive people, the Amish have refrained from driving away the tourist with buckshot, as they might be justified in doing. Insofar as possible, they try to ignore the invasion.

It is, however, against their religion to permit themselves to be photographed, and a tourist with a camera is not easily ignored.

This has been created the classic case of an irresistible force—

It is, however, against their religion to permit themselves to be photographed, and a tourist with a camera is not easily ignored.

This has been created the classic case of an irresistible force—

(tourist with camera) confronted with an irresistible subject (the picturesque Amish).

I would like to report that the tourist has at last met his match and is being compelled to retire from the field with shutter un-snapped and film unexposed.

But the Amish are vulnerable to long-range lens and there are signs that camera shyness is abating in the younger generation. As they say in Latin, "E pluribus unum."

End Sought

To Abuses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The council of the Organization of American States (OAS) has asked the Haitian regime of President Francois Duvalier to end civil rights abuses and grant safe-conduct passes to political refugees in the republic.

The council's appeal, published Tuesday, was based on a report by a five-nation commission that investigated the Haitian-Dominican republic dispute last May.

Hemorrhoids Cured Painlessly By Non-Surgical Method

The non-surgical, electronic method for treatment of Hemorrhoids (Piles) developed by doctors of the Beal-Oliver Sandy Blvd. Clinic has been so successful and permanent in nature that the following policy is offered their patients: "After all symptoms of Hemorrhoids... have subsided and the patient has been discharged, if he should ever have a recurrence, all further treatments will be given without additional fee."

Patients experience little, if any pain. Their treatment requires no hospitalization and does not employ drugs or injections.

Goldwater Backers View Rockefeller In Contest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The camp of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., today viewed Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's attack on the "radical right" as notice that Rockefeller is a presidential candidate.

The New York governor's statement also was considered in some quarters as the forerunner of a stop-Goldwater movement by other presidential hopefuls in the Republican party.

A spokesman for Goldwater Monday night quoted the Arizona conservative as saying the Rockefeller statement amounted to the governor's "formal declaration of candidacy" for the GOP nomination.

Although Goldwater has never acknowledged that he is a presidential aspirant himself, his stock has boomed in recent months following Rockefeller's remarriage to a divorced woman.

Political observers speculated that Rockefeller felt he was losing ground in the presidential race and sought to regain leadership by his attack on groups supporting Goldwater.

Newsmagazine said Monday the Rockefeller statement was part of a concerted drive to block Goldwater's nomination by forming a coalition of Republicans supporting the New York governor, Michigan Gov. George Romney and Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton.

In a statement in Albany Sunday, Rockefeller lashed out at the "radical right lunatic branch" and said the Republican party was in "real danger of subversion" by that group.

He underscored that statement Monday night when he expressed fears that Goldwater will become a "captive" candidate of the GOP's extreme right wing.

Rockefeller, whose remarks obviously were directed at some vocal backers of Goldwater, is expected to renew the attack at the governors' conference in Miami Beach next week.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating R-N.Y., a Rockefeller supporter, followed up the governor's latest attack by calling on Goldwater Monday to repudiate the John Birch Society and "crackpot elements" backing him.
