Million Just Not Same As Before

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — It seems like only yesterday, or maybe last Tuesday, that kindly statisticians were trying to help us understand a million dollars. It was commonly supposed that a million dollars was too large a sum for us to comprehend all by ourselves, so these statisticians would undertake to explain it in terms we could grasp. I don't recall the exact dimensions of a million dollars, but the analogies they used went something like this:

A million dollars laid end to end would reach from Hominy Falls, W.Va., to Grit, Tex., or if placed one on top of the other would form a stack five miles higher than a giraffe on tiptoes.

Not Much Help
I'm sure they meant well, but, frankly, these comparisons were never of much help to me in comprehending a million bucks. Whenever I tried to get a mental picture of dollar bills stretched out from Hominy Falls to Grit, my mind would take a wrong turn on the outskirts of Chili, Wis.

Perhaps if they had used $5 bills, or had placed the dollar bills side by side rather than end to end, I could have grasped it. But I doubt it.

At any rate, I have gone through life without having a very firm concept of a million dollars. And now I learn that I am hopelessly behind the times. In a press release issued this week, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, a Washington Republican and statistician, endeavors to help us understand a billion dollars.

Apparently someone raised the ante while I was trying to find my way back from Hominy Falls.

Almost Innumerable
Pelly wrote that no one "is capable of conveying in ordinary, simple and understandable and graphic words just how immense, how almost unmeasurably vast is a billion dollars."

Nevertheless, this did not deter him from giving it a go. As one illustration, Pelly noted that "with one billion dollars you could buy 500,000 new automobiles each costing $2,000."

Maybe so, but you would need an awfully big garage.

Placed bumper to bumper these cars would extend 1,562 miles, about the distance from Cleveland, Ohio, to Salt Lake City, Utah," Pelly continued.

On that point, at least, he speaks my language. I can readily visualize a traffic jam stretching from Ohio to Utah even if I can't envision a million dollars end to end.

"One billion dollars in dollar bills would cover a building lot that is 51 feet wide and 219 feet long — a little more than a quarter acre — to a depth of 3 feet, 7 inches," Pelly added.

That might not be a bad idea. We could use it as a parking lot for some of those 500,000 cars.

Livestock Day Slated

TULELAKE—The what's and how's of showing and judging beef, sheep, swine, and horses will be explained to Tulelake's 4-H members Friday, July 19. The occasion is the annual 4-H livestock field day to be held at the Tulelake-Butte Valley Fairgrounds beginning at 10 a.m.

The program is designed to give all members an opportunity to handle each class of stock. Boys and girls will also judge each type of livestock with trophies going to the top scorers of beef, sheep, swine and horses.

Four-H leaders and junior leaders will conduct the training and other activities of the event. The responsibilities are divided among Tulelake's five 4-H clubs as follows: Cascade — judging; Lava Beds — beef; 49ers — horses; Toilers — hogs; and Stronghold — sheep.

This program is part of the 4-H activities planned by the Tulelake Basin 4-H Leaders Council and the Modoc County Farm Adviser's Office.
