

Worry Over Cancer Can Bury People

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Our daughter is 33 years old, happily married, with four bright children. She has a beautiful home, and everything to live for.

Her husband, her father and I are worried to death about her excessive smoking. She has been a heavy smoker since she was a teenager. Although she knew I never approved, she continued to smoke through the years.

Several months ago she was spitting up blood. She quit smoking and went to the doctor. When the X-rays showed no sign of cancer she went back to smoking two packs a day although the doctor advised her against it.

I'm so afraid she will develop cancer that it's making a nervous wreck out of me. She says she has smoked so long now that if she's going to get cancer she will get it. Period. What can I say to this head-strong girl?

WORRIED MOTHER
Dear Mother: Probably nothing. Anyone who can read or hear knows by now that there is a definite link between lung cancer and cigarettes. Scientific research continues to churn up more and more damning evidence.

Not everyone who smokes will get lung cancer, obviously, and your daughter may escape it. But worrying has been known to bury people prematurely, so try to get your mind off her smoking and on something else.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter describing the prom committee system which insures all girls a date to the Junior-Senior Prom was the greatest. I'm going to take it up with our student council in September.

I happen to be a girl who never was short of dates, but I know some awfully nice girls who sit home all the time because they don't have sex appeal. Fellow wouldn't even bother to ask them out and get to know how great they really are.

Thanks for printing that one, Ann. It was tops.—JILL

Dear Jill: I'm glad you wrote. Here's another point of view: Dear Ann Landers: That letter about the prom committee serving as matchmakers was a real roar.

I'd rather sit home until my hair turned white and my teeth fell out than get fixed up by a stupid committee.

Who wants to be chosen out of pity? Not me.—SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS

Dear Spirit: I'll bet anything you don't do much sittin' home. Toos. It's difficult for a busy girl to imagine what life is like for the ones whose phones never ring.

In the meantime, if it takes a committee to get some of the fellows out their rusty dusties, I say why not?

Confidential to My Right to Know: Yeah? Who gave you the right? When I form a "Mind Your Own Business Club" I'm going to nominate you for president.

Confidential to SCARED TO DEATH: Tell your mother at once. Do not try the drug your friend recommended. It is extremely dangerous and furthermore it won't work.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secret Documents Show Deplorable Conditions Inside Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top-secret documents now in the hands of the United States show that conditions were so bad in Red China during the winter of 1960-61 that there was a threat of revolution.

U.S. officials said today that the documents, in the form of journals of the Communist Chinese army, represented "one of the most important caches of material" ever obtained from behind the Bamboo Curtain.

One official said it was "like getting a look at the dark side of the moon."

The documents depicted serious shortages of food and other basic needs for both the army and the general public. During one period, the journals say, there were a number of "disturbances" in the area of Canton, where civilian members of the militia rose in protest and killed a number of Communist party members and disrupted communications.

The militiamen, who are under indirect army control, were said to have been joined in some instances by defectors from the army. The documents designate the number of defectors with X's. There was no explanation of how many men an X represented, but a State Department spokesman said U.S. analysts believed each X represented at least 1,000 men — possibly more.

Regular army troops apparently were sent in to quell the uprisings and the militia was subsequently reorganized with regular army officers taking a more direct hand in controlling it.

The State Department said the documents had been in U.S. hands for "some time" but declined to say how they were obtained. Officials said they covered activities from about mid-1960 to mid-1961. They went only to top Red Chinese army and government officials.

Government-owned stocks of corn are at a seven and one-half year low of 514 million bushels, down from the high of one million bushels. Increased utilization and the feed grain program are the biggest contributors to the decline.

How To Win Tough Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Here is yesterday's hand all over again. The bidding is the same, still nothing to be proud of, and West opens the six of hearts. Yesterday I showed how an expert would play the hand. I also pointed out that there was a double dummy play to make the contract.

If an expert is given this as a problem hand he reasons that West must hold the king of clubs, otherwise he could make 12 tricks easily.

It is also apparent that West does not hold the ace and king of spades because if he did he would have led them right out.

He counts seven trumps tricks, two diamonds and a club in top cards for 10 tricks and can get to 11 by finessing for West's king of clubs. Some sort of squeeze and end play is indicated.

South plays two rounds of trumps and the ace and king of diamonds. He ruffs a diamond, goes back to dummy with its last trump, ruffs the last diamond and leads out all his trumps at which point if the opponents have discarded to best ability the last cards are:

South leads the three of clubs and fineses against the king. Then he plays dummy's jack of spades. If East rises with the ace he drops his partner's king and has to give South two spade tricks. If East plays low, West wins and must give dummy two more club tricks.

1 ♦ 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠
Pass 3 ♣ Pass 3 ♠
Pass 4 ♣ Pass 4 ♠
Pass

You, South, hold:
♠ 2 ♥ A Q J 7 6 5 ♦ 4 ♣ A K 9 8 7
What do you do now?
A—Pass. You have two good suits, but apparently your partner has a better one.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding four spades your partner goes to four hearts over your four clubs. What do you do now?
