is three-leveled with the top deck being the largest. Here, the Protestant members of the academy worship in an area which will provide space for about 900 men. The Catholic level provides seating space for about 400 and the bottom tier of the chapel is a Jewish Synagogue which provides space for about 50 persons. Panels of stained-glass windows which go up each side of the spires have provided trouble in construction. Leaks continue to plague the builders of the chapel. Far right, visitors are seen entering the chapel from the wide sweeping steps. Entrance way to the second deck is below at left.

BEAUTIFUL STRUCTURE — The world-famed design of the Air Force Academy Chapel is best shown here, framed by the mountain backdrop that provides the setting for the academy just a few miles out of Colorado Springs. Seventeen gleaming spires rise to the skies from the chapel which provides worship facilities for Protestants, Catholics and Jews on this campus of serious, determined young men who are intent on building a tradition for the Air Force that is as hard-binding and fascinating as those of the Naval Academy and West Point.

Episcopal Leader Tries Zone Idea On Parish

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The Rev. Louis H. Fracher is a tough-minded pastor with a rare capacity for viewing his own parish with detachment.

His parish is St. John's Episcopal Church in Waynesboro, Va. To an outsider, it looks extremely successful. It has 550 baptized members and 400 communicants on its rolls. Attendance at worship is so heavy that three services have to be scheduled each Sunday morning. The Sunday School is overflowing with children. Parish organizations are bustling with activity.

But the Rev. Mr. Fracher looked beneath the surface of institutional success. He saw a parish which had grown so large that many of the members didn't even know one another. People could get sick or die without their neighbors hearing about it in time to show their concern. It was a far cry from the New Testament concept of the church as a close-knit fellowship in which each member gave and received love, acceptance and understanding.

Problem Is Common
Thousands of other American parishes have the same problem. Some of them have tried to overcome it by holding "coffee hours" after services, or by including social functions in the parish program, or by setting up organizations to promote fellowship.

The Rev. Mr. Fracher decided that his parish already had plenty of organizations, and that what it really needed was a little "disorganization" or decentralization.

He told this idea to his vestry, and last May the parish was divided into 12 "zones," each containing from 20 to 25 families.

SPAGHETTI DINNER MOOSE LODGE SAT., AUG. 17th - 7 PM DANCE FOLLOWING

Each zone is headed by a member of the vestry, who serves as a lay minister, watching over the material and spiritual well-being of the families in his zone.

Every few weeks, the families in a particular zone meet at someone's home to worship together, get better acquainted and talk over the affairs of the parish.

Members Enthusiastic
The members of the parish are enthusiastic about the zone system. They no longer feel like strangers to one another. They find that communication in the parish is not a one-way affair. Through the zone meetings, every back-bencher has a chance to speak his piece about parish policies, instead of waiting to be told what the rector and vestry have decided.

But the most important result of the zone system, in the eyes of the pastor, is that it has made St. John's parishioners aware that "the church is not bricks and stained glass windows — the church is people."

"It is in small groups that men and women can truly learn to be the Body of Christ at work," says the Rev. Mr. Fracher. "We are confident that the zone meeting will prove to be an effective way to demonstrate what the 'ministry of the laity' is all about. One of the tasks which each zone takes on is to seek out the unchurched children and adults in their neighborhood. Another is to look up nominal church members, the 'strayed sheep,' and try to bring them back to the fold."

He told this idea to his vestry, and last May the parish was divided into 12 "zones," each containing from 20 to 25 families.

Mariners Hold Meet

Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Brown were hosts July 24, in their home with a chicken barbecue for the Malin Mariners.

Skippers, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Blohm, conducted the short business meeting. It was voted to buy several pairs of scissors for the sewing bags, made by the Bible school students, which are to be sent to Algeria. Florence Wilson gave a brief report on the recent rummage sale.

The August meeting will be dispensed of and the group will meet in September with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wills for a lamb barbecue.

Couples enjoying the fellowship were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jacob, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wills, Mr. and Mrs. James Lacy, the Rev. and Mrs. Ethan Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. Hah Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Blohm, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Brown.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that everyone may receive the things done in his body, according to what he hath done, whether it be good or bad." (2 Cor. 5:10)

The Judgment to come is the time of eternal separation of the good and bad. The Lord shall separate them as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. In life, only, we have the time and opportunity to make necessary preparation to meet the approval of the Lord through Christ. The Day of Judgment with its rewards is a certainty — and the rewards will be meted out according to our life here — we cannot escape as it is appointed unto man once to die and after that the Judgment (Heb. 9:27).

Lutherans Urge Study Of Catholics

HELSINKI (UPI)—A Lutheran study group has asked that the church learn more about the other fellow—in particular, the Roman Catholic.

A commission that has been working since 1959 urges formation of a "Lutheran foundation for inter-confessional research," with an initial appropriation of about $24,000.

"The foundation would be located near Geneva in an area which would give it a chance to study Catholicism, according to the report, which was read recently to delegates attending the Lutheran World Federation's fourth assembly."

The move, which has the support of influential churchmen, is in part a response to feelings put forth by the Vatican under the direction of the late Pope John XXIII. But the report said Lutherans had begun discussing a similar idea as far back as 1957.

The "dialogue" with the Catholic Church "reached a pitch of special intensity" during the second Vatican Council, said the report submitted by Bishop J. Dietzfelbinger of Munich, director of the "commission for inter-confessional research."

"We do not want to talk prematurely or jump to conclusions about a reunion of Christendom, a concept with which very unclear ideas can be associated," the report said.

The proposed inter-confessional institute, however, would be a permanent body, supported by the Lutheran churches, but not necessarily a part of the Lutheran World Federation.

First Methodist Church Will Host Guest Speaker

Norman E. Amtower, treasurer and business manager of the Oregon Annual Conference of the Methodist Church, will fill the pulpit in the First Methodist Church, Klamath Falls, Sunday morning, Aug. 18, in the absence of Rev. Ralph Richardson. He will speak at both the 9:30 a.m. and the 11 a.m. services.

His sermon topic will be "Paul's Letter to Klamath Falls."

A native of Maryland, Amtower attended American University in Washington, D.C. He served in the 13th Air Force, South Pacific, during World War II. After 14 years of business experience in Michigan and Minnesota, Mr. and Mrs. Amtower came to Oregon in May, 1950, to his present position. They have seven children, five boys and two girls. He was a guest speaker in the First Methodist Church here last summer.

John Heilbronner will introduce the speaker and officiate from the lectern side.

Pastor Gets New Church

Elder and Mrs. Kenneth McVay and two children, Jeanne and Johnny, were honored Sunday, Aug. 11, at a farewell dinner at Ward Park by members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church where Elder McVay has been pastor for several years.

The family will leave soon to accept pastorate at Cottage Grove and Deerhorn, Ore.

A farewell gift was presented at the close of the dinner. Elder Manley Miles who has been pastor of the Seventh-day Adventist Church at Spokane will arrive in the near future to accept the local pulpit.

2 Catholic Observers Attend Meet

HELSINKI (UPI)—The two Roman Catholic observers at the Helsinki Lutheran World Assembly said they are pleased with their "warm reception" by the Lutheran leadership.

"The Lutherans have in every occasion called us warmly 'our brothers,'" said Prof. Johannes Witte of The Netherlands and Prof. Peter Blaese of West Germany.

Blaese and Witte said they have deeply felt the importance of the fact that the Roman Catholic Church has official representatives at the Lutheran meeting in Helsinki.

A top Lutheran official called for a continuing study of other faiths, particularly the Roman Catholic Church.

Church Aide Outdoor Will Leave

Arlan Skauget, for nine years secretary and director of Christian Education in the First Christian Church of Klamath Falls, has accepted a position as Christian Education director and in youth work for the First Christian Church in Roseburg. She will leave in the near future to fill her new post.

In addition to her other duties, Miss Skauget has been a frequent visitor to the ill and the shut-ins and had aided the church in many other ways.

A farewell reception is planned for her on Aug. 23 at 8 p.m. at the church. Her friends are invited.

Outdoor Baptismal

Pastor Silas Jones and the congregation of Victory Temple will conduct the church's annual outdoor, old-fashioned baptismal service at Diamond Lake, Saturday, Aug. 17. The service will start at 1 p.m. at the Ranger's Launch on the left before reaching the lodge.

Following the service a picnic lunch will be served.

New York Man Visits

Paul F. Conradi, special circuit representative from the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Brooklyn, N.Y., is visiting the Klamath Falls congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses this week. Purpose of his visit is to supervise and effect improvements in the local ministerial training program conducted by the Bible teaching fellowship.

George Hriciszec, presiding minister of the Klamath Falls congregation, revealed that attendance at the congregation meetings, and the number of ministers being trained in the house-to-house ministry has shown a marked increase of the New World Society of Jehovah's Witnesses in more than 22,000 congregations in 189 different countries.

The special minister is giving personal instruction in these features of house-to-house preaching to individual members of the congregation. An interesting program will be considered Saturday evening at 8 o'clock on new things learned.

Climax of this special week of activity will be at 3 p.m. Sunday, with the public Bible discourse "Is your Destiny of Your Own Making?" The public is invited.

Speakers

Rev. and Mrs. Billy Hamblin, guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hamblin, Klamath Falls, will be guest speakers at Calvary Temple at the Sunday morning and evening services.

The morning subject will be "The Universe of Prayer." They are traveling with the World Wide Revival Crusade of Dallas, Tex.
