London Police Seek Robbery Solution

By United Press International
LONDON (UPI) — A London newspaper said Saturday night police have identified both the mastermind and the gang leader who staged the record $7.3 million royal mail train robbery. Belief grew Scotland Yard was close to solving the case.

The News of the World in its first Sunday edition said the man who actually led the gang with great precision was an "ex-army type with commando training" and referred to him as "the major."

It did not use a nickname for the mastermind who planned history's greatest cash robbery and said police would not disclose the names of either "the major" or the mastermind.

A police spokesman said the information "had not come from Scotland Yard" and declined to comment on the report.

The News of the World said "the major" left behind tools issued by the army when he fled from the gang's hideout at an isolated farm in Leatherslade.

The report backed up a story in the London Evening News that police had found "items which originated from the army" at the hideaway and that Scotland Yard was confident of finding "the ringleader, the gang and the rest of the body."

"The net is closing," it said. "Detectives are closer than ever to the mastermind."

The Evening News said detectives visited several army camps with their discoveries in an attempt to trace members of the gang.

The News of the World's report indicated police believe the "mastermind" himself did not take part in the great train robbery itself but pulled the strings "from a distance... in safety."

It also said Scotland Yard

wanted to interview a "man who visited Britain from Italy recently" and said "he is believed to have been an aide of the late 'Lucky' Luciano, the gangster America deported."

Police meanwhile raided London area homes and scoured woods and fields in a massive hunt for more of the loot and belief grew that the leaders of the well-executed robbery had gone later in a moment of panic.

So far the Yard has recovered $675,000 in cash and was urging Britons to join a nationwide "treasure hunt" for the remainder. The search was so thorough that at one point a frogman searched a 12-foot deep pond.

Friday's discovery of $282,000 in a Surrey woods led police to believe the banknotes were becoming too hot to handle and that although the robbery was a masterpiece of professionalism — the plans for disposing of the loot had gone awry.

"We feel that there is booty to be found in all sorts of places," detective superintendent Malcom Fewtrell said. "In fact we know it will be. We have found these people out earlier than they wanted and I have no doubt that this money is embarrassing to them."

Police said that a yacht cruising in the English Channel had been cleared when it checked into Folkestone Harbor Friday night, but a senior detective said Scotland Yard had not ruled out the possibility the robbers may try to smuggle the loot to the continent.

Asked whether he believed more arrests were imminent, Fewtrell said, "I hope they are. There is no reason at all to lose hope."

Fewtrell said an appeal to the general public for information on signs of freshly dug soil where money might be buried had kept the night shift busy at the police manhunt headquarters and that at least 20 telephone tips were received.

Fewtrell, chief of the Buckinghamshire police, said his men were still continuing an inch-by-inch search of the Leatherslade farm, the bandit hideout near the scene of the Aug. 8 train robbery. He said fingerprints had been found.

Fewtrell said food in bulk was found at the farm and that the origin of this was being investigated. He said he was positive the whole ambush gang did not stay at the farm and the indications were that those who did cleared out only eight hours before police swooped on the farm Tuesday when tipped off by a local cattle herdsman.

Police were cheered by some of the amateurism which crept into the robber's operations after their skillful robbery.

They said two of the men arrested at Bournemouth Wednesday practically begged to be taken into custody. First they bought two automobiles for cash with five pound ($14) notes although both were dressed like workmen.

Then they stopped Mrs. Emily Clark, 37, a grey-haired widow and offered her three months rent in advance on a garage—in a resort town where strangers rarely spend more than a couple of weeks. She is no Scotland Yard sleuth but she recognized this as suspicious and police found 141,000 pounds ($394,000) in the cars.

Mahoney Urges Extra Session Of Legislature
SALEM (UPI) — Sen. Thomas Mahoney, D-Portland, Friday urged a special legislative session be called so the 1963 Legislature's $60 million tax increase package could be referred to the people for an election.

Mahoney, who said he voted for the tax measure, said he had signed a referral petition in Portland.

He said he feels the people should have the right to vote on the measure, and that delaying tactics have hampered efforts to circulate referral petitions.

Mahoney said he was writing Gov. Mark Hatfield, urging that the governor call a special session.

Mahoney said he would urge the legislature to repeal the recently enacted law, then to enact the same law again with a November referendum clause, so the people would have to vote on it before it could become law.

New Food Dispensary Set For Tulelake Fair

TULELAKE — The state of California has the first carousel food dispensary on any fairground. It was built on the grounds of the Tulelake-Butte Valley Fair close to the grandstand by fair personnel and will be ready for the opening day of the 1963 fair on Sept. 8.

Fair Manager William Whitaker says it is built like a merry-go-round, hence the name. The center, usually containing the mechanism including the tiny music equipment, will contain a completely furnished kitchen with gas stove, refrigerator, sink, so that full meals may be prepared.

Customers will be seated under the wide overhang and enjoy a leisurely meal. They will be served completely around the 360-degree inner circle.

The low building looks like a merry-go-round. It has a two-inch tongue and groove roof. Air circulates completely around the structure, making it a cool place to stop even on a hot day. It will seat over 100 people.

Since there is only one kitchen, it will be rented to one organization.

To give an equal opportunity to all service organizations, the fair will accept bids for use during the 1963 fair for the three days, Sept. 8, 9, 10. Bids will be received until 5 p.m. Aug. 30.

Any organization or individual may inspect the building before submitting a bid.

Employers Might Get Reduction In Assessment
SALEM (UPI) — A $6 million tax reduction for Oregon employers appeared likely, State Employment Commissioner David H. Cameron said Friday.

Cameron said it appeared the state unemployment trust fund is big enough to permit the department to allow experience rates to go into effect next Jan. 1.

Employers have been paying a 2.7 per cent tax on their payrolls since 1953. Under the new schedule next year's rates will range from 1.8 to 2.7 per cent.

Employers have been paying $38 million a year in unemployment taxes, Cameron said. The proposed new rates would bring in $32 million a year.

The unemployment fund now has $67.2 million. The law says if the fund balance is more than $61 million on Aug. 31, the department shall reduce the tax rates for the following year.

The 1.8 per cent rate would be paid by employers with a small unemployment claim experience, and those with a large volume of unemployment claims would pay the higher rate.

Steal Painting
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A 17th century painting valued at $20,000 has been stolen from the National Museum here, it was announced Saturday. The painting, "Boy's Portrait," belonged to the school of the Dutch 17th century master Frans Hals and was believed to be the work of one of his pupils. The painting apparently was carried out under the thief's jacket.

Sergeant York Seriously Ill
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Sgt. Alvin York, 75, World War I hero and Medal of Honor winner, was reported seriously ill at Veterans Hospital Friday.

York was admitted to the hospital July 8. Dr. W. C. Williams, hospital director, said the old soldier's temperature began climbing Friday morning and that York was more "unresponsive to surroundings."

"Whether this particular situation is related to his previous medical condition is unknown," Williams said.

NEW IDEA — There isn't another one like it on any fairgrounds in California. It is built like a merry-go-round, with a complete kitchen in the center. Customers will be served under the wide eaves where horses and tigers, elephants and zebras usually bob up and down. It will be completed in time for the opening of the Tulelake-Butte Valley Fair September 8, 9 and 10 at Tulelake.

Hatfield Warns Of Democratic Gains

MEDFORD (UPI) — The Democrats could capture a majority of the Board of Control and retain their leadership of the legislature "unless we out-organize and out-work them," Gov. Mark Hatfield warned Jackson County Republicans here Saturday.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a Republican picnic in Touville Park northeast of here, the governor also noted, "The national political spotlight will be on Oregon twice in the next six months."

He cited the convening of Western Republicans in conference at Eugene Oct. 10-12, and said he was pleased both Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller will be present.

"Their appearance in Oregon in October could well determine whether or not they will be back in the spring for our pivotal primary election," Hatfield commented.

Hatfield also announced he would attend a meeting of the Republican Governors' Association in Denver, Colo., Sept. 14.

"The significance of the formation of this association is to provide another channel of communication to the national committee in its policy formulation."
