Two Single Car Crashes Leave Pair Hospitalized

Two people were in satisfactory condition at the Klamath Valley Hospital early today after they were injured in separate one-car accidents Sunday, the Oregon State Police have disclosed.

Meanwhile, a hospital spokesman said that Donald Ellingson, 45, of Baker, Ore., was still in critical condition as the result of head injuries he received when the car he was operating went off the road and sheared off a power pole on Lakeshore Drive Saturday night. The Herald and News reported the accident in its Sunday edition.

Injured Sunday were Merrill Mandull, 49, of 2825 Bisbee Street, and John Miller, 21, of 2210 Ogden Street, both of Klamath Falls.

Mandull received bruises, lacerations and an injured leg when the station wagon he was driving went into a slide, entered a ditch, and rolled over as he was westbound along Old Fort Road.

Miller injured his arm when the car in which he was a passenger skidded while negotiating a left turn from Spring Lake Road onto Old Midland Road and rolled over approximately three times before it stopped upside down on the highway.

The driver, James Nelson, 18, of Rte. 3, Box 61, was pinned under the automobile after it halted some 63 feet from where it went out of control. Nelson, as Miller, was transferred to the local hospital where he was released later the same day.

Miller, bleeding profusely from cuts inflicted by broken beer bottles which apparently had been shattered in the car during the accident, walked to a nearby farm house and sought assistance, police said.

Victims in both accidents were transferred to the local hospital by Peace Ambulance.

Panel Truck Hits Bridge

A panel truck crashed into the Fremont Bridge on Nevada Street Sunday afternoon, injuring the 3-year-old daughter of the driver.

"I was coming back from water-skiing and must have gone to sleep, because I sure don't remember hitting the bridge," driver Gene Wallace Milligan, 30, 2136 Arthur Street, told city police.

His daughter, Margene, was taken to Klamath Valley Hospital by her father for treatment of bruises and abrasions.

The 1961 panel truck was eastbound on Nevada when it hit the end of the bridge, which spans Link River.

Two other passengers in the panel truck, Tom Corabine, 3213 Delaware Street, and his son, Tom Jr., 4, were unhurt.

Man Loses Life Saving Klamath Lad

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. for William Lown, who drowned Saturday while rescuing a young boy from Link River.

Lown, 41, dove into the river to aid the boy, 11-year-old Steven Michaels, after he began calling for help. He managed to keep Steven afloat until other men could take the youth, but was unable to stay afloat himself.

Lown was a truck driver working for the W. D. Miller Construction Company, contractors on the bridge being built over the river.

Lown of Keno had worked for Miller for about six years. He is survived by the widow and two sons.

The services will be held at O'Hair's Memorial Chapel.

Attorneys Probe Jurors On Possible Prejudices

Defense attorney Richard C. Beesley questioned prospective jurors closely this morning about possible racial prejudice as the trial of a young Negro airman for assault and battery got underway in Circuit Court.

A jury of five men and seven women was seated at 11:15 and the jurors immediately were taken to two cabins near Kingsley Field where the attack upon a teen-age white girl is alleged to have occurred.

The defendant is 19-year-old Charles Wesley Jones of McChord AFB, Wash. He is accused of beating the girl with his fists during a party in the cabins May 19. Jones was visiting Kingsley Field at the time.

Beesley asked each prospective juror if he would be influenced by what he termed "mixing of the races." He said he anticipated that the prosecution would show that Jones and the girl had been "petting" before the alleged attack.

No juror was excused for cause because of possible prejudice. Asst. Dist. Atty. John R. Thomas also questioned each juror about the racial aspect. He asked each if he would acquit Jones because of his race. Each replied that he would not.

Testimony in the trial was expected to start at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Fire Razes Point Cabin

Fire razed a 14x28-foot summer cabin on the Sloan Tract, near Rocky Point, early Saturday morning despite the efforts of a Winema Forest fire fighting crew and Rocky Point Volunteer Firemen to save it, the Winema Forest headquarters reported Monday.

The cabin was the property of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer P. Vincent, 2325 Reclamation Avenue, Klamath Falls, who were away when the fire started.

The fire was reported to the Winema Forest at 7 a.m. and moments later an eight-man fire fighting team was dispatched to Rocky Point from the Lake of the Woods guard station. When the crew arrived at the fire about 7:30, Rocky Point volunteer firemen were already combating the blaze.

The fire was brought under control about 9 a.m. but was not completely extinguished until almost 2 p.m., the Winema Forest headquarters said.

The owners are unable to estimate the loss of the cabin at this time.

Woman Draws Charge Of Assault In Slashing

A 28-year-old Klamath Falls woman was charged Sunday with slashing a 50-year-old man in the face with a broken bottle when the man attempted to intercede in a fight.

The victim, Arthur Thomas of 1130 Owens Street, was taken to Klamath Valley Hospital by Peace Ambulance after the 9 a.m. attack Sunday.

Police said he suffered cuts on his eyelid, cheek and neck. He was treated and released.

Mrs. Gertrude Leah Harvell, 1218 Adams Street, was booked at city jail on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The woman told police: "He was just an innocent bystander. I wanted to cut Sea Biscuit."

"Sea Biscuit" was identified as Emmet Ford.

Police said all three persons had been drinking and Ford and Mrs. Harvell had become involved in an argument at Ford's residence, 608 Broad Street.

Officers said that when Thomas attempted to intercede, he was cut with the broken bottle.

New Law Changes Title Data

A new procedure effective Sept. 1 will make it possible for persons holding a second mortgage or contract on a motor vehicle to have their interest shown on the title, according to the Oregon Department of Motor Vehicles.

Crews Respond To Fire Alarms

Fire started outside of a shed at the old Ellingson Timber Company about 5:45 p.m. Sunday, and burned part of the wall and floor before it was extinguished by firemen of the Klamath Falls Central Station. The structure was one of several buildings which had been saved from a fire that razed the timber company during the past year. The main station was assisted by firemen from the city substation.

Fire-fighting crews from the latter station were also summoned to a burning garage at 2444 Pershing Way about 4 p.m. Sunday, and suppressed the blaze before it caused major damage to the building. The fire started while the owner, Donald A. Gredsel, was away from home. Its cause was undetermined.

In another fire, a crew from the County Fire Department was called to a burning automobile in Keno on Saturday. Noel Jones, owner of the automobile, had been doing welding work on the car a short time before the fire broke out.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little PASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "rotten odor breath." Get PASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.
