

Limp Handshaker Needs Kind Hint

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a business friend who is a grand person of excellent character. Mr. F. C. (Fine Citizen) has contributed a great deal to our community and he is admired and respected by all who know him.

Mr. F. C. has a fault which is widely discussed behind his back but nobody wants to come right out and tell him. He has a handshake like a dead fish.

I feel it is sheer gutlessness on the part of people who call themselves "friends" to keep quiet about this. Isn't it a shame for Mr. F. C. to go through life with this terrible fault when it could be so easily remedied?

I've urged my husband to do this man a favor and tell him. My husband says he has no desire to make anybody over, nor does he want to jeopardize his friendship by risking offending the man. What do you say?—TO TELL OR NOT TO TELL?

Dear Mr. Tell: People are not born with a firm handshake or with a limp one. It's something they learn.

Apparently Mr. F. C. has been

Never Give Up On Finesses

By OSWALD JACOBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A new book by Marshall Miles is called "All Fifty-two Cards." The theme of the book is to show how a player who only sees his hand and dummy can visualize the location of the whole 52.

He doesn't suggest that you can always locate all the cards, but he points out that you can and should make certain assumptions and use them as your base of operations.

His first hand is about the only really simple one in the book. You arrive at four hearts on straightforward bidding. West opens the king of clubs and continues with the queen. East overtakes with the ace and leads a third club on which West discards the nine of spades.

Now East leads a low spade and things look pretty hopeless. Surely West has given an honest spade signal with that nine spot, but hopeless or not your only play to make your contract is to take the spade finesse. You assume that if West has the king you are gone anyway, but that maybe East holds it. So you take your one chance and finesse the queen.

I am not going to tell you if the finesse works. I can't because Marshall doesn't tell his readers. But he points out that you should never give up and that the finesse risks nothing.

If East held a singleton spade he could ruff a spade return, but in that case West would have been dealt eight spades to the king and the king-queen of clubs and would surely have entered into the bidding some time or other.

Reactions Unpleasant In Gemini Spacecraft Tests

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—The federal space agency is upset over the prospect that the upcoming Gemini flights into space could make a human milk-shakes out of America's astronauts.

As matters stand today, the first Gemini pilots would go bouncing off into orbit at the rate of 660 bounces per minute.

That's enough to jar the teeth of a hippopotamus.

The culprit in this particular Gemini problem is the Titan-2 rocket that will boost the capsule and its two men. Technicians have discovered the rocket is a sort of flying accordion, vibrating up and down at the rate of 11 cycles per second.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) told United Press International that "NASA considers the present level of oscillation as unsuitable for a manned vehicle."

Intra-service memos on the subject are phrased considerably stronger.

Space agency officials said that if rocket, spacecraft and spacemen alike go around bouncing 11 times every second there would be "potential degradation of the functional capabilities of the pilots."

Democrats Schedule Meeting

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Democratic Party officials were confident Saturday their Western States Conference will be "highly successful" even though President Kennedy may be unable to attend.

The conference was scheduled for next month with the blessing of the White House, reported Chairman Lucy Ridd. "However, the President's schedule is constantly changing because of the pressure of his duty and the outlook for his attendance is doubtful. But, we still are hoping he can make it."

If the President cannot attend, Miss Ridd, a Salt Lake attorney and Utah national committeewoman, said Vice President Lyndon Johnson would be on hand for the conference, Sept. 19-21.

More than 1,000 party leaders from 13 Western states and the island of Guam are expected for the conference—the first held in Utah in several years. They will include several U.S. senators, governors and cabinet officials.

"Political observers from throughout the nation will be watching the result of our deliberations for indications of issues which we westerners will be discussing during the 1964 campaign," said Miss Ridd. "This is our chance to focus attention on our problems and to formulate positions which can be used as the bases for planks in the 1964 Democratic national platform."

The conference agenda will include panels on six topics—agriculture, education, small business and military procurement, civil rights and the right wing, trade, and natural resources. There also will be a demonstration workshop on training worker recruitment and training.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, senate majority whip, will be the keynote speaker at the opening session with the President or vice president addressing a fund raising dinner the second night. The final session will be devoted to reports from the panels and adoption of resolutions on platform material.

"Several years ago when the Eisenhower administration was in office the conference didn't seem to mean much," recalled Utah State Chairman D. Frank Wilkins. "But with Kennedy in office now there is a lot more enthusiasm being generated over the conference."

Asked whether the "pogo-stick" cause-effect-solution would delay Gemini's schedule, the space agency answered with a firm "no."

There is a fair amount of reason for this indication of confidence. Project Gemini already is more than a year behind schedule, and it will be another 14 months—October, 1964—before the first pair of astronauts will board the capsule for a flight into space.

That leaves a goodly slice of time for finding some way to take the spring out of the flying pogo-stick.

Brown Ranch Division Set

MOUNT SHASTA—The Brown Ranch near here will be subdivided into sites for mobile homes and motels.

Its owner, W. C. Thompson, last week began preparation for the project which will see several hundred acres developed commercially.

The ranch in recent years has been a show place, but the decision was made to develop it because there is sufficient water for several projects.

Membership in an order entitles the holder to the title of "Sir" in Great Britain.

Profumo Scandal Girls On Blacklist

EDITOR'S NOTE: Whatever became of Christine and Mandy? Less than a month ago Christine Keeler and Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davis were the most sought-after celebrities in Britain, selling their life stories to the newspapers, granting interviews, being photographed. Now it is another story, as told in the following dispatch.

By ANTHONY TOBIN

LONDON (UPI)—The lords and ladies who once welcomed them to their estates and parties know them no more. The salons and swankier night spots don't want them around. They are in trouble with the law, avoided more than sought by good-time friends.

For 21-year-old Christine Keeler and 18-year-old Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davis the bright light of notoriety they shared as the stars of Britain's "scandal of the century" burned out.

Their brief flutter in the public eye began in June when War Minister John Profumo resigned after admitting he had lied to parliament about his relationship with Miss Keeler.

He had been intimate with her at the same time she had been romancing Eugene Ivanov, assistant naval attaché at the Soviet Embassy in London.

Mandy was a friend of Christine's and like her a protégé of Dr. Stephen Ward, the café society osteopath, playboy and artist who died Aug. 3 from an overdose of drugs after being convicted on charges of living off the prostitution earnings of Christine and Mandy. He died before learning the verdict.

Caught In Spotlight
For a few short weeks, Christine's and Mandy's names rang around the globe. Newspapers and magazines printed their photographs, interviewed them, and their disclosures rocked the nation.

Television and film companies vied to get the two beauties before the cameras. Newspapers fought to buy their life stories. Their every movement noted, commented upon or watched.

For Mandy, the vivacious blonde who had lived until the age of 16 with her middle-class parents in industrial Birmingham, the limelight could not be strong enough. To a party of American tourists at London Airport who asked her who she was, she replied delightedly:

"I am famous. I will go down in the history books as another Lady Hamilton."

To lithe, auburn-haired Christine, a country girl who came to London five years ago to begin a modeling career, the blaze of publicity brought riches, too.

She was described in private and by friends as "gay...exciting...beautiful...reckless...wild with ambition...high spirited..." One newspaper paid her about $70,000 for the story of her lives and loves. A London nightclub offered her $14,000 a week to appear in its cabaret. A film company promised to make a movie of her life with herself as the star.

Then, suddenly, the tarnish began dulling the glitter.

Late in June, police said they had received anonymous telephone calls threatening Christine's life. Policemen were sent to guard her home.

In July came the Ward trial, and both were witnesses against him. Their stories added new chapters to the sordid story.

Judge and jury alike counted on their fingers to figure out how many men Christine and Mandy had entertained for money, for fun or for favor. So much that had seemed glamorous at first became tarnished in the full light.

Joseph Moural, owner of the L'Hirondelle restaurant, withdrew his offer for Christine to appear in cabaret. He claimed he had received letters threatening to bomb his club, and members of the cast said they would walk out if Christine appeared.

Her film plans were snarled when the executive committee of Equity, the actors' trade union, decided it could not accept her as a member so she could play herself in the film of her life. The movie idea eventually evaporated.

Hairdresser Vidal Sassoon

barred Christine and Mandy from his London salon because of pressure from women who said they objected to sitting near them.

Three people walked out of a mid-night party that followed the West End premiere of the multi-million-dollar movie epic "Cleopatra" because they had been placed at the same table as Mandy. In the United States, Immigration Commissioner Ray Farrell said he was taking the "strongest legal steps" to see that neither girl was permitted to land in America.

Twice Christine was booed and jeered by angry women, once she was the target of eggs.

Avoid Public
Christine has been almost a recluse ever since.

Mandy's future, too, is uncertain. She also has practically disappeared from London life. She has said she hopes to go to Rome this fall but she was not being very happy about it.

"I'll take what comes," is her attitude toward the future.

So did Lady Hamilton, the mistress of Lord Nelson, who died along and broke.
