MALIN—The 31,000-acre Bryant Mountain area east of here has been declared subject to entry by permit only.

Permits, available from the BLM office in Lakeview, restrict smoking and open fires and require fire tools under certain circumstances.

Kennedy Hopes Senate Will Reserve Aid Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Saturday pinned his hopes on the Senate to reverse one of his worst legislative beatings of the year by restoring some of the nearly $1 billion cut from the House-approved foreign aid bill.

In a stinging defeat Friday, the House passed a Republican-sponsored cut of $885 million in the aid program.

Tied to committee slashes of about $400 million in the authorization bill, the cuts amounted to almost $1 billion and cut the bill's final total to $3.5 billion for the current fiscal year.

Kennedy's reaction was quick. He termed the House cuts "short sighted, irresponsible and dangerously partisan." In some of his bluntest language ever on a congressional issue, Kennedy said the cuts played into the hands of the Communists.

Sixty-six Democrats joined forces with 156 Republicans in approving the cut in a maneuver that was directed by GOP foreign aid foes. The vote was 222-188.

In the Senate, Foreign Relations Committee Chairman, J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., said it would be at least mid-September before the group has its version of the foreign aid program ready for Senate action.

Fulbright told reporters the committee would finish its consideration of the nuclear test ban before turning to the foreign aid bill. That would make final Senate floor action unlikely before late next month.

The Arkansas Democrat said the Senate group will bring out its own version of the aid measure rather than considering the House-approved bill.

The cuts approved by the House Friday included $150 million from the Alliance for Progress funds, a move that particularly annoyed Kennedy.

U.S. Ponders Political Situation In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States continued its attempts to decipher the political maneuvering in South Viet Nam, but the mystery of who is in control remained unsolved.

The State Department said, however, that the military was in "physical control" and was supervising civilian agencies.

In some quarters, President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother and political adviser, Ngo Dinh Nhu, was reported to have taken over much of the power in the government.

In an unusual turn of events, the U.S. diplomats in Saigon conferred with Nhu, but still have not talked with Diem.

However, State Department spokesman Richard L. Phillips said officials in the government had given assurances that there would be no let up in the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

"We have received no reports from our own sources which would indicate any diminution of this effort in the field," Phillips said.

The United States declared that it would continue its military assistance to Viet Nam, but officials said it was too early to reach any final conclusion about the political situation.

In other developments, Tran Van Chuong, South Viet Nam's ambassador to the United States, who resigned Wednesday in protest against the regime's handling of crisis with the Buddhists, took issue with the contention that there were no able men to replace Diem.

Bandit In Taxi Holds Up Bank

PORTLAND (UPI)—FBI agents and Portland police Saturday looked for a bold bandit who used a taxicab to hold up the head office branch of the U.S. National Bank in downtown Portland Friday afternoon.

The man escaped with $838.

The bandit took the taxi-cab to a drive-in window of the bank, gave a woman teller a note ordering her to give him money and then had the driver take him to Rhodes Department Store.

He then paid his fare and went into the store.

Edward Calkins, 49, the driver, was not aware of the holdup until later when traced by his vehicle's number.

The man was described by Calkins as about 35 to 40 years of age.

A bandit took $3,671 in a similar robbery last May 20 at a branch of the Pacific National Bank in Seattle.

U.S. Rejects Red Charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department today publicly rejected a Soviet charge that the refusal of the United States to acknowledge Communist East Germany's signature of the nuclear test ban treaty was contrary to the "spirit" of the pact.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said "we do not accept such an allegation."

The charge was made in a Russian note to the United States and Britain and made public in Moscow today.

The State Department reiterated its contention that East Germany, unrecognized by the United States and Britain, could sign the treaty in Moscow and that Russia could inform Washington and London of that fact, but "we are under no obligation to accept that notification and we have no intention of doing so."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recently said this procedure bound East Germany to observe the treaty but made it clear that the Soviet-dominated regime gained no privileges or status even approaching recognition.

The United States on Aug. 16 told Russia this. The latter Soviet note was a protest against the American and British position.

Legislative Conference Finishes Stormy Session

HONOLULU (UPI) — The 16th Annual National Legislative Conference ended Friday after the longest, rowdiest plenary session in its history during which delegates refused to take a stand on three states rights - proposed amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

Instead the conference delegates voted for a so-called compromise resolution which left it up to the individual state legislatures to "make independent determination" as to the merit of the proposed amendments aimed at weakening the directional power of the Congress over the states and overriding decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Liberal forces of the conference led by Hawaii, Alaska, Ohio, Oregon and California tried separately for more than four hours to force resolutions against the proposed amendments to the floor for a vote.

But despite nine roll call votes and the most tortuous parliamentary maneuvering, the states' rights and northern conservatives each time sent liberals down to overwhelming defeat.

The plenary session at times broke down into name-calling, insult-exchanging behavior reminiscent of arguments among neighborhood children.

Portland, Ore., was selected as the conference site for 1965 and New Jersey Assemblyman Frederick H. Hauser was elected first vice president for 1964. The current first vice president - Marcus Hallbrook, director of the Arkansas legislative conference - moves into the presidency by tradition.

So bitter were the feelings shown at the conference on the civil rights and states rights issues that several delegation members mumbled threats of boycotting future national conferences of the body. Among those were Hawaii, Alaska and Michigan.

Kansas House Speaker Harold H. Chase voted consistently to keep the conference from voting on the controversial issues but he deplored the heated disagreement they generated. At one point he said "It may be that we have come to Hawaii and that we never will come to another" conference because of the fighting and disagreement that threatened to wreck the proceedings.

Delegates Claim Moral Victory

HONOLULU (UPI) — Delegates of at least 12 states that participated in the 16th National Legislative Conference, have claimed a "moral victory" — although they were defeated in a fight to have the conference reject three proposed "states rights" constitutional amendments.

In a statement released soon after the closing plenary session the 12 states noted that proponents of the amendment numbered less than two thirds of the states required to pass them.

"We believe that the actual strength was considerably less than the 26 cast in favor of the amendment because some states, such as New Mexico, voted with the proponents despite the fact that their legislature had already defeated the amendment," the statement said.

Police Bring Evans Back

PORTLAND (UPI)—Robert J. Evans, 26, Honolulu, was returned here Saturday to face a first degree murder charge in the death of Irene Davis, 41, Payette, Idaho.

Evans was returned from Fremont, Neb., by Portland police after he waived extradition. He arrived with Det. William Taylor on a flight from Omaha.

Mrs. Davis was strangled to death in a room at the Portland Hilton Hotel. She was found Aug. 6 by a hotel maid. A nylon stocking had been twisted around her neck and her partially clad body was in a bathtub in about six inches of water.

Evans was questioned by police shortly after he arrived, but officers said he was close-mouthed and said he would not talk until he had consulted an attorney.

Evans was arrested in Fremont last Monday after police spotted his car as one described in a police bulletin. Evans had lived in Fremont several years ago.

Evans was arrested at the home of a friend, T. A. Roach, who said he had become acquainted with the wanted man when Evans attended school in Fremont in the early 1950s.
