Billiards Grows Rapidly As New Family Activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Together with the game of bridge, billiards is increasingly the ancient game played at home—apparently on the theory that families who play together, stay together.

Even the New York Department of State spelled out what a billiard game should be in a ruling recently when it suspended the license of an Elmhurst, N.Y., operator of a parlor for obstructing from clear view the lower third of the parlor's windows.

This, the Department said, was a violation of the State Law, which in licensing billiard establishments follows the "legislative intent" that the game should be a "good, clean, family fun" activity.

One industry source says that every state has some sort of legislation controlling billiards establishments and in addition there are municipal ordinances. These decide opening and closing hours, age limits, zoning and license fees.

Billiards On Increase
This same industry source, the Brunswick Corp., which makes billiard and bowling equipment, reports that growth of billiards has increased more than 50 per cent in a two-year period. It estimates that nationally, 10.3 per cent of the population, representing more than 18 million persons, participates in the sport. By 1964, the total will be more than 24 million, the firm predicts.

In a study, the researchers found home billiards popular with 43.8 per cent of the males and 79 per cent of the females playing the game, either in their own or a friend's home.

The study also showed the teenage market represented 37 per cent of players at away-from-home centers, either billiard rooms or combination billiard and bowling establishments. In the combination centers, the teenager comes close to being 50 per cent of the operator's business; in establishments for billiards alone, only 23 per cent because of legal restrictions.

The origin of billiards dates to ancient times. One chronicler writing of his travels through Greece in 400 B.C. reported he saw the game being played. Catere, King of Ireland who died in 148 A.D., left behind "fifty-five billiard balls of brass, and pools and cues."

Washington Played Billiards
Researchers for the firm said that George Washington had a table in his Mount Vernon home where he played the game with Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, and the French statesman and general, the Marquis De Lafayette.

One of the great billiard players of modern times was William F. Hoppe, who won 51 titles in his long career. He died in 1939 at the age of 71.

Rejuvenation of the game for the whole family began about two years ago when the dimly lighted "pool hall" began to get its face lifted.

As New York's Department of State remarked in that announcement of suspension of one proprietor's license, "manufacturers have encouraged prospective proprietors to erase the old 'pool hall' image of smoke-filled rooms and hustling shady characters for one of pine paneling, plush carpeting, air-conditioned halls and modern equipment."

The traditional green table surface has given way to other colors, partly because manufacturers want to lure Mom and the kids as well as Dad.

Tables now are available, in deep blue, gold, tangerine or classic white, with cloths offered in blue, beige, deep tangerine, gold or green.

"Mix or match colors of tables and cloths," said a spokesman for Brunswick, "and you come up with more than 20 combinations available."

Tail of Halley's Comet at its last appearance in 1910 was estimated at being 93 million miles long.

Over 2,000 Cover Event

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Today's march on Washington was covered by one of the largest contingents of newsmen ever assembled in the nation's capital.

The police department issued about 1,000 special press passes good only for the day of the march in addition to the 1,200 round by full-time Washington correspondents.

Tents were set up on the grounds of the Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument to serve as temporary communications centers for the small army of news service and newspaper reporters and photographers, and the broadcasting media representatives, covering the event.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. said it had installed 100 telephone lines of radio circuits and 27 television pickups along the line of march.

Pipe smoking first was seen by the Portuguese in Brazil and by Frenchmen in Canada and Florida in the 16th century.

First Amendment Protects Right To Assemble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The First Amendment to the U. S. Constitution specifically guarantees "the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Today's civil rights demonstration is but the latest in a long series of historic occasions when Americans have marched on their capital city to invoke that right.

One of the first and most famous marches was that of "Coxey's Army" in 1894. The country was in the grip of a severe depression and there were many unemployed.

"General" Jacob Coxey, a Massillon, Ohio, businessman, gathered 300 of the town's jobless workers to accompany him in a march on Washington to demand that the government undertake public works.

His ragged little "army" gathered recruits along the route to Washington and was about 500 strong when it encamped on the outskirts of the capital. Coxey and a small group of marchers went to the capitol building to present their demands. There were charged by mounted police. Coxey was arrested and spent 20 days in jail, the First Amendment notwithstanding. His pathetic "army" remained in Washington for several months, until government funds were provided to transport the marchers back to their homes.

In 1913, suffragettes began organizing marches on Washington to demand votes for women. The largest demonstration, on March 13, 1913, saw 5,000 women marching determinedly down Pennsylv-vania Avenue. (Women were finally granted suffrage in 1921.) The Great Depression of the 1930s prompted several "hunger marches" on Washington. The largest was that of the so-called "Bonus Army" — thousands of World War I veterans who converged on the city in June, 1932, while Congress was debating a soldiers' bonus bill.

The House passed the bill, but the Senate, with 12,000 veterans milling about the Capitol, overwhelmingly rejected the measure.

Congress voted money to send the bonus marchers home, but many of them continued to camp in abandoned buildings near the Capitol. Police who tried to evict them were driven off with clubs and rocks.

How To Hold FALSE TEETH
More Firmly In Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little PASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, cooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PASTEETH today at drug counters everywhere.

On July 26, President Herbert C. Hoover ordered the Army to drive the bonus marchers out of Washington. The Army troops were led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then chief of staff. His staff included a young major named Dwight D. Eisenhower. The troops moved in one the veterans with sabers, tear gas and tanks, driving them from the city in chaotic flight.

Police Slay One Suspect Wanted In Double Killing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detectives early today shot and killed one of two ex-convicts accused of slaying two policemen in a Lodi, N. J., nightclub.

Police said the suspect, Frank Falco, 23, was gunned down on the 23rd floor of the Hotel Manhattan shortly after 4:15 a.m., EDT. He had checked into a room at the hotel Tuesday night.

Details of the shooting were not immediately available.

Falco and Thomas (Rabbi Tom) Trantino, 25, were charged in the shooting deaths of Lodi Detective Sgt. Peter Voto, 40, and rookie Patrolman Gady Tedesco, 21, inside the Angel Lounge.

Trantino was still at large. Police said the two officers, who had gone to the night club Sunday night to answer a routine disturbance complaint, were forced to take off most of their clothes before being killed.

Shortly after the killings, one man and four women, all of whom were in the lounge at the time, were taken into custody and held as material witnesses under heavy bonds.

Detectives of Manhattan's first Division tracked Falco to the hotel. A hotel spokesman said Falco had registered under the name of J. Rello and listed his address as Newport, R. I.

Falco and Trantino were indicted Tuesday by a Bergen County grand jury for first degree murder in the slaying of the two policemen.

Bergen County Prosecutor Guy Callissi promised after the indictments were returned that he would ask for the death penalty if the two were caught and convicted.

The four women, among them Falco's estranged wife, Patricia, 17, were held in $10,000 bond apiece. The man, Anthony Casarino, 24, was a companion of Falco and Trantino.
