DEAR POLLY — My hint is one of those little things that will keep restless little fingers occupied. Give the children a box filled with the round cereal shaped like an O, and heavy thread. They can make neckties and bracelets which can be eaten later if they like.—MRS. C. W.

DEAR POLLY — To prepare wax to pour on top of jams and jellies, use a tin can from which canned fruit has been used. After rinsing, it is entirely free of any odor. I press the top edge to form a spout of sorts, melt the wax required right in the can and pour from it. There is no messy pan to clean for I throw away the can.—MRS. R. J. W.

GIRLS — Paraffin, that most of us use when canning, is inflammable when overheated so to be sure, place the can in a pan of water while it melts.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Friends have been telling me I should send you "Mary's Happy Birthday Hint" as it can make so many people happy. For 15 years or more, I have been spelling out my daughter's name and giving her a gift for each letter. I print each letter on a small white card and scotch tape it to each package. I sometimes add one to grow on as she receives so much pleasure from so many packages and so do I. Through the years I have done this for some close friends and relatives. Everyone gets a big thrill out of it even though the gifts are very inexpensive. Just try it and you will be rewarded with many smiles.

MRS. M. B.
GIRLS — This is not nearly so extravagant as it sounds on first thought. One could take the amount of money to be spent on the special occasion and divide it by the number of letters in the recipient's name. Just the first name or a nickname could be used to cut down on the number of gifts if the name is too long.—POLLY

Oregon Police Remind Motorists To Be Alert For School Children

Motorists should be especially alert during the opening weeks of the fall school term when youngsters will again be boarding and unloading from school buses. Sergeant Bruce Lattin of the Oregon State Police stated that the law would be strictly enforced this fall, as it has been in the past.

The statement was issued as Oregon was preparing to observe National Child Safety Week, sponsored by the American Safety League, set for September 4 through 11. The special week has been set aside to arouse public awareness of the need to exercise special caution while driving during the opening weeks of the school year.

In a letter proclaiming the observance of the special week in Oregon, Gov. Mark O. Hatfield urged "parents, teachers, police, school and safety officials and the public generally to combine in an effort to educate our school children in safe travel habits while walking or riding bicycles."

"Moreover, there is obviously need for alertness on the part of motorists in school zones, near playgrounds, or any area where groups of children are active."

"I would hope that each Oregonian will cooperate in every possible manner, not only during this special week but throughout the year, in making our streets and highways safe for all of our citizens and in endeavoring to reduce the needless toll of accidents and fatalities."
