WALL STREET

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market lost its enthusiasm inspired by the end of the rail strike threat today and began to show the effects of some profit taking.

Rails, which had spurred to their highest level in more than seven years Wednesday, showed a loss today.

Steels and motors were narrowly mixed. Du Pont, Hercules Powder and Union Carbide improved in the chemicals.

American Home Products rose considerably in the drugs. Bristol Myers and Abbott Labs also improved.

Litton and Magnavox were outstanding in the electronics. Texas Instruments, Control Data, IBM, Admiral and Electronic Associates did well.

WALL STREET CHATTER

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The going will get tougher as the market approaches new record highs but there are no indications the performance will be reversed," says investment adviser Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co.

Gilbert believes the outcome of any big test will be constructive and sees no reason why the Dow Jones industrial average can't move up to the 850 level before long.

Leslie M. Pollack of Reynolds & Co. points out that oil stocks have been lagging behind the market recently after providing excellent leadership during the early stages of the past year's advance. He views this as a normal consolidation of their sharp run-ups and says he would not be surprised to see them take the upside lead once again.

"Both the short and long-term trends of the market remain upward," says R. Haupt & Co. It expects new record highs in the Dow Jones industrial average soon after Labor Day. "An aggressive approach to the market should be maintained by both traders and investors," it adds.

Plan Would Shift 640 KU Students

ness to abide by the decisions of the court and continue to cooperate with the court in furnishing it with all the required statistics pertaining to the proposed Ward Street plan.

What will the plan mean in terms of the shifting of students, assessed valuation, relieving the overcrowded condition at Klamath Union High School?

Preliminary figures regarding these questions were submitted to the court by Superintendent Robinson before the court made its decision Wednesday.

Of the 951 students living in the overlap area now going to Klamath Union High 311 would continue to go to KU (120 in the Fairhaven attendance area and 191 living north of South Sixth and west of Ward streets) and 640 would attend a county high school.

The move would also mean a shifting of 738 elementary school pupils from county elementary schools to the city district.

In terms of assessed valuation about $8,361,000 would be transferred from the Union High School district to the county. This figure is 19.4 per cent of the $43,132,565 KU district valuation.

How quickly will the move relieve the overcrowded condition at KU? According to the preliminary estimates by the fall term of the 1964-65 school year the county unit will be able to accommodate 253 KU students. By 1965-66 the county could take another 431 KU students leaving 1,816 students at the city high school.
