

Teen-age Tyranny Not A New Thing

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many mothers are in the same boat. I have knocked my self out for 15 years trying to please my children. But no matter what I do, it's never enough. There must be a sign on my back saying, "kick me."

I get up at 6:30 every morning to prepare breakfast for my teen-agers. All I get is come. Did you leave it out all night? The cantaloupe is soggy. The cereal is runny. The eggs are too hard.

When I leave a meeting early to pick them up at the club (for the 50th time this summer) I get a sour look and a "Where have you been anyway? We've been waiting five minutes."

How did the children of today get the upper hand? My teen-agers make me feel like an employe. I find myself always striving to please—and never quite making the grade. Please tell me where I got off the track.

MOTHER, 1963 MODEL

Dear Mother: Children are not born with "the upper hand." It is given to them—given by parents who don't have the courage to establish the rules for the family. This is called discipline. And when rules of behavior are worked out equitably and seasoned with love, discipline produces respectful, well-adjusted children.

Teen-age tyranny is not new, but it is vastly more prevalent than it used to be. This is what Henry James wrote 81 years ago in "Point of View":

"There is nothing in America but young people. The country is made for the rising generation; life is arranged for them; they are the destruction of society. People talk to them, consider them, defer to them, bow down to them. They are always present, and whenever they are present there is an end to everything else. And by children, I don't mean simple infants; I mean anything less than 20."

Defense Can Count Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
It is much more difficult for a defender to count a hand than for declarer, but a good defensive player should be able to do so if he will just take time to see why declarer makes certain plays.

South's three-diamond opening was due to the score situation. He didn't think his opponents would be able to compete against him and he decided to gamble that diamonds would be the spot to play the hand.

He won the first trick with the ace of spades and led a trump to dummy's king. Then he played the ace and another heart and East was in the lead.

So far East had no problems. He put his partner in with a spade and West led the jack of clubs. Dummy's king lost to East's ace and at this point it was up to declarer to reconstruct the hand and East's play had given him all the clues necessary.

Declarer surely held the ace of diamonds and if his suit were seven cards in length there would be little hope of beating him. So East decided to play declarer for six trumps only.

What was his spade holding? Could it be a singleton? Not if it were, declarer would have returned to his hand by ruffing a spade. Could it be a doubleton? A thousand times no! Declarer would have tried to set up a spade for a discard.

Hence, West had opened a doubleton spade. East led a spade for his partner to ruff, won the next club lead and led his last spade. This would have built up another trick for the defense if West had held the trump ten, but as it was, down one was ten per cent satisfactory.

Q—The bidding has been:
 East South West North
 1 ♦ Double Pass 2 ♣
 Pass 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♣
 Pass 3 ♥ Pass 4 ♣
 Pass 5 ♦ Pass 6 ♣
 Pass

You, South, hold:
 ♠ A Q 8 7 ♥ A K 6 5 ♦ 3 ♣ 10 8 5 2

What do you do?
 A—Bid six spades. Your partner is trying to get to seven, but he gave you a chance to quit at four spades earlier so his hand is limited.

TODAY'S QUESTION
 Again you double one diamond. This time West bids one no-trump and North and East pass. What do you do now?

Former Sergeant Finds Life In Communist China Too Tough

HONG KONG (UPI) — A former U.S. Army sergeant who spent 10 years in Communist China "looking for utopia" said Saturday he had gone hungry so his children could eat meat and had watched friends being taken to prison for criticizing the regime.

Albert C. Belhomme, a Belgian citizen who married a Chinese woman and now has three children, returned from China Friday. He said he left so his children could have a better future.

The 34-year-old Belhomme, whose mother lives in Ashland, Pa., showed by his description of life in China that even favored foreigners find it hard to get by on their higher rations and pay.

"I was looking for utopia," he told a news conference. "And it isn't to be found. I think I've stopped looking now."

Belhomme, who plans to return to Belgium with his family, was the second American soldier to leave China this month. Lowell D. Skinner of Akron, Ohio, reached Hong Kong Aug. 1 and now is in the United States.

Belhomme said he refused repatriation at the end of the Korean War, along with 20 other U.S. soldiers, because he was looking for "a better society—better conditions than I'd experienced in the past."

He said the brainwashing he received as a prisoner did not influence him much.

"It was mainly my own quest for a better life, and a touch of adventurism," he said.

—He was forced to go on strike for more than nine months in the Tsinan paper mill, where he worked as an electrician, in order to get an "attendance bonus" that amounted to a 75 per cent raise.

—Since the Chinese "great leap forward" campaign, living conditions have been especially bad, with improvements in the past year still falling short of 1957 levels.

—Chinese officials blame many of their troubles on Russia's failure to live up to contracts and sending poor goods to China.

MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

The Hallmark of Circulation Integrity

In the same way that STERLING on silver signifies a standard of known value, so is this A.B.C. emblem a symbol of FACTS about the circulation of newspapers and periodicals. It is the emblem of membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations* and is assurance to advertisers that the circulations of member publications are measured, and assured and reported in accordance with the rigid standards that have been mutually approved and adopted by advertisers and publishers. Here's why our membership in the A.B.C. is important to our advertisers and ourselves: At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors makes a thorough inspection and audit of our circulation records. The results of this exacting audit show: how much circulation we have; where it goes; how it was obtained; and many other FACTS that advertisers need as a sound basis for their advertising investments. This audited information is published by the Bureau in easy-to-read A.B.C. reports which are available to our advertisers on request.

*The Audit Bureau of Circulations, of which this newspaper is a member, is a non-profit, voluntary association of nearly 4,000 publishers, advertising agencies and publishers, organized by 1914. A.B.C. brought order and uniformity to advertising clubs by establishing a definition for audit circulation, rules and standards for auditing and reporting the circulations of newspapers and periodicals.
