Bees Keep Fair Buzzing

SALEM (UPI) — The natural resources building at the Oregon State Fair was buzzing with excitement Wednesday night when a playful youngster broke a glass cover and allowed a mass of angry honey bees to take over the structure.

As the thousands of bees roared from their container, spectators fled the building.

Diners at a nearby food concession left their food and ran. Officials locked the building and Wednesday morning a bee-keeper was able to swarm the buzzing insects together.

At last report the bees, still not back in their container, were contentedly gathered near the rabbit section, and the building was open again to visitors.

A witness said she heard a woman shout to her son, "Oh, don't, don't," then heard the crinkle of breaking glass.

Southern Belles Continue Sweep Of Beauty Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Southern girls were well out in front today in the 1963 Miss America contest and they have the figures to prove it.

The judges chose Miss Arkansas, Donna Akum, as the winner in the bathing suit category Thursday night and they weren't just whistling Dixie — it just seemed that way.

The 21-year-old brown-eyed brunette, with 124 pounds distributed neatly on a 5-foot-6½ frame, paraded to victory clad in a white one-piece swim suit. Her measurements: 35-23-36.

Miss District of Columbia, Rosanne Tueller, 20, won the talent contest based on her rendition of "I Love Paris," in French. Miss Tueller lives in nearby Virginia and is a native of Florida.

It was a clean sweep for the southern belles.

It was the second straight night that beauties from below the Mason-Dixon Line have romped off with competition honors.

Wednesday night Miss Alabama, Judith Short, won the trophy in the bathing suit category and Miss Virginia, Dorcas Campbell, took top honors in the talent competition.

The third round in the various categories are scheduled for tonight, with the semifinals and finals Saturday night.

Winners in the preliminary evening gown and personality competitions will not be announced until the semifinals.

DEAR POLLY—My hint is for those who like to sew. When there are seams to be pressed, especially in wool, and you do not have a sleeve board, a rolling pin wrapped in a clean dish towel works beautifully. This would also work for pressing suit sleeves where a crease is not wanted.—M. C.

GIRLS—Fasten the towel on the rolling pin with a rubber band at the top and one at the bottom. When sleeves are large, try a terry cloth hand towel around the rolling pin.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I like to tidy my living room at night before retiring. Instead of dumping all the cigarette butts into one large ashtray, I empty the ashtrays into an empty tin coffee can with a lid. Put the lid on tight and the butts will not burn without oxygen. As an added precaution put some water into the can. Now I go to bed with no fear of a fire starting in the trash can.—MRS. J. F.

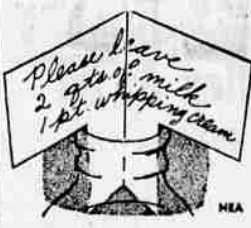

GIRLS—As you go around emptying the ashtrays, carry a damp paper towel to wipe out the ashtrays so they are passably clean until you get around to washing them.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When I need to leave a note for our milkman, I cut paper in the shape of a capital T, about 1½ inches wide. The length is the height of the bottle and I crease it down the center, write my order at the top and put into an empty bottle. Several can be cut at one time. Never a note lost!—M. M. H.

DEAR POLLY—When packing my cosmetics for traveling, I fill and label plastic prescription bottles with the needed hand lotion, cleansing cream, powder, astringent, etc. from my large economy size packages. This not only prevents breakage and spillage but narrows everything down to a compact size.—ANOTHER POLLY

GIRLS — This would certainly help solve the weight problem when travelling by air.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—We are living in such an era of mass gift giving

I remove ribbons from gifts that arrive at our house and add them to our gift wrapping box. Also I use pretty shell paper for wrapping and find I save money.

Since starting to plan ahead, gift giving is no longer a chore to me or such a strain on the budget. It is now a real pleasure and I save money, too.—MRS. V. J.

GIRLS — It is amazing what pretty gifts can be assembled with some bits of material and 10 nimble fingers.—POLLY

Granny Perches On State Capitol Steps Seeking Increase In Welfare Benefits

OLYMPIA (UPI) — "I have a blanket which keeps me warm, and if it rains I'll go back under the eaves like the pigeons."

Mrs. Peggy Goodman, a 59-year-old grandmother from Seattle, said she planned to sit on the State Capitol steps a rain or shine, day and night, until Gov. Albert D. Rosellini calls a special session of the legislature to increase welfare benefits.

Mrs. Goodman, who is confined to a wheelchair, said she was fighting for all of the state's recipients of public assistance.

Mrs. Goodman, who finished her second night out this morning, insisted that she was perfectly comfortable.

"But one thing I could use is a vacuum bottle so I could get some hot black coffee at night."

Mrs. Goodman has been kept supplied with food by state employees and other passersby.

The food, mostly hamburgers, pie and coffee from the Capitol cafeteria, is brought to her. Mrs. Goodman won't leave the steps to go after it.

What happens if the food supply stops?

Mrs. Goodman said she would face that possibility when the time came.

"I didn't come here with the intention of getting handouts but everyone has been so good to me, it wouldn't be polite to refuse."

Mrs. Goodman wore a light summer dress but she had several sweaters and her blanket.

She said she got only about an hour and a half of sleep Wednesday night, the first night of her sit-on.

Mrs. Goodman immediately became something of a tourist attraction. Told she was famous, she replied:

"I don't want all of this publicity, but I think it is the only way to get the job done. I know

Mrs. Goodman said she wanted the legislature to provide funds to restore a 12 per cent reduction in state welfare payments.

Mrs. Goodman emphasized that her dispute was with the legislature and not with the governor. "He has done all he can," she said. "But the legislators should be spanked."
