Recordings Show Durante Is Aging

NEW YORK (UPI)—As far back as many people in show business can remember, Jimmy Durante has always been the carefree but boisterous singer with a sadistic peeve against the flimsy piano.

It's all an act, of course, but Jimmy likes to tear apart a piano literally as well as figuratively and this is always good for a laugh.

And Durante, no great singer, has always been an artist who can put aside formality and get across a song through the magic of his personality.

Since Jimmy is the most beloved gentleman of entertainment, it is hoped he has not made a mistake in recording "September Song, The New Jimmy Durante" (Warner Bros. 1506).

Here is a grouping of sentimental songs, such as the title number. Jimmy sings each of them well. But in doing so he imparts a feeling of sadness, that the indestructible Jimmy at last is getting old, rusty and mildewed. Also it has the unpleasant aftereffect of making those who have followed Jimmy since his "I Can Do Without Broadway," "Inka Dinka Doo" and "I'll Do the Strut-a-way in My Cut-a - Way" days feel they are getting old, too.

Another great star, one who is known as an actor rather than a singer, is the force behind an LP that has universal appeal. The record is called "Burgess Meredith Sings the Songs from 'How The West Was Won'" (Col Pix SCP 432). Meredith's great showmanship comes forth as he tunefully goes over "Wait for the Wagon," "Shenandoah" and other tunes.

The Lighter Side—"What Would Have Happened If" (Coral CRL 757428) is an amusing farce about double takes in history. Written by Jay Burton and Gene Wood and starring Wood, some of the sequences are excellent but others fall flat. Even so, it is worth at least one spin.

Selected Singles — "Summer Skies and Golden Sands" by the Overlanders (Mercury 72165), "Cry to Me" by Betty Harris (Jubilee 45-5456), "Tengo Tango" by the Cannonball Adderley Sextet (Riverside RF-4562), "Little Queenie" by Bobby Rydell (Cameo C-265), "Be My Little Baby Bumble Bee" by the Osmond Brothers (MGM K13162).

LP's of the Week — Mono: "A Portrait of Nancy" by Nancy Ames (Liberty LRP 3299). The most georgeous of the folk singers follows up her smash "The Incredible Nancy Ames" with a dozen songs north and south of the equator. Stereo: "New Directions" by The Journeymen (Capitol ST 1951). Scott McKenzie, Dick Weissman and John Phillips are giving the Limeliters some fine competition with their folk songs.

'Combat' Star Vic Morrow Moves Steadily Up Ladder Of Success

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vic Morrow, the tough and grimy sergeant of the "Combat!" television series, is shopping for a new house.

Two years ago the actor and his wife, Barbara, moved into a three-bedroom, ranch-style home in the San Fernando Valley. With only one daughter, Carrie Ann, there was plenty of room for everyone. Now, however, there is another little Morrow, Jennifer Lee, and Vic needs a roomier establishment.

When he does find a new home it will be another step up the status ladder for Vic who started near the bottom. Less than 10 years ago he drove a taxicab in New York City to pay the expense of attending Paul Mann's Actors Workshop. Barbara sold orange juice to help out.

Slowly, steadily his career has provided security for his family. And as the star of "Combat!" (ABC-TV) Morrow has built an identity with American moviegoers and televiewers, an achievement he believes is of paramount importance to an actor.

In addition to acting, Morrow works at screen writing and producing. When time permits he locks himself in a small studio behind his home to edit film and pound a typewriter.

He has purchased the screen rights to "Deathwatch," in which he played a leading role on the New York stage. He hopes to produce it next spring when he completes this season's episodes of "Combat!"

His first effort as a producer resulted in "Last Year At Malibu," a 12-minute short subject which he made for fun.

Surprisingly, it was shown in a Sunset Strip night club for several weeks, and then ran for an additional six weeks in a Los Angeles art house.

Eventually Morrow hopes to become a director. To prepare for the job he took a course in film editing at the University of Southern California. For practical experience he brought reels of film home, splicing and experimenting with the business of putting a movie together.

Morrow's drive to fulfill his ambition does not leave a great deal of time for Hollywood's social swim, the bright lights and parties. While the glamour crowd lives it up Vic is hard at work.

"When I'm working in the series I'm off to the studio at 5:30 in the morning," he says. "And I'm so tired after a day's work of climbing hills and firing weapons that I stop for a drink somewhere on the way home. By the time I eat dinner it's 8 o'clock and I don't get to see much of the children."

Vic was a motorcycle buff until two years ago when he suffered a bad spill at 65-miles-per-hour on the Hollywood Freeway. Now he is content with being a spectator at sports events.

When the grind of work presses too heavily on Morrow, he and Barbara (her professional name is Barbara Turner) pack their daughters into the family car and go for a long drive.

Because Barbara also works they have a housekeeper who stays with the children during the day.

"We spend our weekends looking for that new house," Morrow says. "But the prices around Los Angeles are out of this world. We'll keep searching until we find the right place — one with plenty of room for film-cutting."

Bea Benaderet Gets Chance To Star In Her Own Series

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Bea Benaderet, who played Aunt Pearl in "The Beverly Hillbillies" last year, will star in her own series this season, once more playing a widow.

Character actress Benarderet is a veteran of four video series, playing the nosey neighbor on the "Burns and Allen" show for eight years, an inept maid for a year on "Peter Loves Mary," the voice of Betty Rubble on "The Flintstones," and, of course, the old bag on the "Hillbillies."

But when she hits the air this month in "Petticoat Junction" Miss Benaderet will be getting star billing for the first time and will be carrying the burden of making the show a hit.

The prospect concerns her—when she stops to think of it.

Sleepless Nights

"Everyone who goes from supporting roles to starring parts is aware of the responsibilities," she said. "And sometimes I don't sleep very well at nights thinking about it."

The new CBS-TV offering presents Miss Benaderet as the proprietor of the shady rest hotel a ramshackle whistle stop on an ancient railroad line between two backwater towns.

As the widow Kate Bradley she is a mother of three gorgeous daughters—Jeannine Riley (a blonde), Pat Woodell (a brunette) and Linda Kaye (a redhead). The comedy will be less raucous than on "The Beverly Hillbillies" and somewhat blended with sentiment.

New Wardrobe

"And I'll be getting away from the salvation army wardrobe I wore as Aunt Pearl," Miss Benaderet said during a noon break.

"I like Pearl very much, and it was difficult to leave a character like her. At the moment I have no idea whether I'll have time to make an appearance or two as Pearl this season.

"Kate Bradley is a lot different from the characters I've played in the past. She has to walk the fine line between being humorous and tender. The other women I've played were strictly for laughs."

Well-Known Voice

Miss Benaderet was known for her voice long before her face became familiar to the public. For years in radio she played regular roles on Jack Benny's show, "The Great Gildersleeve," "My Friend Irma," "Fibber McGee and Molly" and "Meet Millie."

"Going from one series to another hasn't bothered me," Miss Benaderet said. "And I've never worried about being typed.

"But I've played so much comedy that some movie and television producers were afraid to cast me in dramatic roles for fear I'd get laughs in the wrong places."

In the months to come the actress will be delighted to collect laughs wherever she finds them. As the star of "Petticoat Junction" it will be up to her to see that viewers are amused.

Hubby Now Outranks Navy Wife

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — At last attorney Patrick Coleman can give his wife orders and have them followed — but only for two weeks each year.

Both Patrick and Dorothy Coleman are lieutenants in the Naval Reserve and go on active duty each year for the two week period. But now Patrick has been selected for lieutenant commander.

This makes him the boss — or so says regulations.

The Colemans met in 1957 during their active duty periods. The meeting started when Dorothy broke Patrick's coffee cup — an item considered sacred to a Navy man. The fracture ended in serious consequences. The couple was married shortly afterwards.

The popular Tish stories were written by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

New Show To Glorify Teachers

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — School children will be horrified to learn that a teacher will be glorified as the hero of a new television series making its debut this month.

Video has run the gamut of heroes from cowboys to doctors and lawyers and detectives.

Eeven insurance adjusters, firemen and rodeo riders have been immortalized on television. But until now the poor, downtrodden pedagogue has been played only for laughs on the idiot tube in such as "Our Miss Brooks" and "Mister Peepers."

Now, at last, the teacher comes into his own on "Mister Novak."

Suitably, it seems, the title role will be played by a Yale graduate named Jim Franciscus, a handsome and youthful actor who bears a noticeable resemblance to Dick Chamberlain of "Dr. Kildare."

Franciscus brings to his role a zeal to lift the nation's teachers out of their rut as social and economic inferiors, if, indeed, they have fallen to such low estate.

"It's true," says Franciscus. "Teachers are looked down on in most communities and discriminated against. I feel this new show will do for the teachers what television has done for doctor and lawyer heroes.

We also have something to say for teen-agers. In our shows they are depicted as young adults, not as delinquents or gooly kids."

Franciscus is beginning to sound like a teacher already. He will portray a rookie high school teacher, and to be sure he doesn't pull any rocks a full time technical adviser is on the set at all times.

Co-starring with the handsome Franciscus is Dean Jagger (an Oscar winner) in the role of principal. Classroom scenes will be filmed on sound stages at MGM, but exteriors and other campus scenes are being made at Los Angeles' John Marshall High School.
