Helen Davis-Robert Ani Exchange Wedding Vows

The music of "Panis Angelicus," "Ave Maria," and "O Beautiful Mother," by the organist, Eddie Butler, and vocalist, James Chance of Merrill, set the mood for the impressive double ring ceremony when Helen Virginia Davis of Klamath Falls, and Robert Welolani Ani Jr. of 36C Kalamia Street, Kailua Oahu, Hawaii, exchanged marriage vows.

The wedding mass was read by Father Charles T. Grant at 11 a.m. in Sacred Heart Catholic Church on Aug. 17, before a large assembly of relatives and friends.

Helen Virginia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elnathan Davis of 730 North Ninth Street, this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Agnes Lehua Ani of Kailua, Oahu, Hawaii.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Arrangements of light and dark lavender gladioli, white chrysanthemums and masses of ferns were used at the main altar, the side altar and in beauty baskets.

Altar boys, Elnathan G. Davis, brother of the bride, and Joe Slowey assisted at the service.

The bridal gown of imported French bronzie and Chantilly lace, was fashioned with snugly fitted bodice. The hand-clipped, scalloped neckline was frosted with iridescent sequins and seed pearls. The bouffant skirt of satin was enhanced with wide front and back panels of the lace which also encircled the skirt and swept into a graceful chapel train. Tiny satin bows caught the back lace panel.

Her imported tulle fingertip veil was held in place by a pearl encrusted crown of matching lace, pearls and sequins. Her bridal bouquet was of yellow and white Varda orchids with stephanotis.

Mrs. Malinda Brown of Klamath Falls, who preceded the bride down the aisle, wore a lemon yellow silk organza, bell-skirted frock with medium round neck and back bow bustle.

Bridesmaids Kathleen Anne Cronin, Judith Anne Madden, both of Klamath Falls, Etie Benigna Yribarren, Alturas, and Ida Nell Davis, sister of the bride, this city, wore identical frocks to that of the honor attendant in lilac organza. All wore flat-crowned, white picture hats with narrow velvet bows and streamers in deeper shades than the dresses. All carried colonial bouquets of Varda orchids.

Minnie Kay Davis, a junior attendant, carried blossoms in a white basket tied with lilac and yellow ribbons to scatter petals for her sister.

Ushers were Marvin Davis, the bride's brother, of Klamath Falls, Chanson Ching of Burlingame, Calif., Kenneth Nakayama, Burlingame, and George Flores of this city.

Mrs. Elnathan Davis wore an azalea pink imported silk linen jacket ensemble with narrow mink collar, large matching pink hat and complementing accessories. She also wore a cluster of Varda orchids at the shoulder.

Mrs. Ani was unable to make the trip to the mainland for her son's wedding. Immediately following the service, guests greeted the new Mr. and Mrs. Ani in the parish hall of Sacred Heart Church.

An arrangement of white snapdragons, pink carnations, orchids and white pompon chrysanthemums complemented by silver appointments and lighted tapers, were on the bride's table.

Each guest at the reception was presented with a small orchid corsage or boutonniere.

Orchids for the wedding were sent by members of the bridegroom's family from Hawaii.

The tiered white wedding cake was served by Diane Brazil after the traditional first serving was given by the bridegroom to the bride.

Mrs. Edward Yasara was at the guest book; Mrs. Kenneth Lambie served petite sandwiches. Mrs. Donald Vincent was at the silver coffee service. Mrs. Willy Dunster served tea. At the crystal punch bowl were Mrs. Victorine Milani and Mrs. Leroy Barkley.

Special guests at the wedding and the reception were the bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Florida Soto of Klamath Falls, her aunt, Ramona Soto, Miss Indian America of 1962 in the United States; Mrs. Adela Countryman, Mills City, Ore., maternal grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Balza, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Halfmoon, Pendleton; Mrs. Lynn Martin, Klamath Falls.

For traveling to Los Angeles, and points south, the new Mrs. Ani wore a lemon yellow straw cloth sheath jacket dress, white accessories and the orchid from her wedding bouquet at the shoulder.

Mrs. Ani is a graduate of Sacred Heart Academy, class of 1963. Her husband, 1959 graduate of the Kamehameha Schools in Honolulu, Hawaii, is presently with United Airlines at San Francisco.

The couple will live in Burlingame.
