

Kennedy's Trip Looks Political But White House Claims It Isn't

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Democratic senators are running for reelection in 9 of 11 states President Kennedy will visit on an inspection tour later this month, but the White House insisted Saturday the trip is "non-political."

Kennedy will embark Sept. 24 on a five-day transcontinental tour of conservation projects and scenic wonders. He was invited to make the trip by the senators involved in the election campaign.

The whirlwind 10,000-mile journey will have all of the intense pace and much of the flavor of campaign travel. But the President plans to savor some of the rustic life he will be seeing and will spend one night in a log cabin in California's Lassen Volcanic National Park.

Two Stops Planned In Oregon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will make two stops in Oregon Sept. 27, the White House has announced.

The President will visit Astoria at 1:05 p.m. from Tacoma, Wash., and is expected to visit the abandoned Tongue Point Naval Base.

The White House said today the President would visit Portland, and the North Bend - Coos Bay area with details still to be filled in. He was expected to dedicate Northwest Towers in Portland, a public housing project for the elderly.

He is tentatively scheduled to leave Portland at 4 p.m. for Redding, Calif.

The chief executive's schedule for the Northwest indicated he will fly to Larson Air Force Base, Moses Lake, Wash., from Montana on Thursday, Sept. 26, and then by helicopter to the Hanford Atomic Energy Works near Richland, Wash. to dedicate the world's largest atomic power plant.

His party will arrive at Seattle-Tacoma Airport about noon Friday after a trip to Salt Lake City for an address.

Following his address in Tacoma he is to fly to Astoria.

Sens. Maurine Neuberger and Wayne Morse and Reps. Edith Green and Al Ullman, all of Oregon, are to join the presidential party during the Oregon visit.

Democratic senators face 1964 reelection in these nine states: Wisconsin, North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Nevada, California, Minnesota and Washington. He also will visit Oregon, where there will be no Senate contest next year.

Sensors Extend Invitation

Acting White House Press Secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said Kennedy had been invited to each of the states by Democratic senators, except Pennsylvania where Interior Secretary Stewart Udall extended the invitation.

But Hatcher added: "I don't think the trip was determined by whether a senator is up for reelection. As you can see, this is an inspection and observation tour of national parks, recreation areas, conservation, reclamation and water resource projects."

Hatcher added that it would be "safe to say that in each case, the steps were discussed with the senators from those states." He said he anticipated "that the inviting senators will be present at all those sites."

In Denver, where he is attending the meeting of the Republican Governors' Association, GOP National Chairman William Miller said the trip was "non-political in name only."

"He (Kennedy) just happens to be visiting states he lost in 1960, or states where there are Senate races in 1964," Miller said.

At least 13 speeches are scheduled, at locales ranging from the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, Utah, where a "major" address is listed, to the Whiskeytown Reservoir in California. The strenuous itinerary includes one switch after another from the big presidential jet plane to a smaller DC-6 to helicopters and back.

Extradition Delay Eyed

SPOKANE (UPI) — The attorney for Charlie Will Cauthen, 26, fighting to delay Cauthen's extradition to Georgia where execution awaits him, said Friday he has been informed the American Civil Liberties Union will formally petition the governor for a delay.

Carl Maxey, Cauthen's attorney, said the ACLU will make the request Tuesday in Olympia where an extradition hearing will be held by Gov. Albert D. Rosellini.

Maxey said that he will request a delay at that time to allow time for accumulation of evidence so that he can eventually ask that the governor deny extradition.

Cauthen was arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Warden last month on a fugitive warrant for murder.

Cauthen escaped from the county jail at Griffin, Ga., on May 25, 1959. He was being held there awaiting death in the electric chair after being convicted of the murder of a white service station attendant in a $500 robbery.

'Dead' Man Lives Again

LA GRANDE (UPI) — A 58-year-old La Grande man who was pronounced clinically dead after collapsing from an apparent heart attack here was revived with the aid of a cardiac defibrillator Friday.

Rice McHaley had his heart started with the defibrillator in a La Grande hospital after having collapsed about 45 minutes earlier. He was listed in critical condition Friday night.

Both his physician, Dr. William Kubler, and Union County Coroner Dr. Jay Sloop had pronounced the victim clinically dead upon arrival at the hospital.

Dr. Kubler said his examination disclosed the patient had no blood pressure, was not breathing and that his heart had stopped. However, artificial resuscitation had been kept up on McHaley.

The defibrillator, used to break heart flutter, sent 440 volt pulses into McHaley's heart via electrodes attached to his chest. The victim's heart was started three times before it began to pump by itself.

Fame, Fortune, Trouble Followed Dionne Quints

MONTREAL (UPI) — The birth of the Dionne quintuplets on May 28, 1934, Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne, came at a time when Canada was in the throes of an economic depression and Canadians badly needed something to take away their attention from their own problems.

Their birth turned the village of Callander, Ontario, into a newspaper dateline ranking with Paris, London and Stockholm.

The quints made medical history, born identical and prematurely. Their mother, Mrs. Olivia Dionne already had seven boys and girls. Within hours of the news, the simple Dionne home was thronged with promoters eager to cash in on the birth.

A few days after their birth, their father signed a contract for them to appear at the Chicago World's Fair. A few hours later, he regretted his decision and it was not carried out.

From then on the quints were financially assured for the rest of their days.

Within two months of their birth the quints were made wards of the King to save them from what was termed as "certain death" by exploitation.

Eight years later the quints were returned to their parents custody.

Three years after their birth, the quint's fortune from film, newspaper and advertising contracts was estimated at $768,000. They lent their now world-famous names to lollipops, cod liver oil, hair ribbons and dozens of other products.

Every move they made was headlined throughout the nation.

The quints were often the center of legal controversies. One of them saw their father sue the county physician who delivered them for allegedly making profit for himself by using the names of the quints. The suit was thrown out of court.

When Canada entered World War II the Dionnes were pushed from the front pages of newspapers.

In 1953, Marie became a novice at a nunnery. But after a year behind cloistered walls, she left because of ailing health. She had always been the frailest of the five quints.

Tragedy struck that same year, Emilie, who also had entered a convent to take up a religious life, died of suffocation during an epileptic seizure.

The next year, when the four surviving quints reached the age of 21, they each came into $250,000, their share of a $1 million trust fund accumulated from royalties and endorsements since childhood.

The quints made the news again at Christmas of 1955 when all four were living in Montreal. Yvonne and Cecile were nurses training at a Montreal hospital while Annette and Marie were living in a luxurious apartment house. Their father, Olivia Dionne, bitterly claimed that his daughters, now that they were financially independent, were cutting loose from the family and that the girls had come under the influence of "outside intruders."

The family quarrel was fought on the newspaper front pages.

Three of the quints — Marie, Annette and Cecile — married and gave birth to eight children. The fourth, Yvonne, is now with a religious order in New Brunswick studying painting and wood carving.
