Four-Card Fit Sought

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
When you use Jacoby-Stayman with a game going hand the purpose is to find a 4-4 major suit fit if there is one. Hence, you always must have at least one four-card major when you use it.
You may also have a five-card major. In that case if your partner bids either major suit in response to two clubs you raise to three or four as your hand warrants, if he bids two diamonds you jump to three of your five-card major. If you have no five-card major and he bids two diamonds you simply bid the approximate number of no-trump.
Twenty-six points is normally enough for game. This time South saw that 29 points might be inadequate.
He ducked the first diamond, but won the continuation. He led his eight of spades and put in dummy's ten after West played the four. East won with the king and led back his last diamond.
At this point South had his nine top tricks and there was a double dummy way to make a tenth which I leave to you readers to figure out. South tried the more logical method of discarding a spade from dummy leading the deuce of clubs and playing dummy's eight spot after West played the three.
This play would give him ten tricks if either hearts or clubs broke and in addition allowed for certain squeeze possibilities.
None worked, but South was perfectly satisfied with making his contract. If he had gone wrong in spades he might have gone down.

To learn Jacoby-Stayman bidding, a copy of "Win at Bridge With Oswald Jacoby" is helpful. Just send your name, address, and 50 cents to: Oswald Jacoby Reader Service, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 488, Dept. A, Radio City Station, New York, 19, N.Y.

What do you do?
A—Bid four clubs. Your partner is clearly showing the ace of hearts and slam interest. Confirm the fact that you have a good five-card club suit. You have already shown five spades by your transfer bid.
TODAY'S QUESTION
You bid four clubs and your partner bids four diamonds. What do you do now?

Kilmer Oak Dismantled

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (UPI)—The famed "Kilmer Oak" got the ax Wednesday.
A meticulous band of tree experts began dismantling the towering white tree under gray, leaden skies that poured a brisk rain on the campus of Rutgers University.
"It's a terrible day for a funeral," said Russell Stanton, a Rutgers agriculture official who arranged the requiem for the famous tree.
The tree, which is believed to have inspired poet Joyce Kilmer to write the poem "Trees," almost got a reprieve from the weatherman.
Rutgers officials were pondering whether to postpone the "execution" until a clear day. But the tree experts who volunteered as executioners said they were ready to do the job rain or shine.
Joyce Kilmer, World War I soldier-poet, attended Rutgers and is believed to have composed his famous poem after seeing the tall oak so many times on the college of agriculture grounds.
The tree, in a decline for several years, is dead and university officials decided it must be removed.
Kilmer was killed in action in France in 1918 at the age of 31.
