

OFF TO EUROPE — Two Oregon women and one from Northern California are on a woman-to-women homemakers tour of Europe. They joined a group of other housewives from four states aboard a transpolar Pan American Airways jet from Seattle to London. They will tour England, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Austria and France and they will call on and visit with homemakers in each of these countries, leaving souvenir "friendship hankies" as tokens of good will from America. Construction of the dormitory at the new Oregon Technical Institute campus is expected to begin within a few days.

The contractor for the job, H. Halvorsen of Spokane, is in Klamath Falls to oversee the beginning of the work and a building permit is being prepared in the office of the city building inspector.

Halvorsen was awarded the contract last month on a low bid of $814,717.

In addition, Urban Plumbing and Heating Company of Portland holds a $143,717 contract for work on those features and Ace Electric Company of Portland has a $82,959 contract for electrical construction in the new building.

The dormitory is designed to accommodate 328 students.

When bids were first opened Aug. 14, all were found to be at least $150,000 over the available funds. But the specifications were adjusted and the contract awarded to Halvorsen.

Construction of the radioactive isotope laboratory on the new campus is being delayed until the outcome of the Oct. 15 tax referendum election is known.

Cuban Exile Says Group Caught, Shot

MIAMI (UPI) — A Cuban underground spokesman said today Premier Fidel Castro's troops captured and executed "nearly all" of a 100-man landing party that went ashore on the northern coast of Oriente Province.

Francisco Moro, spokesman for the anti-Castro underground group known as the Oriente liberation front, said the landing took place "recently" in the Malagueta swamps between the port cities of Manati and Puerto Padre. He did not name the exact date.

The area is close to the Oriente border with Camaguey Province. Moro said Castro "blanketed" the area with 9,000 troops who succeeded in capturing "more than 80" of the invaders. All of those captured were executed.

"The last group to be captured comprised 16 men, including Manuel Rodriguez, leader of the expedition, and all were shot," Moro said. Rodriguez was said to be from Miami.

He added that, according to reports received from the zone, "there is little hope" for those still at large.

The landing failed largely because underground guerrillas, whom they were assigned to join, did not receive word of the invaders' arrival until it was too late, he said.

The Cuban government has not confirmed the landing so far.

The Liberation Oriental Front is composed mainly by farmers of Oriente Province who operate exclusively in that area. It is described as one of the lesser anti-Castro underground groups.
