

Grant Given For Study At Lakeview

LAKEVIEW—The Oregon State Board of Higher Education will receive an $18,100 federal grant under the Urban Planning Assistance Plan for aid to the cities of Lakeview, Salem, and Polk County, Congressman Al Ulman announced Monday. The money will be used for comprehensive planning from the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

According to Ulman, the planning work for Lakeview will cost $2,350. Two-thirds of this will be provided by the federal grant, and the balance by local funds. No exact figure is available as to the amount furnished by the government for Lakeview, because the cities share the administrative cost, he said.

The planning studies are of the economic base, employment, traffic, transit, railroad and airport facilities, and include survey and analyses of existing physical conditions, population, land use, and community facilities.

For Lakeview in particular, there is to be prepared a zoning ordinance and zoning map.

Union Meet Hears Talk On Compensation Law

EUGENE (UPI)—The chairman of the State Industrial Accident Commission said Wednesday increased benefits and strong administration were more important to a new workers' compensation law than the agency implementing the program.

William A. Callahan told the state AFL-CIO convention here that the art of a successful workmen's compensation program is supervision and control by a powerful but fair board of commission.

"Good provisions of the law and a strong, well-financed board of commission can give injured workmen and widows satisfactory service under any type of workmen's compensation law," he said.

Callahan said he believed that an exclusive state fund can be the most economical and satisfactory plan for workmen's compensation. Exclusive state coverage is

Dionne Girls Blame Parents For Childhood Unhappiness

NEW YORK (UPI)—The four surviving Dionne quintuplets disclosed today that their childhood was painfully unhappy and blamed their parents for failing to treat them as separate identities and expose them to ordinary experiences.

In a bitter autobiography appearing in the current issue of McCall's magazine—less than a week after the birth of the children as one family, the quintuplets were treated as five who equally amounted to one, five of a kind so close and alike that we could not possibly have separate identities or desires," they wrote.

"We were drenched with a sense of having sinned from the hour of our birth . . . we did not know any other children, and Yvonne is a boy to be friends with . . . we had no training whatever for any kind of career."

The Dionnes said their happiest years were those early ones spent separated from their family in the nursery built for them in Corbett. The long, determined struggle of their father, a staminal, to wrest control of his daughters from Dr. A. R. Dafoe, who delivered them, and their assistant after their birth was, "They will say we are pigs."

The sisters said their parents "shoved toward each other as though they had been partners in some unspoken crime by bringing us into the world" and "drummed us into us that the discord in which they lived was the family lived much of the time; but they say modern care was our doing." "Dad" a n d "Mom" Dionne treated their older Emilie had no such care."
