

Wife Offers Sloppy Husband

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter for the woman who signed herself, "Gypsy." She is the rich widow who is trying to buy a husband. She says she is miserable and lonely and her money is not bringing her happiness. She wants a husband and is willing to pay for one.

Well, Gypsy, you can have my lumox if you will pay for the divorce. He is exactly what you are looking for, Ed is in his middle 50s, nice looking, enjoys a good time and would just love to relax and let somebody support him.

Maybe for you, Gypsy, he would bathe and shave and get dressed up once in a while. For me he figures it's good enough to look like a bum. And you would never be lonesome with Ed around because all he does is talk talk talk talk. But don't try to say anything, because his opinions are the only ones worth listening to.

Let me know if you want him. I'll send the jerk C.O.D.—MRS. HAD IT

Dear Mrs. H: Sorry, but when I checked with the postal authorities recently I learned it is against the law to send dead dogs in the mail. The same rules apply to fifth rate husbands.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's oldest sister was widowed seven years ago. Her children are grown and she has a beautiful home, a nice income and a complete life. She has been the head of numerous important charity drives in the community and she is considered socially prominent.

We just learned that she is serious about marrying a man who works in a department store. They've been keeping steady company for several months but we never dreamed it would blossom into anything like marriage. To say we are shocked is putting it mildly.

This man is very ordinary in looks and his personality is nothing to write home about. If my sister-in-law marries him it will certainly damage her socially and she will be dropped by some of her better friends. I don't think she sees how this marriage will change her life totally.

Please print this letter. She needs your advice badly. —LAKE FOREST

Dear Lake: She didn't ask for my advice and I'll bet she didn't ask for yours either.

You are right when you say this marriage might change her life. It could change it for the better. So why don't you get busy with a charity drive yourself. Toots? I don't think you have thought to do.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16 years old, no great beauty but I'm not what you'd call ugly either. I've got a nice figure, look well in my clothes and I'm neat. I'd give anything if I could be popular with boys, but I guess I never will be because I don't know how.

My girl friend has fellows running after her all the time. I can't figure out how she does it. She isn't beautiful—in fact, she's far from it, but she has a way with fellows that really clicks. She gets three or four phone calls every night. Boys ask her to help them with school work, although she almost flunked math and science. They flock around her after class and date her up for school parties months in advance.

Why does she succeed with what seems like no effort? And why do I fail when I try so hard?—MISS BLAH

Dear Miss: The prettiest girl has no lock on popularity and neither does the brainiest. Your friend has learned how to make boys comfortable. They enjoy themselves when they are with her. She is both interesting and interested. Listen to her and watch her when she is with boys. You'll learn something.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Tax Referral Election Will Cost State Between $250,000 And $275,000

SALEM (UPI)—It will cost Oregon taxpayers from 75 cents to $1 a vote to determine the future of the $60 million state income tax increase measure at the Oct. 15 special election.

Estimates are that between 300,000 and 350,000 persons will vote.

Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. estimates the election will cost between $250,000 and $275,000. The legislature set a $300,000 limit on the cost.

Normally, counties pay about 90 per cent of the cost of elections and the state about 20 per cent. But because the legislature set aside a special date for the tax referendum vote, it has to pay the full cost.

Present estimates are $2,275 for election supplies, $7,200 for official and sample ballots, $156,400 for salaries for election board workers, $18,000 for rental of polling places, $13,000 for printing of the voters' pamphlet, $7,200 for postage, and $5,500 for addressing and mailing of voters' pamphlets.

In addition to this $209,555, there will be the cost of transporting election workers and supplies, and other miscellaneous charges that could add $50,000 or $60,000 to the base estimate.

Appling already has notified county clerks of procedures to be followed, and outlined what the state will and will not pay.

He said he would demand receipts or certified statements of expenses from the counties. Because the law requires a precinct for every 500 registered voters, and does not allow consolidation of precincts in special elections there will be 3,266 precincts in operation.

When estimates of the election cost were submitted to the legislature this spring, a 16-page voters' pamphlet costing $11,226 was envisioned.

Because the tax law is so long, the pamphlet will be 32 pages. By changing the format of the booklet, and having it glued instead of stitched, cost of the larger book was held to $130,000. By juggling the number of precinct workers, Appling was able to shave $70,600 off the estimated $227,000 for salaries of election board workers. Instead of having five workers, who get paid $1 an hour, working 14 hours, Appling has authorized three clerks for the afternoon voting peak and vote counting period.

"This saves us about $22 for each of the 3,260 precincts in the state," Appling said.

He said because there is only one issue on the ballot that voting will be quick, and "the results should be in early in the evening."
