Supervisor's Testimony Refutes Defense Stand

Testimony from an Air Force sergeant in circuit court early Monday gave credence to the possibility that A.C. Donald E. Bailey, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was in the home of the 10-year-old Klamath Falls girl at the time he is accused of having fondled her. The comments of Tech. Sgt. Ronald H. Drew, supervisor of Airman Bailey at the Keno Radar Station, supported the testimony of the alleged victim and was in contradiction to remarks that Bailey had made to the jury in court earlier last week. The trial resumed in the court of Judge David R. Vandenberg Monday as it entered its fourth day after recessing last Thursday. Bailey is accused of having fondled the 10-year-old girl during one incident in May and another in June. Testimony of the sergeant, who maintains attendance records of Bailey and other airmen working with him, concerned only the alleged fondling episode in May. Sergeant Drew was a surprise rebuttal witness summoned by district attorney Dale Crabtree to refute testimony by Airman Bailey, who told the jury earlier last week that he had not been away from the radar station during any weekday in May. The alleged May incident was said to have occurred during a weekday, before the youngster departed for school and as the girl's mother was ironing her a dress. Bailey and the youngster's mother had been dating. On the witness stand, the sergeant referred to his records and told the jury that Bailey had been off duty during six weekdays in May, including one when he was known to have been away from the station all day to keep a dental appointment. After Drew left the witness stand, Bailey was summoned before the jury to explain the absences away from duty. The airman said he did not recall one of those occasions, but as to the others he said he had slept overnight at the station. The defense attorney then called as a witness Mrs. Agnes Buzzee, grandmother of the complainant, who told the jury that her granddaughter had not told her of any fondling incident which was alleged to have occurred involving the girl and the airman. The youngster had testified that she had told her grandmother of the episode that took place in May.

NEW KENNELS BUILT — Photo shows new kennels being constructed at the Klamath Falls dog pound on Memorial Drive. Ten new kennels will double the capacity of the pound. The kennels feature built-in heating and are constructed of concrete. The construction will allow five temporary kennels to be demolished.

Convicted Wife Slayer Takes Own Life In Cell

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — George F. Sack, 69, former Portland apartment house owner convicted in the bizarre slaying of his wife in 1954, took his own life at the state penitentiary here today, Warden Clarence T. Gladden said. Sack was convicted and condemned by a jury in Portland in September of 1954 following the slaying of his wife, Goldie, in Portland on Feb. 18, 1954. His death sentence later was commuted to life imprisonment by then Gov. Robert D. Holmes. Gladden said it was the first suicide at the prison in several years. Sack's body was found in his cell with a shoestring tied around his neck. Prison officials said he had used a toothbrush to wind the shoestring tight. A note written by Sack said, "Let it be known that I forgive and forget all my accusers, and I ask the same forgiveness in return. Please bury me in Salem." Sack, who was assigned to the tailor shop, did not report for work this morning and his body was found in his cell by a prison officer. The body of Sack's wife was found in Portland in 1954. During the trial a state witness said he saw Sack carry something from the trunk of his car near the spot where her body was found. Sack came here from the Midwest where in 1925 he was arraigned at Chicago for the shooting of his second wife under the name "Sacks." He was defended by famed lawyer Clarence Darrow and was sent to the Illinois State hospital without conviction. He was released seven years later and moved to the Northwest.

Triple Crash Driver Cited

Three autos collided at South Sixth and Shasta Way Sunday night, resulting in the citation of a 59-year-old Klamath Falls man for failure to yield right of way. He is Ernesto Zamboni, 2303 Darrow Avenue. Police Monday morning were still investigating the crash—attempting to determine the direction each of the three autos was traveling when the crash occurred. A preliminary report said Zamboni's 1960 sedan struck a 1962 Chevy sedan driven by Bernard Cavanaugh, 43, 420 Jefferson. The Cavanaugh vehicle was hurtled by the impact into a third car, driven by Raymond Dawley, 30, 1832 1/2 Fargo. There were no injuries. The victim was Robert Walthrop, 4226 Crosby Street, who complained of back injuries at the time of the accident, the Suburban Fire Department has reported. Suburban firemen were summoned to the accident and assisted Peace Ambulance in transferring the boy to the local hospital. Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Walthrop.

Thieves Hit Used Car Lot

Thieves broke into the office of an East Main used car lot, took two sets of keys and stole two autos late Saturday or early Sunday. The theft was discovered at 11:15 a.m. Sunday. Ten minutes later one of the cars was spotted—apparently abandoned by the thieves. Dve's Used Cars, 733 East Main, was the scene of the double crime. Police said the thieves broke the glass in the front door of the office to get the keys, then took a 1956 Chevrolet and a 1953 Plymouth. The Chevrolet was found behind a garage a block away. The keys to the car were gone, as was the Plymouth. It was still missing Monday.

Youths Arrested For Possession

Three 17-year-old Klamath Union High School seniors and an 18-year-old youth were arrested for possession of liquor at Main and Second streets Saturday night. The three 17-year-olds were turned over to juvenile authorities, while the other boy, Phillip England, was booked at city jail for possession of liquor. Police who stopped the boys' car said they found six bottles of beer in the vehicle. The Junior Hi Cabinet of Klamath Council has planned several dinners this fall to acquaint girls with consultants in the fields of the individual Torch Bearer Rank. The first of the potluck dinners was held Sept. 19 in the First Presbyterian Church, followed by a camp-out at Crater Lake Sept. 21-22. Junior High Camp Girls Mark First Anniversary

The first anniversary of their "grown up" status is being celebrated by 150 local Junior High Camp Fire Girls. The new age group for 12 and 13-year-old girls began one year ago with the revised and enriched Camp Fire Girls program. During the past 12 months, the Junior High group planned a variety of outdoor and indoor activities including cookouts, overnights, food baskets for the needy, progressive and international dinner parties, and a trip to the state capital. They also took a child care course and assisted with the Blue Bird Fly-up. Forty four girls achieved the Group Torch Bearer rank and 15 achieved the next higher individual Torch Bearer rank in a special field of interest selected from 25 subjects ranging from aerospace and business to interior decorating, photography, and advanced swimming. According to the Klamath Council Camp Fire Girls office, the organization has had a substantial increase in membership among the junior and senior high school girls since revising the program and allowing for more girl planning and earlier progression in achievement ranks. Within eight months the national rate of membership growth has more than doubled, with the local membership showing an increase of about 30 per cent, the office reported. The Junior Hi Cabinet of Klamath Council has planned several dinners this fall to acquaint girls with consultants in the fields of the individual Torch Bearer Rank. The first of the potluck dinners was held Sept. 19 in the First Presbyterian Church, followed by a camp-out at Crater Lake Sept. 21-22. Camp Fire Girls is open to all girls 7 years old through high school. The four age levels are Blue Bird, 7-8; Camp Fire Girls, 9-11; Junior Hi, 12-13; and Horizon Club, 14-17 or in high school.
