promoting" treaty with action on a $47.4 billion money bill to pay for the instruments of war.

The big appropriations bill, amounting to nearly half of the entire annual federal budget, was scheduled for debate immediately after ratification of the nuclear test ban treaty.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he planned to offer at least one amendment to cut $90 million added by the Senate to the House bill to speed research on a mobile medium-range missile, designed to be fired from trucks or other vehicles.

But Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., top Senate military expert, issued advance warning last week when he cleared the appropriations committee that any effort to cut the outlay would be strenuously opposed.

Must Remain Strong
Russell, chairman of both the Senate Armed Services Committee and defense appropriations subcommittee, said that because of the test ban treaty, it was all the more imperative that the United States remain militarily strong.

The bill provides funds for the manpower and weapons to maintain the nation's armed might in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

In all, it totals $47,371,407,000, which is $209.4 million more than the House approved last June but $1.6 billion less than President Kennedy requested.

So huge was the sum in the bill that one Senate staff aide calculated it would take one man—spending at the rate of $1,000 a minute—almost 90 years to get rid of that much money.

The bill includes funds for warplanes, tanks, land and sea-based missiles, and ships and weapons needed by the armed forces.

Money For TFX
Included was $22 million to continue development work on the controversial TFX Navy-Air Force fighter plane, under investigation by a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

In restoring some of the House cuts, the Senate committee put in more money for airplanes and missiles, and added $92.5 million for stepped-up research and development on new weapons.

However, the bill does not include any funds for an estimated $900 million military pay raise, slated to go into effect Jan. 1, or about $50 million for military housing which has been shifted this year to a separate money bill.

If these and others "economies" are added later, the final defense spending voted by Congress last year's record peacetime military outlay of about $48 billion.

Reds Bomb U.S. Planes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Communist saboteurs Monday set off bombs in two Vietnamese transport planes at an airfield used by U.S. troops training Vietnamese soldiers, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

Both of the American-built C47 planes were damaged heavily, but there were no reports of injuries. The Communists got away. It was the first time they had succeeded in sabotaging parked aircraft in a military airfield, military sources said.

Vietnamese and American officials awaited the arrival of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, sent here by President Kennedy to find out if South Viet Nam's dispute with the Buddhists is harming its efforts to defeat the Communists.

Quints' Mother Returns To Quieter Life Of Farm

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI)—Mrs. Mary Ann Fischer mothered her other five children in the quiet of her home today while her famous quintuplets squalled and wiggled in their hospital incubators.

Mrs. Fischer and her husband, Andrew, 38, didn't plan to venture from their old, 10-room farm house just outside Aberdeen on Mrs. Fischer's first full day home from the hospital.

Her homecoming Monday afternoon was a quiet, subdued affair compared with the commotion that followed the births of the quintuplets in the pre-dawn hours a week ago Saturday.

The oldest three children were in school, But Evelyn, 4, and Denise, 3, were at home with their grandmother, Mrs. Elmer Brady of Hecla, S.D., when the Fischers pulled up in their new station wagon.

When Mrs. Fischer walked out of St. Luke's Hospital on the arm of her husband, she broke into tears as she told reporters, "I want to thank everyone for everything they have done — I appreciate it more than I can ever tell."

Inside the hospital, the quintuplets continued their regular feeding of milk formula every two hours. Hospital attendants said they do not know when they will be given bottles.

The biggest and the most active — the lone boy, James Andrew — tugged at a bottle a couple times Sunday. But he, like the other four, continues to be fed through a nose tube.

The old rhyme — "Saturday's child has to work for his living" — will not be true of the Fischer quintuplets, at least at first.

A planning committee hoped to take the Fischers later this week to inspect prospective sites for the new $100,000 home the Aberdeen folks have promised them.

The planning committee said it also was going to invite President Kennedy, U.N. Secretary General U Thant and other noted figures to Aberdeen for the quintuplets' day, Oct. 14.

The quintuplets were a month premature, and Oct. 14 would, in a way, be a sort of birthday, too, and the celebration was planned with that in mind.

The Senate, without a dissenting voice, approved a resolution Monday authorizing an official picture to be taken today of the chamber with senators at their desks. The picture is to be used for the U. S. Capitol Historical Society's new Capitol Guide Book.

Nixon Warns Against Overselling Test Ban

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in what was viewed as a major policy speech, warned Monday night against the "overselling" of the recently negotiated limited nuclear test ban treaty.

The one-time presidential hopeful, who denied any aspirations for the 1964 nomination, also urged Republicans to unify their liberal and conservative factions because he said the party "can't afford a terrible bloodletting."

Nixon predicted the test ban treaty would be "overwhelmingly approved" by the Senate, but cautioned that approval will be marked by a stepped-up Soviet offensive to extend Communism without war in the free world.

In the first of a series of policy speeches, Nixon predicted the Russians will increase their subversive activities and launch a campaign to cloak Communist fronts with a mantle of respectability.

He said the dangers of the cold war are greater now than at any time in the past 13 years, and that the test ban treaty "does not mark, as some suggest, the beginning of the end of the cold war."

Airlift May Provide Formula For Saving $300 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A dramatic Army-Air Force "Exercise Big Lift" to fly 16,000 troops to Germany next month eventually may lead to savings of up to $300 million annually in the U.S. outflow of gold.

The exercise, largest of its kind ever undertaken and involving the entire 2nd Armored Division, raises the possibility that two of the six U. S. divisions now in Europe might be brought home if it proves feasible to replace them with sufficient speed by air.

That would save $75 million in U. S. gold now paid our yearly in overseas expenses that cannot be met in foreign currencies.

If support activities could be reduced proportionately, the saving might rise to $300 million annually for a reduction of two divisions.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, in announcing "Big Lift" Monday, said the U. S. airlift capability has doubled since 1961, and will double again in "the next several years."

Defense leaders never have been willing to concede publicly that there was any thought of reducing U. S. forces in Europe below six divisions, but the possibility has been discussed with the Senate Armed Services Committee. The idea advanced was that there would be no actual reduction in strength if the airlift capability was sufficiently increased.

The gold outflow due entirely to military deployment overseas last was reported at a rate of about $1.6 billion a year, compared with $2.6 billion in 1961 and $2 billion in 1962. The Defense department goal is to get it down to $1 billion a year.

In addition to the 15,000 troops of the 2nd Armored Division, 1,500 supporting ground forces and 1,500 airmen manning 116 combat planes are to be flown to Europe for the one-week exercise.
