

Strike Settlement Cut Unemployment In Half

Unemployment in the Klamath Falls area was cut in half in August—due largely to the settlement of the lumber industry strike.

These figures were reported Monday by the State Department of Employment.

During the week ending Aug. 22, the jobless rate in the area was four per cent of the labor force, compared to 8.7 per cent four weeks before.

Although the rate dropped sharply, it was still higher than August 1962, when 2.8 per cent of the labor force was jobless.

The department's Klamath Falls office reported the overall unemployment rate in Oregon was 3.2 per cent and in the nation, 3.5 per cent.

The office said a survey of local merchants revealed that retail sales were equal to or slightly above those on August 1962.

Job openings received by the office were "up substantially" last month, compared to August 1962.

It was predicted that employment will be near the normal seasonal level during September and October. The rate of insured unemployment during those months in past years has averaged 3.4 per cent. Last year, the low rate during this period was 2.3 per cent for the week ending Oct. 11 and the high was 3.4 per cent during the week ending Oct. 25.

The office predicted that agricultural employment will increase "greatly" during September and continue until a seasonal high is reached during the potato harvest in October. No shortage of labor is expected locally, except in a few highly-skilled occupations.

A contingent of six student journalists from Klamath Union High School next month will attend the 37th annual High School Press Conference at the University of Oregon and hear Gov. Mark O. Hatfield deliver the principal address. W. Darrell Boone, KU journalism adviser, said the editors of the student newspaper and Rhodesian exchange student Mike Holman will probably attend the conference. The convention will be held Oct. 11-12 at the Eugene campus of the university. Besides Hatfield, more than 50 professional journalists and teachers will speak. The Oregon Scholastic Press and the university's School of Journalism are sponsors of the conference, which is expected to draw about 900 students from throughout the state. Hatfield will speak at the banquet Friday, Oct. 11. Other addresses will be given by Howard C. Cleavinger, managing editor of the Spokane Daily Chronicle; Philip N. Bladine, publisher of the McMinnville News-Register; and Dr. Gerald R. Wallace, superintendent of the Corvallis School District. Cleavinger will be the Friday luncheon speaker and Bladine will speak at the Saturday luncheon. Wallace will address advisers at their annual Saturday morning breakfast. Six adult panels, composed of professional journalists and instructors, will discuss the latest techniques in the various media. Students will participate in roundtable discussions, view publication and photo exhibits, tour the university and attend an Oregon football game.

Some of our stockholders work at night

Communist workers must find it very hard to understand that an American can be an employee and also an owner of the business.

For instance: All Standard Oilers who are 35 or older, and have 5 years of service, may invest a portion of their pay in Standard shares if they wish, through monthly deposits in our Employee Stock Plan.

The Company adds a contribution, which has averaged more than $1.50 for every $1.00 deposited by employees. When a Standard Oiler retires, dividends from his accumulated stock add to his other retirement benefits.

The Employee Stock Plan is now the largest single holder of Standard Oil stock.

Yes, the husky fellows on that night drilling crew are Standard Oil stockholders. They own a piece of the Company, and share in its profits.

Planning ahead to serve you better
