

YOU CAN'T BEAT SUCCESS — Sandy Koufax, the Dodgers' winning pitcher and Manager Walter Alston are all smiles as they congratulate each other prior to the start of the Dodgers-New York Mets clash Tuesday night. The Dodgers had won the pennant in the afternoon when the St. Louis Cardinals lost, eliminating them from the flag chase. Next guy who claims the Dodgers backed in can have some of their left-over champagne — all over his head.
There always will be some purist to point out the Dodgers backed into the pennant because they actually clinched it while sitting in their pats Tuesday afternoon when the Cubs beat the Cardinals, 6-3.
But the Dodgers feel they won

KU Runners Tip Bonanza

The KUHS cross country team turned in an 18 to 45 victory over the Bonanza team Tuesday with the Pelicans sweeping four of the first five places in the run.
Coach Phil Harder reports that Bob Schell set a new course record in the time of 11 minutes 12 seconds to win the event. Dave Vaagen, KU, took second. Gene Spillane, Bonanza, secured the third place spot. In order, Steve Moore, KU, fourth; Mike Sweet, KU, fifth; Ralph Totton, KU, sixth; and Fred Dearborn, Bonanza, seventh.

Happy Dodgers Celebrate Pennant Clinching

By ALEX KAHN
UPI Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A relaxed and smiling manager Walter Alston paid tribute to his National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers today as a club that played its best when it had to.
From the moment the Dodgers clinched the pennant Tuesday when the Chicago Cubs beat St. Louis, 6-3, to eliminate the Cardinals from any chance of even a tie, the Los Angeles club turned back the clock a year.
Gone was the year of bitter memories of the 1962 debacle when the Dodgers had the pennant in their grasp only to collapse in the final week and then lose the playoff with the San Francisco Giants.
"It's certainly nice to have everything over and be able to enjoy the final few games," the smiling Alston said. "Now our job is to have everyone ready for the Series."
Few Cheers First
But before the club settled down to preparing for a clash with the American League champion New York Yankees, it did indulge in a few cheers.
A little of the edge was taken off the jubilation because none of the players were around when the Cubs clinched the pennant for them by beating the Cardinals at Chicago. And when the players did arrive at Dodger Stadium, they still had a game to play with the New York Mets. They beat the Mets, 4-1.
But after the game, one informal celebration broke out in the Dodgers clubhouse and it was followed by a more formal club reception for the team in the swank Stadium Club.
Even before the players arrived at the park, the club broke out its 1955 and 1959 world championship pennants and ran them up on the stadium flagpoles, perhaps as a reminder to the team that it still had a job ahead of it starting next week. Statistically, this was the 14th pennant captured by the Dodgers and the second since moving here from Brooklyn.
Drift In Slowly
The players drifted into the clubhouse slowly during the late afternoon and immediately began shaking hands with each other. And photographers started snapping pictures. But there was none of the cheering and excitement normally associated with a pennant clinching celebration.
"Right now I want to give the men who need some rest a chance to take a little time off," Alston said. "I'll rotate resting the players so that they won't get rusty."
And Alston said he intended giving Sandy Koufax, his 24-game winner, a chance to add at least one more victory to his record before the regular season ends Sunday.
The Dodgers have been scouting the Yankees for several weeks with Al Campanis following them. He returned home this week but Harold (Lefty) Phillips takes up the chore Thursday.
Alston's plans call for the Dodgers to fly to New York Monday and then work out in Yankee Stadium Tuesday in preparation for the opening of the Series there Wednesday.

Boosters To Meet

The Pelican Boosters will meet at 6:30 p.m. today at the Chuck Wagon. Films of the South Salem game will be shown, and George Demetras will show another special film, according to Booster president Bob Moore.
All KU supporters are invited to attend.
