LUAU SETTING — Loretta and Clyde Mathews, dressed in appropriate attire, pose beside part of the colorful decorations for the VFW Club luau on Sept. 14. In another corner was a bright fountain arrangement and over the bandstand where Don Phelps and Lynette Dawley played dance music was a life-size mermaid. The entire hall was lighted by lanterns. Fruit and flowers on individual tables carried out the over-all theme. Special entertainment was provided by Juanita Stevens, who presented several routines with flaming batons. — Photo by Bob Anderson

Honorary Begins Year

The Blue Room at the Winema Hotel was the scene of the first regular fall meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, international teacher's honorary, with a breakfast held Sept. 14. Members enjoyed two appropriate vocal numbers entitled "Oh What a Beautiful Morning" and "Beside Still Waters" sung by Carol Schmeichel of Merrill, guest soloist. She was accompanied at the piano by Ida Mary Kurtz.

Following the breakfast and preceding the business meeting, Vera Ochs led the group in singing several Delta Kappa Gamma songs in preparation for the October initiation.

President Dolly Bunch presided over the business meeting. Plans for the October and November meetings were discussed. October will be an evening meeting with inititiation of new candidates and the November meeting is to be a joint meeting, with Alpha and Alpha Lambda members to hear guest speaker, Dr. Betty Lou Dunlop of Southern Oregon College.

The Blue Room was made attractive with typical back to school decorations honoring the rhymes and school scenes were hung on the walls about the room and table favors consisted of an apple and worm for each guest. Fall floral arrangements completed decorations.

Hostesses for the day and in charge of arrangements were Lucille Faus, Lela Thurman and Jean Angel. The next regular meeting will be held Oct. 5 at the Winema Hotel with a 5 p.m. business meeting to be followed by initiation at 5:30 p.m. terminating by a supper to be served at the close of initiation. Members are asked to dress semi-formally. Jeannette Jackson and Ida Mary Kurtz are in charge of arrangements.

Zuleima Nile Club Meets

Zuleima Nile Club met Wednesday, Sept. 4, for a buffet luncheon at the Winema Hotel. Princess Emogene Jones, president, conducted the meeting.

The feature attraction for the meeting was a showing of fall millinery from Miller's by Rubye Sheridan. The models, Princesses Mary Bothwell, Grace Walker, Ruth McCart and Jannice Ellis were selected from the club.

The tables were beautifully decorated with garden flowers and the arrangements were given as special and birthday prizes. The chairman for the day was Princess Lura Vincent and the committee members were Princesses Thelma Colvin, Lillian Haneline, Fannie Mae Thompson, Mickie Zigler, Lucille Crawley, Natella Guderian, Hazel Lewis, Ruth Marks and Florence Griffin.

The next meeting will be Oct. 2 at the Winema Hotel. The program will feature a talk and illustrations on the Appreciation of Modern Art by Lorraine Johnson.

4-H Knitting Project Material Available

One of the most complete sets of information assembled anywhere in the U.S. for youngsters who want to learn to knit will be released soon by Oregon State University Extension Service.

The new knitting information has been developed for youths who enroll in the 4-H club knitting project.

Because of its anticipated popularity, it will have to be limited to youngsters who enroll in a 4-H knitting project, says Ruth Brasher, state 4-H extension agent who helped develop the project. More than 20 states have requested copies, hoping to pattern their 4-H program after Oregon's.

Enrollment in the 4-H knitting project has doubled twice over the past 10 years. Last year, 4,075 girls and boys enrolled in the project. A love for fashion, improved yarns and the thrill youngsters get from making something they can wear, are largely responsible for the interest in knitting, Miss Brasher noted.

The new project materials consist of seven phases or steps. In the beginning phase, 9 and 10-year-olds get the feel of different yarns and needles, learn to bind and cast on stitches and read patterns.

With practice, they are able to make simple garments, tasseled caps, slippers and mittens. More difficult garments follow—Scandinavian ski sweaters and individually designed knitted coats. After several years young knitters are ready to make knit and fabric ensembles and to combine several colors into an original design.

Mrs. James K. Franklin, Clackamas County 4-H leader who lives near Milwaukie, wrote the project material and planned illustrations based on an outline devised by an advisory committee. Others on the committee were Susan Amundsen, Astoria 4-H member; Jean Robinson and Mrs. Tom Bishop, Oregon Worsted Company; Mrs. Paul Johnson, Lake Oswego, and Mrs. John Finch, Portland.

Mrs. Franklin, mother of three children, started to compile information for the project just before Christmas and finished all seven phases in March. She tested the material on members of her two knitting clubs to be sure her instructions were clear and patterns correct.

Oregon Worsted Company of Oregon City donated yarn and their staff and made sample garments for display at the State Fair.

What a youngster learns in a 4-H knitting club includes more than knitting skills, says Miss Brasher.

"Members learn to work with others in a 4-H club, develop patience, and to finish what they start," she emphasized.

County extension agents can help interested parents get their youngsters into a 4-H knitting club.

Newlyweds Are Honored

LANGELL VALLEY—Mr. and Mrs. George Fernlund entertained at dinner Sept. 3 in honor of their son and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fernlund, who were married Aug. 29 in Reno. Mrs. Fernlund is the former Carolyn Strunk, daughter of Mrs. Flo Strunk, also of Langell Valley.

A pink and white wedding cake centered the table where places were set for the honored guests and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gift, Mrs. Hazel O'Keeffe, Mike, Cassie, Philip and Pat O'Keeffe, Mr. and Mrs. Orville DeVaul, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fernlund Sr., Mrs. Mary Springstead, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gift, Ronnie Gail, Todd and Robin Gift, Merle Huntley and Linda, Eddie, LeRoy and Carl Fernlund.

The bridegroom left Sept. 6 for his Navy base at Davisville, R.I. He will leave there about Oct. 1 for a year assignment in Antarctica.

"HOME FURNISHING IS OUR BUSINESS"

by BOB CUSHMAN

CONVERTIBLES used to mean almost everyone's favorite car. When the sun came out, all you had to do was push a button and you switched from a closed to an open car.

These days when you hear someone talk about having a new "convertible" they're just as apt to mean a dual-purpose sofa as an automobile.

Studio couches, or small beds which could double as a kind of casual sofa, have been with us for a long time. The post-pieces which are more truly war trend has been toward convertible . . . beautiful enough to be the focal point of living room or den, yet hiding beneath their beauty a single or a fold-out double bed.

It's easy to find reasons for the increasing popularity of true convertible sofas. Building costs are one factor. They mean smaller homes, as well as more people living in apartments where space is at a premium. But the chief reason is just that today's convertibles are so much less bulky, so much better at both of their functions . . . a handsome sofa and a comfortable bed for guests.

You'll find a distinctive selection of these convertibles in our showroom, in a wide choice of styles to complement your other furnishings beautifully. Stop in and look them over!
