

'Don't Forget To Quote The Twinkle, Please'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sam Goldwyn once was shown a newspaper story quoting him and he asked, "Why don't they quote the twinkle I had in my eye when I said it?"

Being an eye-twinkler from way back, I often have asked the same question. This is by way of emphasizing that the following claim is made with a twinkling eye:

I have only taped two of our thirty-two hour long shows, but already I am an expert on weekly TV.

Now, if I hadn't qualified that with that business about the twinkling eyes, you would have thought I was a nut and you would have been right. The funny thing is, I did learn a few things from doing two shows. One of them is to say, "I'll have to ask my people about that."

Daily Questions
You see, when you do a weekly TV series, dozens of people come to you every day and ask you questions which probably don't have any answers. If you answer "I'll have to ask my people about that," they seem very satisfied and you will save from four to five hours a day.

Another thing I've learned is not to learn what not to do. You can spend your whole life learning that and not learn a thing of practical value. We are learning a few things to do and from a very good teacher—the show itself.

This is probably the first time any television show was ever left to evolve as it goes along. We are not bothering with rules about and said, "pick out the property that will be a big hit."

There isn't anyone around with that kind of omniscience. If there were, he would own our business within a year. That's why we aren't playing our show by the rules. We can't trust certainty.

Another thing we learned is that we were right to insist that our show be "live on tape." By live-on-tape, I mean that though we tape days ahead of air date, we make sure that our show is only one hour long—no stopping to correct—I think it's a myth—that a great producer-director handed a forced spontaneity lends excitement and some unplanned fun.

NEW SHOW — Donald O'Connor and Judy Garland are shown here as they go before the cameras for the premiere production of the "Judy Garland Show," to be aired tonight on CBS-TV. This will be the first time that O'Connor and Miss Garland have appeared together on television though their careers have crossed paths many times since they were child performers. Their careers went from vaudeville to movies and finally to television. —UPI Telephoto

Giants And Dodgers Join Bold Venture In Pay TV

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bold new venture in pay television — sewing up two of the hottest big league baseball teams—is set for next year.

It is described by Subscription Television Inc. (STV), which recently filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, as one of the biggest outright speculations ever offered the American investing public.

This pay-TV network dwarfs the two first important ventures — Paramount's three-year experiment in the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke and General Tire and Rubber Co.'s year-old tryout at Hartford, Conn.

STV proposes to offer $22 million in stock. Backed by Matthew Fox of Los Angeles, Lear-Siegler, a big electronics firm, and the R. R. Donnelly Co. of Chicago, a subsidiary of Dun and Bradstreet, STV already has raised $8 million.

The Los Angeles and San Francisco areas are to be its first fields of operation and major league baseball will be the first star attraction.

Both the Los Angeles Dodgers and the San Francisco Giants have contracts to have their games piped into homes for pay by STV next season. Walter O'Malley of the Dodgers and Horace Stoneham of the Giants are among the lesser stockholders in the new company.

The Dodgers and the Giants have allowed very few of their games to be televised since moving to the West Coast from New York—they have been waiting for something like STV to get underway.

MADAME PRESIDENT — Actress Polly Bergen portraying the first woman president of the United States is caught in a typical woman's pose with her shoes off as she makes her inaugural speech after being sworn in as president. Although the pose is typical of a woman, the shoes were removed so that she could adjust to a better camera angle in the movie "Kisses for My President." —UPI Telephoto
