Sukarno Proves Menacing Figure In Southeast Asia

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In hot and dusty Jakarta this week the price of rice had doubled over that of two months ago.

In two years the cost of living had tripled and a months pay for the average Indonesian could be expected to last less than two weeks.

None of this seemed likely to be of great concern to Indonesian President Sukarno who long ago proved himself a man of nine lives so far as Indonesians were concerned and who early proved to himself that in a world dedicated to peace, the role of swash-buckler has many advantages.

But both the price of rice and Sukarno himself were of concern to the United States.

Suspicion Mounts
 There was a mounting suspicion that Sukarno intended to eliminate not only Dutch and British influence from Southeast Asia but U.S. influence as well.

As a ruler of a newly independent nation, Sukarno has enjoyed the best of three worlds. In Indonesia he has been named president for life. The Soviet Union built his military machine and the United States sustained him economically.

"Without United States help, the Indonesian economy wouldn't last five minutes," remarked a British diplomat a few days ago.

Taking Over Business
 In his mind were the fire-blackened ruins of the British Embassy and the British women and children flown from Indonesia when Sukarno loosed rioters against British installations in Jakarta as part of his confrontation against formerly British-held Malaysia.

In his mind also were the British business houses taken over by Sukarno on the claim it was to prevent their seizure by labor unions.

To the British it had the unpleasant ring of events leading up to Indonesian take-over of West New Guinea from the Dutch. Sukarno never has been a man to permit logic to interfere with rhetoric. And so it was not especially surprising that he denounced independent Malaysia as a British neo-colonial plot to surround 100 million Indonesians with some 10 million Malaysians.

Luck Running Out?
 It followed also then that Sukarno should describe as a

"blessing in disguise" his action in cutting off trade relations with Malaysia which normally takes about 27 per cent of all Indonesian exports.

In the end, he said, it would make the Indonesian economy stronger.

With Indonesian-trained guerrillas menacing its new borders in North Borneo and Sarawak, the immediate future of Malaysia is not a particularly happy one.

Everybody out of the rut ...the '64 Buicks are here!

New Wildcat: Wildest, sportiest yet. Three hefty engine choices (up to 360 hp). Hot new Formula V wheels (optional at extra cost).

Buick Special: New longer wheelbase. New safety box frame. More powerful V-6 and V-8 engines. New roomier body. Still low priced.

Buick Skylark: A very personal car with a flair for sport and action. Choice of sedan, sports coupe, convertible.

Buick LeSabre: Has stunning new looks, new gas-saving engine, and is probably 1964's best full-size value.

Electra 225: The most luxurious Buick. Splendidly contemporary in taste, design and performance.

Our happiest problem for '64 was: how to beat a winner? According to thousands of owners, the 1963 models just about had it made in all departments. But —when your name is Buick—you just don't rest on your laurels. You keep pushing to make a great car greater.

So... the '64 Buicks are new—but new. New engines, V-6 or V-8 (you'll like their new gas economy), new, smoother, extra-cost option, Super Turbine Transmissions (and who, but Buick, would build in an altitude compensator? Youngest looking Fisher Bodies in town!

Visit a showroom, sit in any one of the new Buicks, and practice this short easy line: "My Buick." Sounds good, doesn't it?
