WILLIAM R. STEVENS

Legion Head Will Visit KF Saturday

William R. Stevens, Beaverton, commander of the Department of Oregon, American Legion, and other department notables will be in Klamath Falls Saturday, Oct. 5. Commander Stevens is on a state-wide tour which will bring leaders of the organization to many communities where seminars will be held to meet the increased interest in Legion programs.

The department official expects new Legion posts to be established in Oregon this year. He notes that the 243,000 veterans in Oregon are recognizing the vital role being played by the Legion in protecting war veterans and that the vigor of the Legion assures a stronger nation. The upswing in interest is the strongest in 10 years, the official announces.

"We may begin several new posts in Oregon and one for each high school is our goal, to meet this interest in our organization," Stevens said. "It is indicative of the need for our services that despite being exclusive — only those who have served during actual time of combat are eligible — membership is growing."

"We have always been the world's largest veterans organization but we are less interested in numbers than being an effective, integral, and meaningful part of the American scene. "I am looking forward to increased community service for Oregon by the American Legion. We offer young men the opportunity to improve themselves while at the same time serving recognized and respected causes," Stevens said.

In addition to Commander Stevens, those on the program include C. Ray Wilson, department vice commander; Maurie Druhl, department adjutant; and Glenn Howe, department service officer.

The Legion's auxiliary will have its discussions led by Carmalite Weddle, department president; Pearl Funk, department vice president and Nota Francis, department secretary.

Brush Fire Controlled

Fire-fighters began mopping up operations early Friday on a brush fire that broke out east of the Klamath River, near Big Bend Dam, about noon Wednesday and razed an abandoned cabin and nearly 10 acres of vegetation, the Klamath Forest Protective Association has reported. Some 18 men, equipped with a bulldozer and five mobile tankers, were dispatched to a rocky plateau where the fire was sweeping through downed logs, brush, and fir thickets, KPFA disclosed.

The fire, sighted by the Soda Mountain Lookout, threatened to go out of control in the face of 25 mile per hour winds early Wednesday afternoon, but fire crews finally contained the blaze about 4:15 p.m.

A KPFA spokesman described the battle as "nip and tuck for awhile." KPFA said the fire, believed started by a camper, was located in an area accessible to motorized equipment. A PBY aircraft dropped one load of borate, a fire suppressant, on the blaze during the four-hour battle.

Rifle Bullet Hurts Youth

A Sprague River youth was shot about 1 a.m. Thursday when he fell in front of his home and the .22 caliber rifle he was carrying discharged, wounding him in the hip, Oregon State Police have reported.

The youth was Albert Lawlor, 20, of Box 412, who was taken to Klamath Valley Hospital where he received an anti-tetanus injection and was released. The bullet passed through the left side of Lawlor's hip, the hospital reported.

The accident developed when Lawlor tripped on a rut in the road and the rifle discharged as he fell, police stated.

The Klamath County Chamber of Commerce found itself as the outsider in an international affair involving a lonely London pelican and a quartet of suitors provided by the Emir of Bahawalpur. The four pelicans were contributed by the Emir as companions for Paul, the lonely pelican of St. James Park in London, but if his pets don't work out, a member of the same species from Klamath County may be ready to take over as a buddy to the despondent bird.

That outcome may yet be the sequel to the saga of London's lonely pelican, according to George Callison, manager of the chamber, who good humoredly pointed out that possibility to the chamber during its weekly meeting at the Pelican Cafe Wednesday.

Paul became the object of international sympathy early this summer when his only cage mate passed away. A London newsman told of Paul's ensuing loneliness through an international news service; a version of the story later appeared in the Herald and News. Several readers read the article and suggested to the chamber that it ship some local members of the species to England as companions for the London pelican.

After checking with local wild life authorities and airline services, Callison learned it would be possible to send a pelican to the London park and he advanced his suggestion in a letter to the Ministry of Public Building and Works, Lambeth Bridge House, London.

At the meeting Wednesday, the reply to that note was produced by Callison in the form of a neatly typed, embossed letterhead in which the Ministry stated that it had accepted "four birds" from the Emir "and they and Paul are on the most friendly terms—indeed they get on very well together."

The letter went on: "We will not be at all surprised if one of the new pelicans dies in which case the numbers in St. James Park will be equal, if not the sexes."

As for the birds offered by Klamath County, the ministry said it "would very much prefer to leave things as they are for the moment."

If the chamber was crestfallen because the county's hardy variety of pelicans had been passed over for those of royalty, it didn't permit its sentiments to be known.

The reply was written by Stanley J. Heritage, private secretary to the minister, and concluded, "The minister has asked me to say how very grateful he is to you for your interest and for your very generous offer."

Undismayed by the rejection, Callison said his offer will remain open in the event that the Emir's birds are unable to withstand the rigors of London weather.

In other business, Floyd Wynne, chairman of the Local and State Affairs Committee, discussed various points of the state tax bill which will go to the voters in a special election next Tuesday, Oct. 15.

In one of two announcements, Dick Green, president of the United Fund, reminded the chamber of a chicken dinner that is being offered to military personnel and civilians during the hours of 5 p.m. through 9 p.m., to night, Thursday, at the Kingsley Field officers' mess hall. The price of the meal is $1 for adults and 50 cents for those of school age, with the proceeds earmarked for the United Fund.

In the other announcement, Jim Monteith, president of the chamber, stated that the annual business meeting of the chamber would get underway at Reames Country Club Wednesday, Oct. 7, beginning with a happy hour at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 o'clock.

Many an individual has run himself so deeply in debt that bucking the gambling tiger at Reno or Las Vegas has seemed to him the only way out of his troubles.

But—VERY SELDOM INDEED has it worked.

And—History tells us that NATIONAL lotteries are even worse than reckless private gambling. Because the governments that resort to them need to get every dollar they can lay hands on, they ENCOURAGE their people to gamble. The gambling thus officially encouraged ROTTS AWAY THE MORAL FIBER OF THE PEOPLE.

When that happens, the nation that has bet its future on a national lottery is a GONER.

History is pretty positive on that point.

Beatty Man Succumbs

Orville Davis, 39, a lifelong resident of Klamath County, died in his trailer home in Beatty, about 1 a.m. Oct. 2. Previous to his death he had complained of pains in his left arm and chest and collapsed before help reached him.

Klamath County deputy medical examiner W. P. (Doc) Kendall brought the body to Ward's Klamath Funeral Home in Klamath Falls, after a telephone call to the sheriff's office at 1:10 a.m.

Death apparently was from natural causes. An autopsy is planned for Oct. 7 on the return to Klamath Falls of pathologist Dr. George Nicholson from Chicago.

Mr. Davis is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Eda Jefferson Toppens, Wash.; two nephews, Elanathan Davis, Klamath Falls, and Harold Davis, Modoc Point; also seven grandchildren.

CAMP FIRE CAMP-OUT — Four Klamath Council Camp Fire Girls have accepted an invitation from the Portland Council of Horizon Clubs to attend its annual camp-out session near Sandy, Ore. Packed and ready to leave Friday for the three-day session are, from left, Elizabeth Ough, Donna Buck, and adviser Mrs. Carol Baird, all of Klamath Falls. They will be joined by Lynda Story of Dorris and Mickey Wolff of Chiloquin.

Piper Sends Judge Dismisses Actions Against Three Defendants

Circuit Court Judge Donald Piper this morning sentenced one man to four months in the county jail and another to a term in the state penitentiary.

Charles Wesley Jones, a 19-year-old airman from McChord AFB, Wash., was sentenced to the county jail term for simple assault. He had been charged with assault with force likely to produce great bodily harm, but the charge was reduced by the jury that convicted him Aug. 22. He was accused of beating a girl when she resisted his advances.

Donald Hult Switlik, 23, who was convicted Monday night of assault with a dangerous weapon, was sentenced to state prison for a term of not more than three years. He was convicted of beating a hitchhiker near Agency Lake Aug. 11.

The suits against Willis Homer, Richard Barker and William Pierce were dismissed after the plaintiff, Andrew Zudell, failed to identify them as participating in the alleged assault two years ago.

Proceedings continued in the suit against the fourth Stewart-Lenox Fire Department volunteer, Robert Barnes. Barnes says he turned the hose on Zudell in self-defense after the man attacked him with a shovel.

Barnes testified to that effect this morning and testimony ended in the case. Arguments were proceeding late this morning and the case was expected to go to a jury of eight women and four men this afternoon. Zudell is asking $7,665.75 in damages.

Staff Ready For Election

Klamath County election boards which will assist in the tax referendum election, Tuesday, Oct. 15, will be held to a minimum number of members, as recommended by the office of the Secretary of State, County Clerk Charles DeLap said Thursday.

Three members of each of the day boards will report to their assigned locations at 8 a.m. on the day of the election.

The chairman of each counting board will report at 3 p.m. to assist board members during the rush hour and to supervise the count, which will begin after the polls close at 8 p.m.

Chairman and board members who are to work during the election have already been notified, DeLap said.

FORT KLAMATH—William A. (Bill) Page, 69, well-known Fort Klamath businessman, died at 10 p.m. Oct. 2 in the Veterans Hospital, Portland, where he had been ill for several weeks. He had been ill for six weeks.

His wife, Sadye M. Page, and brother, Guss A. Page, both of Fort Klamath, had been accompanied to Portland Monday by Mrs. Norman Van Iderstine, a longtime friend of the family, and were at his bedside.

Mr. Page came to Fort Klamath in 1908 from Myrtle Creek with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Page. He had been a partner in the Rainbow Garage with his brother Guss for 39 years. He was a member of the Wood River Pioneers and Old-timers and of the Chiloquin Masonic Lodge A. F. & A. M.

Funeral arrangements will be announced on arrival of the family from Portland.

Civic Theatre Group Plans Public Birthday Meeting

The Klamath County Civic Theatre group has invited everyone interested in any type of the arts work to attend the troupe's annual birthday meeting, 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 7, in the Willard Hotel, according to Bill Hagerman, president.

The meeting will also mark the start of the club's annual membership drive, Hagerman said. Prospective members planning to attend are advised to contact Laurie Wooschlager, at TU 2-4838. The meeting is open to the public and everyone is welcome to come whether or not they contact the group in advance, Hagerman added.

The theatre is sponsored by the Klamath Falls Parks and Recreation Department and is currently rehearsing for its latest production, "Blithe Spirit," scheduled to be staged next November.
