WALL STREET NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks closed only slightly higher today after coming within striking distance of a new all-time high. The Dow-Jones industrial average rose as much as 3.39 to 747.64 early in the session but backed down during the afternoon as profit takers stepped in. The present record is 745.96 set on Sept. 24. The bulls had quite a bit in their favor including continuing higher auto output, another spurt in construction contracts, higher retail sales, a two-year high for railroad freight shipments and the spread in steel price increases. WALL STREET CHATTER NEW YORK (UPI) — Thomson McKinnon says to be patient and maintain your investment perspective. It advises investors to "rely on time-tested yardsticks: sound quality, demonstrated earnings performance, strong financial support, consistent dividend record, competitive advantages and favorable prospects for industry and company." The advisers believe that the cumulative performance of stocks between now and Oct. 15 should provide a more dependable clue to the direction of the next important move than scattered day to day movements. United Business Service says that, "with business prospects favorable and a tax cut in the making, the bulk of stock funds should remain invested." Standard & Poor's warns that new buying should be delayed "and the proceeds of any selling retained in cash for the present." The Dow Theory Trader says to expect a selectively higher market during the week ahead and a continuation of this upward, with occasional reactions, into late 1963 and probably into early 1964. Opinions Vary On Reason For Declining Herd Count

(Continued From Page 1) The deer they're trying to protect. If we put a bag limit on these experts I think we'd have more deer out there; personally, I believe they are scaring the deer away," he said dryly. Three other speakers were carryovers from the session at Yreka. Richard L. Hubbard, connected with wildlife for the state of California, remarked on a deer-cattle range study conducted by the U.S. Forest Service and which is to be published soon, Hubbard said the condition of the range at Devil's Garden, near Tulelake, has declined steadily since cattle were moved into the region years ago; however, he added that overgrazing was only one of many conditions which resulted in deterioration of the range. Fred P. Cronmiller, Los Altos, Calif., stated that only one out of every eight deer ever "reach the hunter's back."

Another Hot And Dry Weekend Faces Winema Forest; Hunter Care Urged

"Deer hunters on the Winema National Forest can expect another weekend of hot, dry weather," Forest Supervisor Alex Smith said today. "The forecast is for continued hot, dry weather," he said, and "we urge all hunters to be very careful with fire." The fire danger is as high now as it has been all summer. Days are shorter but recovery of field moisture from dew at night is still at a minimum. Smith said that there were only five hunter fires on the Winema during the first week of the season. "In view of the extreme fire danger," he said, "we feel this is an excellent record and we wish to commend all those who were on the Winema during this period on their excellent cooperation in being careful with fire." Four of the five fires were only spots caused by abandoned campfires. The fifth, which occurred on Monday, was one-half acre in size. It apparently started from an abandoned campfire but, through the quick action of four hunters in the area, was held to one-half acre. "It is certainly gratifying to experience the excellent cooperation which everyone has shown this

He and three other firemen had been sued by Andrew Zudell, who claimed the firemen turned the hose on him without provocation. But the firemen contended that the hose was turned on Zudell in self-defense when he attacked Barnes with a shovel. Suits against the three other firemen were dismissed Wednesday by Judge Donald Piper.
